Enough to treat any 6 or 12 volt automotive-type battery
VX-6 ENDS
Battery Worries
Did you know your battery can last the life of your car?
Money-Back Guarantee
contained with each unit.

Open the car hood and look at the battery. The green or white formation you see on the terminals and posts is lead sulphate (sulphation). —Your battery is deteriorating. This is also taking place inside your battery, building and growing on the plates and clogging the pores that absorb the fluids in the cells. Cold weather raises the viscosity of the fluids making battery operations more difficult.
SULPHATION WILL GRADUALLY AND SURELY BE THE DEATH OF YOUR BATTERY.
One application of VX-6 added to any new or older battery prevents and cures this battery cancer. Don't wait until your battery fails — prevent it now.
VX-6 is positively not harmful to batteries. Even major battery companies will tell you this. Also, it is harmless to the skin or property.
VX-6 is used by railroads, contractors, truck and auto fleets, municipalities, factories and industries of all types.
For larger type batteries write for information.

'No Comment,' O'Neill Says On Reported Congress Race

Ohio Supreme Court Justice C. William O'Neill has declined to squelch rumors that he is seeking the support of fellow-Republicans in a bid for Congress from the 15th (Franklin County) District.

When contacted by The Spectator, O'Neill would only say "I don't propose to comment on that matter at all."

Saying it "would not be proper" for him to comment because of his position on the Ohio High Court, O'Neill refused to deny that he is considering the Congressional race.

According to the judicial Canon of Ethics, a judge who becomes a candidate for any non-judicial office must resign his office "in order that it cannot be said that he is using the power or prestige of his judicial position to promote his own candidacy or the success of his party."

O'Neill is completing the first year of a term to which he was elected in 1964, and which expires at the end of 1970. Franklin County electors will elect two Congressmen to two-year terms in 1966.

Incumbent Republican Congressman Samuel L. Devine is due to announce in early January if he will stand for re-election in the 12th District or become a candidate from the newly-created 15th District.

If Devine remains in his "home" district, O'Neill supporters are expected to press his candidacy in the 15th District.

Modes of transportation change but our wish for you to have a joyous Christmas does not.

Mayor Asks Help In County Odor Problem

Columbus city officials have not yet completely banned the troublesome South Side odors, but they feel they have now found a way to take the worry out of being close.

In a Tuesday letter to the Franklin County Commissioners, Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner outlined additional recommendations for eliminating odors from the Inland Products Company. He asked commissioners for continued cooperation in working with the county-based rendering plant.

Sensenbrenner said he was "pleased to note the cooperation of Inland Products" in following recommendations of G. Eugene Nagel, the city's chief air pollution control engineer.

"However," the mayor added, "I respectfully urge the county commissioners to follow the recommendation as presented concerning the receiving and grinding building (at the Inland Plant) so that we may eliminate the cause of odor at all sources."

Nagel reported the receiving and grinding building as the second most troublesome source of odor.

"This odor is more of a local problem," the Nagel report said, "and seldom carries to a distance of more than two or three miles. In our opinion the best way to control this odor is by installing fume hoods over the receiving hopper, the screw conveyors and the grinders and exhausting this malodorous air into a tall stack where it will be treated with ozone."

"Inland Products has purchased an ozone generator for treatment of odors after effluent from the plant operation is channeled into a tall stack."

Nagel recommended that fresh "make-up" air be mechanically introduced at well-engineered locations in order to provide free and effective ventilation."

The recommendations by Nagel are the latest in a series of moves directed by Mayor Sensenbrenner in attempts to minimize or eliminate the odor problem. Sensenbrenner had promised to work toward solution of the problem in his successful bid for the mayor's office.

The city's Service Department has initiated programs to minimize odors from the lagoon area used in connection with operation of the Jackson Pike sewage treatment plant. The lagoons are being chemically treated.

The selection of sites for county-wide incinerator operations gives hope of a permanent solution of the odor problem, but is a long-term (five year) program. Meanwhile, city officials continue to follow programs of odor control and prevention.

IN THE NEWS THIS WEEK...

From Spectator Area News Sources

Auble Is Appointed Editor Of Spectator

Spectator Publisher Robert Burdock has announced the appointment of John Auble, Jr., 25, as managing editor of the eight community newspapers. Auble assumed his duties on Dec. 27. He succeeds Marcus T. Orr to the position. A Spectator editorial staffer for the past six years, Auble has served in various capacities of reporting and makeup. He served as a correspondent during his two-year tour with the United States Navy and spent some time covering the farm program for the Spectator from Washington, D.C. A native of Youngstown, O., Auble was graduated from Whitehall High and majored in Journalism at Ohio State University. In 1959 he founded the Ohio College Sports Digest (a state-wide publication) and has been employed by the Columbus Dispatch and WNOR Radio in Norfolk, Va. He has also authored a number of national magazine articles and holds several Ohio Newspaper Association writing awards. The father of two children, Auble resides at 5022 Eastham-way with his wife, Sharen.

No One Will Deny The Idea Is Original

In the midst of the ado about a county-wide incinerator plan with accompanying howls of distress from local residents who don't look upon an incinerator as a choice neighbor, an interesting and novel idea has been introduced.

Briefly, it involves loading Franklin County refuse into railroad cars daily and shipping it to the sites of strip mines in the southern part of the state.

The author of the plan was not available for further details, but it is reported that his master scheme involves the refuse to be trucked to a central collection point where the cars would be sided.

First, preliminary investigation indicates the costs would be far below the $8,660 a day operating costs forecast for the proposed incinerators.

Secondly, a major coal company has expressed interest in the plan.

Thirdly, more than one man has made himself a millionaire while he turned deaf ears to the jeers of those with more conventional thinking.

I-270 Bid Opening Date Set At Feb. 8

A tentative bid opening date of Feb. 8 has been scheduled for construction of 2.7 miles of I-270 north of the proposed West Freeway (I-70), Ohio Highway Director P. E. Masheter said this week. The $5,288,000 six-lane project begins .2 mile north of Trabue-rd and 3000 feet west of Wilson-rd. It will run north to a point 3000 feet south of Cemetery-rd, where construction of a four mile section is under way. Approximately 2000 feet of Roberts-rd will be relocated 500 feet south of existing roadway. Wilson-rd will be moved 1000 feet east of the point at which it connects with Roberts-rd.

Northside Publisher Rand Hollenback Dies

Rand P. Hollenback, editor and publisher of The Booster and The Herald and president of The Press of Hollenback, Inc., died in Riverside Methodist Hospital last week. He was 66 on Dec. 5.

Hollenback had suffered from a tumor since last summer and had been in Riverside several times since June. He was readmitted for the last time on Dec. 19.

All the members of his family were at his bedside when he died.

OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

Vol. VIII, No. 17 — Total No. 381 | Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, December 30, 1965 | Second Class Postage Paid at Columbus, Ohio | 10 Cents

Before January is over, more than 2,122 Ohio men will be ordered into uniform, perhaps to go to Viet Nam and possibly to die. Some will go against their will and those who return will be veterans. It's called Selective Service, and the Spectator takes a look at it here . . .

A Student . . .

'The way I see it, after the Viet Nam crisis ends there'll be plenty of guys who'll want to stay in and they won't call me." — Bob Densham, formerly of 4592 Eastway-ct, now a senior at the University of Michigan.

In 'Limbo' . . .

"They classified me as unfit for current standards but I still don't know where I stand right now. Sure, I'd go if they called me . . . I'd go just like everybody else but I'd probably hate it."—Willard Starrett, 21, 4398 Kumler-rd.

He's 1-Y . . .

'It's different playing football with a bum knee. There was always a trainer there with tape to keep it from slipping out. Who'll be there with tape in a rice paddie?" Edward Metzger '21, 287 Westphal-av, Whitehall.

DRAFT HAS SURVIVED MANY YEARS, BUT TIMES CHANGE . . .

No one really likes the draft.

There are, undoubtedly, more critics to the system of getting military manpower today than in past years. They cite "vicious injustices" of the system and wonder when the system will change from its legal formula of 25 years ago, when the first numbers were pulled from a fishbowl to supply soldiers for World War II.

A spokesman in the office of Col. Raymond D. Clouse, director of the Ohio Selective Service, says he feels that "Ohio has no problems" in the realm of keeping up military strength.

"They grumble and take their turn," the spokesman said. "They've been doing that for years."

How Does The Draft Work?

See story on Page 6.

Many, however, wonder how long Americans will have to "grumble and take their turn" . . . how long before a committee will come up with a study that will provide a more workable and less antagonistic means of procuring military manpower.

A 20-year-old former Columbus youth, now a radio-TV major at the University of Michigan, says he honestly feels the "draft is not a just system at all."

Bob Densham, who resided at 4592 Eastway-ct, says he even intends to go after a Masters' Degree next year

CLASSIFICATIONS OF DRAFT LISTED

There are 18 different categories that a young man might find on his draft card. Here they are, and what they mean:

1-A, available; 1-A-O, conscientious objector available for non-combatant service; 1-C, man in the service or a member of a coastal survey service; 1-D, a member of a reserve component or taking military training such as ROTC; 1-O, a conscientious objector available for civilian work contributing to the maintenance of the national health, safety and interest; 1-S, a student who is deferred by law until graduation from his high school or at the age of 20 (or, if in college, it will defer him until the end of his academic year); 1-W, a conscientious objector actually performing civilian work contributing to the maintenance of the national health, safety and interest; 1-Y, a man qualified for military service only in time of war or national emergency because of a minor physical defect.

2-A, an occupational deferment other than agricultural or apprenticeship; 2-C, an agricultural deferment; 2-S, a college student.

3-A, an extreme hardship deferment or a man living with a child or children in his home.

4-A a man who has sufficient prior active service to get rid of his obligation or, being the sole surviving son in a family th lost a father or one or more sons or daughters in military action; 4-B, a deferment from a government official; 4-C, an alien not currently eligible for service because of being in this country less than a year; 4-D, a minister of religion or divinity student; 4-F a man mentally, morally or physically unqualified.

5-A, a registrant over the age of liability (in Ohio, any man never deferred before the age of 26 is classified 5-A).

Haytcher Will Keep Polzer In Service Director's Post

Whitehall mayor-elect Paul J. Haytcher will retain James C. Polzer as the city's service director. Polzer, a Republican, will thus have the distinction of having served under four mayors representing the full spectrum of politics.

The 61-year-old Polzer was first appointed by non-partisan mayor Dewey Parsons in 1955 as chief building inspector — a post similar to the later-created service director's position.

Republican Walter B. Moling retained Polzer as building inspector for part of his first term of office, and William H. Holzhause, who won office as an Independent in 1963, named Polzer as service director.

Now Polzer will be the service director for the city's first Democratic mayor, Haytcher.

City Hall sources indicate that the delay in announcing Polzer's appointment was due to concern over his past ventures into the political arena. He had filed as a primary candidate against two of the previous mayors under whom he had served — Moling and Holzhause.

Polzer confirmed for The Spectator a report that he has assured Haytcher that he will not use his appointive post as a "launching pad" for elective office.

Haytcher has yet to announce his selections (one each) for the Civil Service Commission and the Planning and Zoning Commission. It is believed that he will seek a Fairway-blvd area resident for the planning and zoning post.

Most of the city's undeveloped area lies in the Fairway-blvd district, and Haytcher has expressed the belief that those residents most directly affected should be represented in zoning matters.

THE YEAR IN REVIEW

Spectator News 'Capsules' Revolve Around Community

Mankind marked off many milestones in the course of the year. But close to the community and close to where the people live The Spectator was recording those events that meant much in a personal way. The activities which filled the pages of our paper this year are reviewed month by month . . . as they happened.

January . . .

Wayne Westley Bartholomew, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Bartholomew, Jr., born 15 seconds after midnight Jan. 1, first baby of the new year born in Franklin County, was winner of The Eastern Spectator Stork Derby . . . Mayor William Holzhause announced the city had a healthy $134,000 in the "kitty." . . . Bexley Council passed an appropriation measure for 1965 for $875,371—pared $6,805 under last year.

A melee developed Jan. 8 in front of Stop 40 Restaurant, 4350 E. Main-st, stemming from a fist fight. Police from Whitehall, Bexley, Columbus and the Franklin County Sheriff's Department converged on the scene, traffic was blocked on the busy E. Main-st artery, and the crowd was finally dispersed by a Whitehall pumper, spraying water from high pressure hoses.

February . . .

Capital University unveiled a master plan to develop its campus to care for an expected, ultimate enrollment of 3000 — present enrollment is 1555. Thirteen new buildings will be added and total cost for the Decade of Decision expansion program, from 1950 to '60, will be $14,566,000 . . . Roger Stahley, Whitehall councilman, was selected "Man Of The Year" by Eastern Jaycees.

Whitehall Council passed a resolution for installation of the Collingwood relief sewer over protest of residents, who object to having their street torn up for this purpose, only to repeat the procedure later when the street will be widened and improved . . . Joseph Shannon was appointed to fill the post of Whitehall service director, vacated Feb. 3 by James Polzer who resigned when he filed for mayor in the Republican May primary . . . New Southeast Civitan Club was chartered . . . Fire Chief John W. Enser, 120 Mayfair-blvd, announced his retirement next month as chief of Defense Construction Supply Center Fire Department, after 50 years fire-fighting career.

March . . .

Gordon Memorial Series of cultural events, established by Dr. and Mrs. E. Gordon by creating a legacy that enabled the Jewish Center to establish a trust fund, was launched at the center this month . . . Bexley's veteran mayor, William Schneider, signed his first proclamation for a week of special observance, and council's agreement to a request by Capital University's Board of Public Affairs to designate "Week Of Social Concerns," marked a first for the city . . . East Broad Street School marked its 50th anniversary.

April . . .

Alfred F. Baker, Jr., 646 Pierce-av, was named civil service commissioner in Whitehall . . . New Maybury Elementary was dedicated . . . Bexley, now at the financial crossroads as a maturing community, land-locked with no way to grow out, speculated on "growing up" with luxury apartments, as a means of increasing its tax duplicate . . . A tornado left a trail of havoc southeast of the city . . . Bexley Library purchased the land on which it is located from Capital University, opening the way for expansion.

Miss Louisa Holloway, teacher at Fairmoor Elementary, and John M. Condit, biology teacher at Eastmoor, were recipients of "Teacher Of The Year" awards, given by Junior Chamber of Commerce . . . East Columbus Christian Church marked 50th anniversary . . . Jets opened home season.

May . . .

Former Mayor Walter Moling, winner in the GOP primary, was to face city solicitor, Paul Haytcher, in the Whitehall mayor's race

Why take less than 4½% ?

Your savings can earn that rate and interest starts immediately

Earn more at City National

City National savers can earn a guaranteed 4½%, with Investor Saver Bonds that start as low as $19.99

City National's Investor Saver Bonds are a carefully designed savings plan guaranteed to return 4½% interest for five years. The rate is assured, not subject to changing conditions. When held to their five year maturity, the Bonds pay off at a 25.1% profit. It's a safe, sound, rock-solid way to make more money on your savings. You should consider this program in your savings and investment program for 1966.

You can cash in your bonds before maturity and still earn interest.

Your money is not frozen. You can get it out when you need it, almost as easily as you withdraw from Savings Accounts. Investor Saver Bonds can be cashed 90 days after you buy them and you receive earned interest to date. That way you don't lose interest, should you need to cash-in your bonds.

4½% Bonds are better than most other kinds of savings.

Most other Banks and Savings & Loan organizations do not pay you a 4½% rate. U. S. Savings Bonds, for instance, earn only 3¾%, while the average yield on Common Stocks is just slightly over 3%. Even if you are the most astute investor and buy into the U. S. Treasury Bill market, the return is only about 4½%. When you compare, City National's Investor Saver Bonds pay a guaranteed 4½% return.

There's a Bond for every type of saver.

There are three different Investor Saver Bonds. Each designed to meet a different money need.

SAVINGS BONDS (SERIES S)
Start at $19.99, and are of special interest to budget savers who want the highest possible interest rate. They are perfect for young couples who are just starting to accumulate funds for the future. A Bond a month can help guarantee a college education, a happier retirement, or a trip around the world. It's just an out-and-out better way to put away some money.

GROWTH BONDS (SERIES G)
These Bonds are designed for the larger saver, or for the person who occasionally has a sizeable amount to invest. The Growth Bonds start at $500, and are ideal for the investor looking for guaranteed high earnings. There's no risk—no worry—no ups and downs.

INCOME BONDS (SERIES I)
Here's the way to set up a regular monthly, quarterly or semi-annual income. You receive a regular check for the accumulated interest on your Bonds. It's an ideal plan to supplement pensions, social security or income from other investments. Bonds can be purchased for $1,000 and up.

Some extra values from Investor Saver Bonds.

INTANGIBLE TAX: To add extra value to your investment, City National pays the intangible tax for you. That saves you money, compared to other forms of investments.

INSURED: Every depositor is insured under the terms of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

BOND A MONTH: You can automatically buy a bond a month, by telling us to take it out of your checking account.

GREAT AS A GIFT: Savings Bonds make perfect gifts. You can have the Bonds made out to the recipient or you can assign your Bonds to another owner.

It's out-and-out the best guaranteed investment around.

Every detail of this new program has been worked out to give you the most profitable savings and investment program possible. There are no gimmicks — just a sound, solid guaranteed plan not available at other local Banks. Get started now. Stop at any City National office. They have the answer to help you make more profits on your saving's dollars.

THE SPECTATOR

OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

Robert Burdock, Publisher — Don E. Buckman, Advertising Director — John Auble, Jr., Managing Editor — R. H. Rogers, Business Manager

Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, December 30, 1965

Welcome 1966!

We come to a New Year.

Providence passes to each of us a new, clean slate. We have the opportunity, during the 365 days ahead, to record our own individual achievements. This is the way we paint the New Year — time for a new start, with a clean slate.

Before we make our first marks for 1966, however, let's not turn completely aside from 1965. Let us look backward with an appraising eye. We cannot merely wipe away our uncompleted assignments because the date on the calendar has been changed. The things that needed doing yesterday, if undone, need doing today, or tomorrow. They are still with us. They won't go away merely because we ignore them.

This is as it should be. If we achieve anything in 1966, it shall be due to the fact that our starting point took into consideration all our successes, achievements and failures during 1965. It is a New Year, yet we as individuals are not reborn. We are the same, with the same strength, with the same weaknesses.

So, let us welcome the New Year. Let us welcome the opportunity that it provides. But, at the same time, let us be thankful for the experiences of 1965. We are not starting from nowhere, or from nothing. We have things that need doing in the year ahead.

Year For Action

There is hardly an area within Franklin County which will not feel the effect of major decisions to be made in Columbus during 1966. And there is every reason to be optimistic in feeling that the year ahead should be one of many solid accomplishments.

Several times since the Columbus election results of last Nov. 2, we have reminded the Democratic Sensenbremmer Administration and new Democratic-controlled council that much is expected of them. This is still true.

But there is much more involved than the keeping of campaign pledges by any given political party; and the responsibility for progress does not begin and end with the political party in power.

There will be three Republicans on the seven-member council. Their "minority" status does not dictate that they capitulate to the will or whim of the majority party. But neither does their position as the "opposition party" give them any special privilege to oppose for that reason only.

Because 1966 will be free of city office election contests, the officeholders should be less tempted to act from strictly political motivation. This will be the year for dealing more effectively with the "hot potato issues."

Some of the prime areas for action include:

- Enactment of reasonable, equitable sewer rate increases for a continuing aggressive, well-managed sewer expansion program.
- Early and decisive action in setting the city's course in the area of mass transportation.
- Renewed and co-ordinated support for the city's Urban Renewal program, coupled with a continuing program of public education in this vital area.
- Enactment of planning and zoning legislation geared to the highest and best land-use criteria.
- Revitalization of the badly sagging parks and recreation program.

Past experience (particularly during 1965) has shown that an election year for city officials puts major legislative and administrative decisions in the "poor risk" category. Thus, 1966 looms more important. No major decision can be put off to 1967 with any real hope of solution.

Columbus city officials have the tools to meet the challenges at hand. If they don't build a better city the fault will be theirs.

OPINION

I was still wearing bloomers to match my pinafores when I accepted it as a basic fact of life.

It is a man's world.

Awakening came when the little boy next door was hired to peddle Saturday Evening Postsand the area manager pooh-poohed the idea that I could sell as well as the next five-year-old.

Mrs. Robinson

But suddenly it's dawned on me I've been liberated from second-class citizen status.

The entire significance of congress' recent anti-discriminatory law had entirely escaped me.

I thought it had something to do with civil rights.

But yesterday I woke up.

Today I'm plotting and tomorrow I go forth to fight for my rights.

Just watch my smoke.

I would have started out today, but the possibilities are so wondrous to behold that I feel like a kid in a candy store with a whole dollar to splurge.

Where shall I start?

First I'll strike a blow in the name of Maria Callas. Just where will Rudolph Bing be when he refuses to audition me for the role of Figaro?

I'll tell you where — in the fourth balcony of Sing Sing for discriminatory labor practices against a woman because of her sex.

Next I believe I'll pull a double reverse on that gang up in Cleveland who have alienated the attentions of my husband every Sunday afternoon for a decade.

Where will Blanton Collier be when he refuses to let me demonstrate my punting ability? (Plenty of experience —never knowing what else to do.)

Well, to say the least, he'll be caught behind the goal posts.

And just wait until I'm through with that Dapper Dan of a Fifth Avenuer in a Brooks Brothers suit who has led me to waste approximately 101,563 minutes watching strange men shave.

When he balks on talking with me about my filling Mickey Mantle's slot, he'll slit his throat with one of his precious client's razors.

See what I mean?

The possibilities are positively glittering to a woman with revenge in her heart.

In fact, in discussing the situation with my husband, I learned that even a man can recognize glitter.

He promptly clipped a want-ad of a club wanting an exotic dancer.

Hey, you don't think it was the address he was saving, do you?

—JANE ROBINSON

"More!"

Calling Ohioans

By MICHAEL V. DiSALLE

The front page of the Delaware Gazette of Nov. 30, 1965, gave a graphic picture of Ohio today.

One story was headlined "Delaware City Tax Rate Highest, Shows Most Increase In County."

The story went on to recount what is too often the case in most Ohio counties and cities: "Property owners in 41 of Delaware County's 43 taxing districts will find their tax bill higher this year." . . . "The city rate for the next collection is an even 45 mills — the highest ever here. The rate was 37.20 mills last year." It is hardly necessary to repeat that the large majority of Delaware County and city officials are normally members of the Republican Party.

On the same page another story featured a quotation by our Governor in New York, "Come to the land of no new taxes, where we've got big highway, educational and research programs rolling and a proper climate for industry." It was here that the Governor announced a new Ohio office in New York City.

We now have offices in Washington, Cleveland and Cincinnati as well as New York. Another office may soon be opened in Brussels.

None have been announced for Rome or Tel Aviv.

But don't bet against it.

What with $100,000 being spent for bronze doors at the State House, who knows where else the state may want to spend its high-interest-rate borrowed funds.

Trouble Ahead

This is not written with the intention of harassing our overworked chief executive, who has left austerity in behalf of more promises. However, it might be well to try to secure an explanation from the Governor, or more likely from one of his many spokesmen, as to how he reconciles his statements to possible industrial prospects with ever-increasing local property taxes.

As the state shifts more of the burden of education and welfare to cities, townships, counties and local school districts, the total Ohio tax picture becomes more confused. Ohioans today are digging into their pockets for more tax dollars than ever before. In addition to taxes to local governments the state is collecting more taxes than ever before.

How, in the name of simple honesty, can we overlook what is really happening by merely swallowing a pellet of hot air coated with fakery and worse?

The Governor has one objective, and that is to get past the November 1966 election. Everything that is said and done from this date to that time will be directed to that end.

After that, all bets are off.

Those newspapers now protecting him will begin to justify the need for additional taxes to staff the buildings being built today with borrowed money.

What is now being lauded with a religious fervor will be forgotten in the name of a courageous advocacy of meeting Ohio's needs.

The people will again have been had.

Letters To The Editor

Condemns Article

To the Editor:

I had thought the days of "yellow rag" newspaper reporting had passed with the Hearsts, but it seems I am mistaken. I am referring to your reporter's so-vivid description of the boys who make up the "rock and roll" bands, classifying them as "hoods" who have no regard for churches or any other segment of society which conforms to his ideas of what is "proper."

While I grant you there might be a few rotten apples in the barrel, I can't agree with your generalizations.

These boys come from various backgrounds. Some are regular church-goers, others have put themselves through college with the proceeds of their playing for teen dances; others are paying their own way through college. They see a commercial market for what they have to offer and they provide it — is that so terrible? Also, they are booked for sometimes months in advance and, of course, are not willing to forego making top money for minimum. How many adults would not do the same?

Also, these boys practice on their own time, and pay their own traveling expenses. They work hard to please their customers.

Before your reporter runs a front page story based on his own conclusions, I suggest he dig into his subject and learn a few things before he further condemns these bands.

It seems to me only fair that you run an equally prominent front page story on some of the good aspects of today's teen dances.

Incidentally, I am the mother of a teenage boy who plays in one of these bands. You're very willing to run them down — I dare you to publish another article citing some good examples of today's teens. But then, that wouldn't be sensational journalism!

Editor's Note: We have published many, many stories of the kind you're asking for, Mrs. Howard, and we'll continue to do so.

Against V-N Policy

To the Editor:

. . . Millions of Americans who criticize U.S. intervention or interference in every part of the globe are not disloyal but, on the contrary, are heartfully loyal to the slaughtered soldiers from America, fighting for causes which some of our officials protect.

At present, the Viet Nam intervention is a distaste that has aroused more American protest than any of the century . . .

J. J. Jayson

From The New Councilmen

To the Publisher:

Now that the Board of Elections has published its official tabulation of votes at the Nov. 2 nonpartisan election, we feel that we should communicate our thanks to thousands of our fellow townsmen — in addition to those we have already reached with words of gratitude.

Somewhere along the line we might miss thanking some individual who helped get out the vote, or otherwise participated in an "off year" effort. But we want to make sure that you and your colleagues receive notice of our most sincere appreciation.

As we said election night, we will do our best to honor the decision of the voters in entrusting us with the privilege to serve Columbus. We hope, too, that in our service to the community we justify the faith you showed in supporting our candidacies.

James L. Baumann
M. D. Portman
Donald L. Woodland

'Board Not Representative'

To the Editor:

The solution for making sure that the Board of Trustees of Ohio State University represent the viewpoint of a majority of the people is to keep the men with political pull, the near rich and millionaires, off the board.

Furthermore, the board should be elected in the democratic fashion by the vote of the people as they do in the State of Michigan. Since the trustees are political appointees, they have no responsibility to the people.

What's wrong with the successful small businessmen? Can't doctors, farmers, engineers and small businessmen think?

The present Board of Trustees of Ohio State University class is a limited one. How many people in Ohio are classified as "near rich" or millionaires? That's who are legitimately represented by the Board of Trustees.

Good Response To Appeal

To the Editor:

We just wanted you to know how appreciative we are for your excellent coverage of our need for infant foster homes. The response has been most encouraging, if not overwhelming.

We hope that we shall be working together throughout 1966 for the best possible services and care for the dependent and neglected children of our county.

THE TUGBOATMEN

by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Editor, Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune

It has been 105 years since a 27-year-old Irish immigrant, Michael Moran, climbed off his towpath mules along the Erie Canal and headed down to New York City to found a marine dynasty.

Today the 50 Moran tugs, each with its big white "M" on the black stack and all named for the numerous Moran uncles, aunts and cousins, represent far and away the largest towing concern in the world. Control of the corporation still rests in the family, and Eugene F., Jr., grandson of old Mike, bears the title of commodore.

In the days when old Mike was getting started there were no phone girls to take the orders and no radiomen to dispatch the boats. The tug owner stood at the door of his cubicle office next to the forest of masts. He called to the passing captains to see who would need a tow out to the ebb tide. Or he sent his men in their clanking tubs, with the leaky low-pressure boilers, out to look for sails off Sandy Hook.

It was wide-open free enterprise. There's the classic story of a Moran boat and a rival arriving simultaneously at the side of an inbound windjammer in the Civil War days. Both tugmen began with the offer of a tow to the dock for $100. Then the underbidding got underway while the ship's captain looked happily from one to the other. $75 . . . $50 . . . $25.

Finally, the furious Moran captain bellowed: "Hell, I'll tow you free and buy you a drink in the bargain"

He got the "job."

Recently we pulled the United States away from her mid-Manhattan berth. I was aboard the Alice Moran, one of the two steam tugs still left in the fleet. Our skipper went up on the United States' bridge as docking master, and by walkie-talkie orders to our mate he told us when to butt and when to pull.

We, and the Marie Moran, eased her away from the pier while the Europe-bound passengers rushed excitedly from side to side, and we backed her into mid-channel and shoved her bow in the direction of the Statue of Liberty. A great ship in narrow waters is a helpless thing.

A hundred men with cameras took our picture as we cast off. Women in their orchid corsages all waved. And then she was off down the river with the band playing and the Stars and Stripes flapping from her taffrail.

The best part of the day on a tugboat is when you go churning up the Kill van Kull or the Arthur Kill or Newark Bay, along waterways old New Yorkers have never seen, to attend the rust-streaked freighters, to listen to the shouts of foreign sailors and the squealing of the winches as they slam home the hatch covers.

And there's dinner in the galley with the Filipino cook ladling out the chowder and passing mounds of roast beef and cold ham and platters of potatoes and peas and pie. And the intelligent talk of plain, muscular men in dungarees, much of it in soft Scandinavian accents.

The corruption of the big city falls away. You are a long way from the street gangs of Harlem and the ulcer gulches of midtown and the phoniness of Broadway.

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

'KID' STACKS DRAMATIC DECK

AT CINEMA EAST

SURVIVORS from one of the plane crashes in "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines" are shown here. The hilarious comedy of pioneer aviation is in its 12th week at Cinema East, 4177 E. Broad-st. All seats reserved.

Mix high-stake poker players, racy scenes, a touch of blackmail, add a pinch of good old New Orleans jazz and flavor with stars as Steve McQueen, Edward G. Robinson, Ann-Margret, Tuesday Weld and Joan Blondell. The result, a highly suspenseful movie, "The Cincinnati Kid," now at Hunts Cinestage, 217 N. High-st.

Steve McQueen and Edward G. Robinson square off in a poker game which has all the excitement and tension of an Ohio State-Michigan football game. Attending a card game at a movie may not seem to offer much entertainment. Yet the director, Norm Jewisons, through excellent camera work, good pacing and proper treatment of what could have been a dull story line, grabs the audience attention and keeps it. One actually feels he has been "dealt in" the game. You will probably be as nervous as the two pros.

All interested poker players should attend this show at Hunts Cinestage. While many of the fine points of the game may be over the head of a Saturday night have other things besides cards on their minds. These two people turn in a good performance. Edward G. Robinson and Steve McQueen are great actors and prove it again in "The Cincinnati Kid."

However, in all probability one won't have the distractions of girls like Tuesday Weld and Ann-Margret, who poker player, "The Cincinnati Kid" does give one plenty of food for thought when playing one's next game.

Devotees of poker and spicy women, this show is for you. The dialogue, in many instances, is not Sunday School, but then, neither is poker.

How Does The Draft Work?

Evidence is strong in Franklin County that many registrants and relatives of registrants don't have a very good understanding of the draft — how it works, who gets drafted.

The following guide to the draft is based on up-to-date information provided by Col. Raymond D. Clouse, State Selective Service Director, and Selective Service headquarters in Washington, D.C.:

• Every male has to register within five days of his 18th birthday. If you're away from home, register at the nearest local board office. If you're in the service, you've got to register when you leave active duty.

• Within a month you'll receive a classification questionnaire.

The information on this questionnaire will determine your draft status. The board will notify you of your classification by using one of 18 different codes. (See accompanying story.)

• If you think the classification unfair, you may request a personal appearance before the draft board, provided the request is made within 10 days after you receive the notification. The law requires the draft board to give you this hearing.

• Student deferments are not automatic. They are at the discretion of local boards. The important requirement is that students must be pursuing a full-time course, leading to a degree in the normal time, to qualify.

• There are ways of fulfilling your military obligation without getting drafted. A student may enter the ROTC or Naval ROTC programs, or anybody may join an organized Reserve or National Guard unit, serving on active duty from four to six months and attending drills for six years. This is becoming increasingly difficult, however, because vacancies in these units are closing up.

• You can obtain an "occupational deferment" provided your employer requests deferment and the board decides that your job is necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety and interest.

• You can also get deferred if you work on a farm, providing your employer requests deferment and the board decides your work is necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety and interest, and a replacement is not available.

Will Appear At Mershon

Jan Peerce, famous Metropolitan Opera star, will appear at the Mershon Auditorium Jan. 12.

Peerce sings many times each year with the "Met" as well as presenting several concerts throughout the United States and Canada. Considered one of the greatest artists of our day, Peerce commands the high respect of both musicians and critics.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. and only a limited number of tickets is available.

The Spectator: Newspaper That Means Business

Classic Comedy Revue Opens Jan. 3 At Hartman

A bit of Americana will be at the Hartman Theatre beginning Jan. 3 for one week. John O'Donnell presents a hilarious musical revue, "Those Wonderful Days of Burlesque."

To some, burlesque may cause raised eyebrows. To others, burlesque is thought of as the mother of many of the great comedians of our day. "Those Wonderful Days of Burlesque" has taken the classic comedy scenes of old burlesque and reproduced them—scenes that made famous Milton Berle, Danny Thomas and many others.

The stars of the show are Hope Diamond and Charlie Robinson.

Hope is no diamond in the rough when it comes to talent and beauty. She has many TV credits to her name.

Charlie Robinson is considered one of the greatest comedians in show business. Robinson is an old hand in his profession. He appeared on the first television broadcast in 1945.

According to the trade papers, Those Wonderful Days of Burlesque promises to be a real knee-slapper.

Cut off from the worship of the divine, leisure becomes laziness and work inhuman. —John Piper.

'Family Planning' Is Topic Of Rosary Altar Meeting

"Family Planning 1966" will be the topic discussed by Dr. John Boutselis and Rev. Arthur Dimond at the St. Pius X Rosary Altar Society meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 5 8 p.m. in the parish school. Dr. Boutselis and Fr. Dimond are co-directors of the Family Planning Center of the Columbus Diocese.

Dr. Boutselis is assistant professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at OSU Medical School and chairman of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Mt. Carmel Hospital. He is well known for his work with a new drug which has been used successfully in clinical tests in family planning, in his work as medical director of the Family Planning Center.

Fr. Dimond is religious director of the Center and also serves as instructor of Religion and Ethics at Mt. Carmel School of Nursing.

A "question and answer" period will follow the discussion. All women of the parish and neighboring parishes have been invited to attend the meeting and social hour which follows.

Mrs. Gary McCaw and Mrs. Charles Smith will act as hostesses.

A bake sale is scheduled after all masses on Sunday, Jan. 16, according to Mrs. Paul Jones and Mrs. Galird Ebright, co-chairmen of the project.

Mrs. Edward Fry, religious activities chairman, will discuss details for an Evening of Recollection to be held on Tuesday, Mar. 8, at St. Theresa's Shrine on E. Broad-st.

Mrs. Terrence Knott has announced Feb. 5 as the date of the Mardi-Gras sponsored by St. Pius X Parish to be held at Valley Dale.

SERVICE PLANNED

New Year's Eve services will be conducted at Reynoldsburg Methodist Church at 11 p.m. A service of special vocal and instrumental music is planned.

Holy Spirit Church Hosts Ecumenical Program Jan. 5

An ecumenical evening of recollection will be sponsored by the Third Order of St. Francis Wednesday, Jan. 5 at Holy Spirit Catholic Church, 4383 E. Broad-st.

The program will begin with Mass at 6 p.m., with lunch to follow at 6:45. The first conference will be at 7:15 p.m. There will be a question and answer period, and the evening will close with benediction at 9.

Fr. Ogurchock

Fr. James Ogurchock, a member of the Third Order and assistant pastor of Holy Spirit Church, will lead the conferences on "Christ's Epiphany and Ours." Fr. Ogurchock is assistant director of vocations in the Columbus Diocese and a member of the Diocesan High School Religion Board. He is also assistant spiritual director of the Franciscans' Spouse of the Holy Spirit fraternity.

A native of Akron, Fr. Ogurchock was ordained in 1958. His brother, Fr. John Ogurchock, is a Maryknoll Father and two sisters, Sister Johanna and Sister Mary Catherine, are members of the Cleveland diocesan Sisters of St. Joseph.

In emphasizing the spirit of ecumenism, an invitation has been extended to all non-Catholics to participate in the evening of recollection. Catholics are urged to invite their non-Catholic relatives and friends.

Although reservations are not necessary, they would be appreciated in order to plan the lunch. For reservations call 866-8244.

Area Lanes To Host Cancer Pin Tourney

Aero Lanes, 3650 E. Fifth-av, has been chosen by the Columbus BPA as one of the four houses to hold the semi-finals of the "Bowl Down Cancer" tournament which will start in 35 member-establishments Monday.

The qualifying round, based on league scores plus 80 percent handicap, will be free to those who fill out an entry blank.

THOSE WHO qualify at each center during the two weeks (Jan. 3-16) may return to the same spot to enter the quarter-finals, at which time a $3 entry fee will be charged.

Of this amount, 75 cents goes to the American Cancer Society, 75 cents will be set aside for cash prizes, $1.05 will be the cost of bowling three games of headpin; and 45 cents is for tournament expense.

Half of the men and women who bowl in the quarter-finals will be eligible to compete in the semi-finals in mid-February, where another $3 entry will be assessed.

FROM EACH of the four semi-finals will come one man and one woman to bowl in the county finals, for guaranteed first prizes of $250. Each person bowling in quarter-finals has an equal opportunity to win $100.

Semi-finalists who will bowl at Aero will hail from Amos, Gahanna, Arena, Holliday, Reynoldsburg, Main, Canal, Jewish Center and Aero.

All-Business Cage Tourney Ends Tonight

A championship game which will pit the top two business colleges in the Midwest against one another is scheduled for an 8:30 p.m. tip-off time tonight at Hilltonia Junior High School.

Host for the two-day, first-ever interstate all-business college tournament is Bliss College whose head coach Jim Redman came up with the idea for the unique tourney.

Tourney entries — besides Bliss — include Duff's Business College (Pittsburgh), Raedel College (Ft. Wayne, Ind.), Eastern Michigan College of Commerce (Pt. Huron, Mich.), Sullivan Business College (Louisville, Ky.) and Mountain State College (Parkersburg, W. Va.).

Games preceding the 8:30 p.m. finale tonight in the double-elimination tourney are scheduled at 10 a.m., 11:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

The 'Noisebugs' . . .

Have you ever wondered why the outdoor world is so derned relaxing and soothing? I'll tell you why, it's quiet.

There is nothing so healing to the tattered soul or confused mind as just sittin' out on a creek bank hoping your bobber won't disappear.

JUST AS surely as the litterbug steals something from your American heritage, so also does the noisebug. He steals the very things you snuck off to find.

The NOISEBUG is much worse than the litterbug. You can close your eyes and avoid the heaps of beer cans beside the campsites but you cannot get away from that misbegotten ship's captain in swaddling brain that storms down from the landing and drowns both your thoughts and your better half.

I'm leading up to a proposed amendment to your American heritage, the ruination of your favorite lake. You bought it with your fishing license money or your small motor fees but now the quiet and gentle attitude of many of Ohio's lakes may soon be blasted by the stump-jumping antics of the few people who own large outboard motors.

ON JAN. 13 in Hearing Room No. 2, Ohio Departments Bldg., Columbus at 9:30 a.m. the Division of Parks and Recreation (in the person of its Chief Mel Rebholtz) will propose to radically change the horsepower of many of our finest fishing lakes.

Basically, here is a summary of the changes:

Lakes up to 200 surface acres — only electric motors (no horsepower limitation)

Lakes 200 to 750 acres—up to and including 10 h.p.

Lakes over 750 acres — unlimited horsepower.

I SEE nothing wrong with the first listing if it had a horsepower limit of 5 h.p. The electric motors are perfectly quiet, clean and slow. These operators would not steal someone else's solitude.

The big difference will be from the present six to ten h.p. on many good fishing lakes. Please bear in mind that the hydroplane racers use old Mercury KG 10 motors. There is nothing faster.

One ten horse motor would ruin the day for an unlimited number of fishermen. You just can't catch many fish hanging on the side of your boat — from either side of the gunn'l.

I AM FULLY aware that the major motor companies have statistics that say motors do not hurt the fish. I am just as aware that they want to up-grade their sales so badly that they have ful time lobbyists working in most states and the press parties they throw are second to none in the outdoor industries.

If you have an outdoor writer nearby that is promoting the use of larger motors, ask him how many times he has flown free of charge to a motor factory and add the rest up in your mind.

Many of our state lakes have soil banks. They are much more quickly eroded by heavy wakes than by the fishermen trolling by. Just this once, let the majority prevail upon the state to leave things as they are. Don't litter the air.

THE ALL-POWERFUL League of Ohio Sportsmen has come out in opposition to this proposal as have the 28 allied conservation clubs of Franklin County. All I'm trying to do is get some action out of the rest of the 800,000 fishing license buyers.

The motor license buyers deserve their druthers too. Out of the 150,000 each year, over 100,000 licenses are bought for motors six horse ppwer and under.

I'll be at the hearing — on my feet about half the time. If you can't make it, drop me a card or letter and I'll report the number of readers for and against the changes.

ADDRESS IT to THE MAVERICK, P.O. Box 6353, Columbus, Ohio (43224).

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING FOR REZONING

A public hearing will be held by the Council of the City of Whitehall, Ohio, on Tuesday, February 1, 1966, at 7:30 P.M., at City Hall, 360 South Yearling Road, to consider the request of Simeon Enterprises, Inc. (Case No. 230) to rezone from General Commercial District to Industrial District, Lot No. 199 of the Lowrie Bros. East Broad Street Acre Allotment (also known as 3618 East Main St.) being located directly east of the Whitehall Municipal Garage. The proposed use of the property is a plastic injection moulding plant.

The petition, legal description, plot plan, photoy report of the Planning and Zoning Commission, and proposed ordinance are on file in this office.

Bearcat-Cardinal Clash Highlights Mat Fare; Worthington, P-V, UA Take Wins

Ten area grappling teams break the post-holiday mat ice this week as high school wrestling digs into its 1966 schedule.

Central (0-1) re-opens competition Tuesday by hosting Circleville with five other matches scheduled a week from today.

BIGGEST dual attraction of the week (and possibly the season) unfolds Thursday at Brookhaven where the defending City champion Bearcats (1-0) play host to Worthington's Cardinals (2-0), '65-'66 champs of the CBL.

Gary Allen's Brookhaven squad rallied strongly to drop CL contender West in its only outing this season while Bob McMahan's Cards have lost only two of 22 individual matches en route to their two wins.

The list of area unbeatens will be trimmed to two in another pair of Thursday matches as Whetstone (1-0) visits Eastmoor (1-0) and Mifflin (2-0) heads for North (1-0).

HERE IS THE complete schedule:

TUESDAY

Circleville at Central (4 p.m.)

THURSDAY

Whetstone at Eastmoor (4 p.m.

Worthington at Brookhaven (4 p.m.)

Jonathan Alder at Bexley (4:30)

Marion-Franklin at South (4:30)

Mifflin at North.

In a light schedule of activity last week, Worthington clobbered Jonathan Alder, 38-3, Arlington stopped Bexley, 29-12, Pleasant View trimmed South, 24-19, and Newark spoiled Central's opener, 30-15.

HERE ARE the individual rundowns:

WORTHINGTON-ALDER

The Cards missed a shutout by losing a decision at 145 but there was little doubt of the outcome after Bob McMahan's crew piled up a 25-0 lead.

Bruce Day (127), Roger Ramey (133) and Mark Folk (heavyweight) got pins for the Cardinals while Dick Donovan (103), Jeff Fisher (112), Irwin Smith (120), Mike Russell (138), Dan Simcox (145), and John Chrystal (165) garnered decisions.

FRANK LOWERY (175) got Worthington's other five points, winning by default.

ARLINGTON-BEXLEY

Back-to-back pins by Terry Barnhill (145), Mike Saunders (154) and Ted Tetirick (165) wrapped up the Bears' win over the Lions.

UA took a quick 6-0 lead on decisions by Bruce Hardie (103) and Nathan Nietz (112) but Bexley's Steve Sloan (120) and Steve Gutter (127) put the Lions back even with three-pointers.

BILL HARTMAN (133) got five for UA on a pin but Bexley's Johnson (138) kept the Lions close (11-9) with a

Parker Boys Load Hartley Cage Lineup

By BOB WHITMAN

After veteran guard Steve McGrew and Jack Geist are introduced to the crowd before a Bishop Hartley basketball game, the rest is quite routine. All the announcer must remember is three names — Doug, Denny and Rodney.

They comprise the Parker trio that starts for the Hartley Hawks.

A lot of guesswork is taken out of a Hartley game, because if a basket is scored that a fan doesn't see, it's a safe bet that a Parker scored it. With three to pick from, one name hits 60 percent of the Hartley starting quintet.

THE PARKER BOYS, Doug, a senior, Denny, a junior, and Rod, a sophomore, are not just sent into battle because of the novelty of having three brothers starting. All are depended on and needed.

Each excels in his special field—for Doug it's rebounding, for Denny it's scoring and passing, and with Rod it's a little of each.

"We play together all the time," Doug said, "and we know each other's moves and what the other is thinking.

"All the time" means almost since they were big enough to hold a basketball. The trio were a grade school threat also with each a regular when Doug was in the eighth grade.

The first time they all made the same team was when Rod was in the third grade.

"In practice if one doesn't do the job he is capable of doing, the other two get on him," Doug added.

"We feel free to jump each other before anyone else on the team," Denny said.

DOUG STANDS 6-4½ and weighs 195, Denny is 6-1 and 170 ("the skinny one," according to Doug) and Rod is 6-2 and 175.

In arguing to change the quote about his size, Denny good-naturedly poked Doug and said "come on, say I'm the little one. It sounds better."

Even starters McGrew and Geist feel "that not only do they work together but we all work together."

"We play together better this year than last," McGrew added.

THE BROTHER ACT spread like a fever. Hartley fans couldn't wait until Rod started playing, as if they knew that things would start picking up with the mild-mannered sophomore.

Hartley had lost its first four games until Rod finally put together a complete game.

ROD DIDN'T play in the first three games and played only a half in the fourth game. He sat out most of that time because of foul trouble.

Coach Dick Geyer feels that the boys are suited to each other. "Sometimes they throw passes to themselves that only they can catch," he notes.

All five of them (McGrew and Geist included) work together nicely, And I haven't seen any signs of favoritism," he added.

DOUG NETTED 63 points in five games for a 12.4 average, Denny has hit 83 points for a 16.6 mark and Rod has played two games neting 29 points for 13.2 points per game.

Doug, Denny and Rod are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parker.

THE NAME'S THE SAME on three Hartley jackets which the Parker brothers hold. All three—(left to right) Ron, Doug and Denny—start for the Hartley Hawks.

WALNUT RIDGE'S WRESTLING STARTERS

THERE'S PLENTY of mat action in between but Walnut Ridge coach Rick Cremeli and his Scottie wrestlers have one eye on the big City League Meet (Feb. 18-19 at South) these days. W-R starters include (from left, kneeling): manager Craig Koehl, Terry Roberts (103), Dave Sheets (112), George Stoner (120), Kerry Endsley (127), Dave Carr (133) and Jim Risser (138). Standing: manager Larry Barbera, Dave Saffel (145), Ken Hoff (154), Bob Kautz (165), John Cruse (178), heavyweight Ron Remy and coach Cermeli. (Photo by Firestone).

Holiday Cage Card Is Light

By BOB WHITMAN

East, Linden and West continued to hold their vise-like grip on the City League, literally choking members with their swift offenses and miserly defenses.

The Tigers romped over Brookhaven, 103-48 for the city's first century mark of the year. Linden dropped Central 78-69 and West tripped Marion Franklin, 72-48.

In other action last Wednesday night, Eastmoor stopped Walnut Ridge, 72-49; South trimmed North, 49-43; St. Mary stopped Fairbanks, 61-46, Whitehall lost to Mt. Vernon, 67-55, and Worthington stopped Bexley 46-43.

EAST BROKE 10 scorers into the column in its 103 point spree with Gil Matthews netting 26 and Vance Carr scoring 21 to lead all scorers.

Steve Campbell scored 12 in vain for Brookhaven.

Linden's Ed Young poured in 26 points as the Panthers got by Central. Ernie Walker's 17 markers paced the Pirates.

WEST, LED impressively by Jerry Francis, marked up victim number nine against no defeats.

Francis scored 36 as the Cowboys clipped fired up Marion Franklin.

Gary Cochran's 17 points were enough for the Warrior ride over Walnut Ridge.

Joe Hayes' 17 slowed North, 49-43.

STEVE GASSMAN rolled up 29 points in the St. Mary ramble over Fairbanks. The spunky senior netted 11 goals and seven foul shots.

Stan Robinson was the big man for Whitehall but his 19 points couldn't turn back Mt. Vernon's charge.

Worthington nipped Bexley in a non-league battle last Wednesday with Bob Hill's 12 points leading the way.

DAVE JOHNSTON'S 17 couldn't offset balanced Cardinal scoring.

Bearcats—

decision.

But UA then added the three pins (plus a verdict at 175 by Wes Bates) to offset Bexley's only other win — a decision by Dennis Walker—at heavyweight.

SOUTH-PLEASANT VIEW

The Panthers mapped a two-match loss streak at the Bulldogs' expense, stringing four straight wins (from 133 to 154) to nab the win.

THE LEAD seesawed through the first four matches as P-V took a decision at 103 (Jim Krebs) and a pin at 120 (Rick Erbe's third in three outings this season).

South countered with a pin at 112 (Kevin Childs) and 127 (Perin Moore) to set up the Panthers' comeback.

Randy Good (133) started the P-V rally with a pin. Parker Johnson (138) and Bruce Bostick (145) followed with decisions and Bill Stacey's pin at 154 provided a 24-10 bulge.

THE BULLDOGS, needing three straight pins to pull out victory, got only decisions (Louis Robinson at 165, George Harper at 178 and Roger Caldwell at heavyweight) to fall five points short of victory.

CENTRAL-NEWARK

The Wildcats led all the way in downing a game Pirate unit.

Newark raced off to a 15-0 lead until Central got rolling with four straight decisions (Harold Frasure at 127, Tom Terry at 133, Mike Russell at 138 and Lucious Byrd at 145) to cut the Pirate deficit to 15-12.

THE WILDCATS won at 154 via a pin but Benny Bowman (165) kept the Pirates in the match (15-20) with two weight classes remaining.

Newark sewed up the win however, with a pin at 175—adding the icing with five more points at heavyweight.

Kegler's Korner

Holidays are wonderful days for open bowling — at least those five at Holiday Lanes think so. In one jackpot game, the lowest score was 214 and it was rolled by John Smith. No fooling!

Another five, but in league, hit a new pin high when the Southern Bowling squad in Northern Lights All-Star League set a new 3265 pin high with 1117, 1079 and 1069 with Bob Shoemaker contributing a heart-breaking 298.

REMEMBER Andy Varipapa, the pro whose ball performed so many fantastic tricks? With Frank Clause, AMF rep., he recently toured the world, the first to West Berlin, the latter to Australia.

BPAA and Burroughs have teamed in an unusual computer which stores bowling knowledge — scores and personal statistics — and spews them out on command to give a reporter or TV-caster facts without digging — even as complex as average height or weight of bowlers in tournament.

Handicapped bowlers (arthritis, crippled, etc) now may use certain devises if they carry a special ABC or WIBC identification card. Such devices were formerly illegal.

REMEMBER when they used to have a cone of chalk on ball returns to dry your hands?

Main Lanes presently has five men averaging over 200 (including Dick Braun, manager) and six women over 180. Their six junior and four senior leagues are in charge of Mel Krzeczowski.

The Star Room Scratch is their oldest league for women.

A CALIFORNIA bowl has organized a Wonder Club for open bowlers where they pay $100 a year membership dues (using major credit cards) and can do all the open bowling they wish in member establishments for a year.

There will be special social events and a newsletter for club members. Sounds good for heavy bowlers — but the casuals feel it is pretty steep.

One more step to a "country-club" type bowling center.

Tip of the week: The backswing is the determining factor in speed. To increase speed raise the backswing, but never more than shoulder height.

And remember that a fast ball, if not controlled, is more likely to leave wide splits.

Fearless Predictions

Not much for the magic wonder to pick this week, and Wednesday's results came in too late for an up-to-date account.

At present the "Fearless" record stands 102-38 for 755. Walnut Ridge at Portsmouth West at Marietta Whetstone at Bellaire Mifflin at Gahanna New Albany at Dublin

Azaren Skating Duo Heads For Midwestern Competition

Columbus will be well represented at the Midwestern (figure skating) championships in Colorado Springs thanks to the performances of Judy and Kenny Azaren, 1562 Peace-pl, at the Eastern Great Lakes Regional championships held last weekend at the OSU Rink.

Judy and her partner (Mark Beck from Florida) placed second in the Silver Dance event, thus advancing to the Midwestern competition.

THE PAIR took a second in EGL competition (Bronze Dance) last year and added another second at the Midwestern.

Judy's younger brother, Kenny, also will accompany the pair to Colorado by taking a first in the Novice Men's competition.

Kenny took a second in the EGL juvenile men going last year and added a third at the Midwestern.

JUDY IS a senior at Eastmoor while Kenny is in the eighth grade at Johnson Park.

Both are also excellent students — Judy fourth in a class of 388 students, Kenny a member of the Jr. National Honor Society at Johnson Park.

Sporting Chances

THE FINAL 1965 Cleveland Brown football statistics released the other day included one surprising item.

The Browns were outgained in net yards this season, 4,398 to 4,712.

Walter Roberts, led the team in kickoff returns with an average 27.4 yards per carry. Leroy Kelley was second with a 25.9 mark.

Gary Collins led the Browns in two departments. He caught 50 passes for 884 yards and 10 touchdowns, and also led with a 46.7 yard punting distance.

Jim Brown picked up 5.3 yard per carry and scored 126 points.

In scoring, Lou Groza booted for 93, and Gary Collins scored 60 points.

Frank Ryan completed 119 of 243 for a 49 percent marskmenship and 1,751 yards He tossed for 18 touchdowns.

Overall attendance for 1965 was 926,338. The Browns played before 557,283 home fans.

Tax Study Commission May Erupt In Partisan War

By ADRIENNE BOSWORTH
Spectator Spec. Correspondent

The Ohio Tax Study Commission, created by the last legislature to make a comprehensive examination of state and local taxes, contains the ingredients for a partisan war.

Taxes is an explosive issue at any time. An election year makes it doubly so. The commission is ordered by statute to "submit recommended legislation to the 107th General Assembly . . ." Therefore, the bulk of its work will be conducted during the campaign for the major state offices and legislative seats.

Even before the commission has gotten down to serious work, there have been incidents foreshadowing an escalated battle.

Democratic leaders of the house and senate fired the first public blast after the governor named former senate majority leader C. Stanley Mechem as temporary chairman. Sen. Frank King and Rep. A. G. Landeene accused the administration of trying to whitewash the study.

Democrats are cognizant of the mileage Gov. James A. Rhodes has received from his "no new taxes" policy. They also realize that the last Democratic administration raised taxes. Both factors seem to preclude objectivity on the part of the Democratic commission members.

"I'm not going to come up with a plan for new taxes," said Sen. Charles Carney, D-Youngstown. "Rhodes got his chairman and his secretary (former Finance Director John Skipton). They'll have to come up with the plans and I'm going to look them over very carefully."

To the discomfort of some of the Republican members of the commission, Finance Director Richard Krabach presented the Democrats with some ammunition in a speech before the annual meeting of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

Krabach, often an administrative spokesman, appeared to set down guidelines for the commission which is responsible to the legislature, not the administration.

He indicated he felt the commission should deal with adjustments in existing tax formulas and stay away from matters involving the basic philosophy of taxes.

The finance director spoke of tax patterns that insure successful competition in the sale of products and employment of personnel. He spoke disdainfully of tax studies that investigate social needs and make comparisons with other states, explaining, "they say the one spending the most is the best and the one spending the least is the worst."

Yet when the bill creating the study commission was in the legislature, Republican Rep. Charles Kurfess of Bowling Green, key sponsor, envisioned a detailed look at state and local revenues in comparison to the growing need for public services.

Kurfess expected recommendations for major reform of Ohio's 30-year-old tax structure to come from the study.

There is no doubt that if the tax study commission erupts into a political battle, each member will line up on his party's side. As a result, Ohioans can expect political nitpicking to the detriment of sound recommendations for tax reform.

The only hope for the commission would seem to be a hands-off policy on the part of the administration, Democratic challengers for administrative offices and leaders of both parties. Unfortunately, that would appear to be impossible in an election year.

Enough to treat any 6 or 12 volt automotive-type battery
VX-6 ENDS Battery Worries
Did you know your battery can last the life of your car?
Money-Back Guarantee
contained with each unit.
Open the car hood and look at the battery. The green or white formation you see on the terminals and posts is lead sulphate (sulphation). —Your battery is deteriorating. This is also taking place inside your battery, building and growing on the plates and clogging the pores that absorb the fluids in the cells. Cold weather raises the viscosity of the fluids making battery operations more difficult.
SULPHATION WILL GRADUALLY AND SURELY BE THE DEATH OF YOUR BATTERY.
One application of VX-6 added to any new or older battery prevents and cures this battery cancer. Don't wait until your battery fails — prevent it now.
VX-6 is positively not harmful to batteries. Even major battery companies will tell you this. Also, it is harmless to the skin or property.
VX-6 is used by railroads, contractors, truck and auto fleets, municipalities, factories and industries of all types.
For larger type batteries write for information.

Is The Draft Unjust?—

to "prolong" the inevitable.

Another local man, Willard Starrett, 21, 4398 Kumler-rd, doesn't really know what his classification is. He says he suffers from a back injury and that he has received a slip of paper telling him he is "unfit for current standards."

He has not received a numerical classification and is uncertain if he is 1-A or 4-F. He says he finds it hard looking for a job "with any kind of permanency" until he is officially notified. He has hung in this kind of limbo since last March.

There's Edward Metzger, 21, 287 Westpahl-av, in Whitehall who's uncertain now, too. He was originally classified as 1-Y because of a reoccurring knee injury he sustained as a football player in high school.

"They're calling up 1-Ys now," he said, "and I wonder if I'll get called. I can't help but disagree with those who feel that all athletes are healthy enough for military service. When I played football, a trainer kept my knee taped. Who'd tape my knee in a rice paddy?"

Just what are the major injustices of the draft? Critics site these most frequently:

• The draft is not a universal military training system about half the registrants will never see service because of deferments. In Ohio, for example, to achieve the January quota of 2,122 men, the state's selective service board will reportedly call up 4,000 men).

• The draft tends to discriminate. There are undoubtedly those who can't afford college to delay their service.

• The draft favors those who marry early (until regulations were recently changed). Criminals and the morally unfit are rejected and, in essence, favored. So are farmers, ministers and those mentally and physically inferior.

These injustices are not new. They've existed since the conception of the draft. Today, however, they seem to be more and more used as tools to beat the draft rather than as qualifications to insure a strong military.

And yet the law bumps and rocks along with no immediate signs of change. It's a law that few like but it's a law that refuses to go away. It's a law that is now moving in mysterious ways.

And out of it comes a man like 21-year-old Starrett who gives the draftee's classic lament.

"I don't like it. I don't want to get drafted. But, the way I feel is, if you gotta go, you gotta go."

TO 1st STATE...

The only Columbus bank to offer you these 2 wonderful ways to make more money!

for the Saver with an Active Account...

DAILY INTEREST*

at 4% per annum

you receive interest on every dollar for every day it is in your 1st State Savings Account regardless of when you make a withdrawal!

You Needn't Wait for Special Interest Payment Dates before making a Withdrawal. Interest is figured, not on some arbitrary schedule of interest periods, but on the daily balance in your account.

Interest is Compounded Quarterly. You get interest on your interest (as well as on your principal) four times a year . . . April 1, July 1, October 1, and January 1.

Withdrawals without Penalty. There is no service charge on withdrawals. There is no loss of interest earned, provided a fifty dollar balance remains in your account at the end of each quarterly period. The state intangible tax is paid for you.

Bonus Interest Days Every Month. All deposits you make by the 10th of any month earn interest from the first of that month. You get 10 extra days each month in which to make your savings deposits without loss of interest. Every account is FDIC-Protected up to $10,000.

for the "Investment Saver"...

guaranteed annual income!

First State Bank Special Savings Certificates bear interest at the rate of 4½% per annum and mature just one year from date of issue. May be systematically renewed.

Interest starts immediately and is paid to you by check each quarter or each month, as you prefer. Your investment can yield an even greater return if you have the interest automatically deposited in a 4% Daily Interest Savings Account; your interest will earn interest . . . compounded quarterly!

Special Savings Certificates are issued under the regulations and procedures of Federal and State banking authorities. Our capital-to-deposit ratio makes us the strongest bank in Columbus! Each investor is fully insured to $10,000 by an agency of the U.S. Government; this FDIC protection is available only at a commercial bank. A husband and wife may invest up to $30,000 and be fully insured . . . up to $70,000 for a family of three.

Market value of your investment is guaranteed; no fluctuations! These are not "anticipated" earnings; they're certain . . . sure! sec's may be used as 100% loan collateral. The State intangible tax is paid for you.

First State Bank 4½% Special Savings Certificates are issued in amounts of $1,000 or more to Individuals, Businesses, Associations, and other Organizations.

First State Bank Savings Account deposits made on or before January 10th will earn daily interest at 4% per annum from January 1st! This enables you to transfer funds from other sources without loss of interest. If you wish, we'll arrange the transfer for you. Fill in and mail coupon below.

The Quiet Turmoil

Franklin County school teachers tell The Spectator that classroom violence is no stranger to them. Top Administrators in this area, on the other hand, tend to agree that cases of student offenders are "isolated" and no real problem at all. Is it a matter of the incidents never reaching the proper higher levels? Are violence cases glossed over by area principals? The answer lies somewhere and The Spectator examines both sides in this special, exclusive report.

One teacher in seven knows of at least one student who has committed an act of physical violence against a teacher or principal in his school during a single year.

This statistic was included in a recent report by the National Education Association, based on a survey of 1,125 high schools throughout the nation.

A Spectator random sampling of more than 50 high school teachers in Franklin County indicates that this kind of violence is no stranger here.

Most teachers said they believe Columbus has a serious problem involving harassment and physical violence inflicted on teachers by students. However, school administrators interviewed said they do not believe the "problem" is severe.

Dr. Harold Eibling, superintendent of Columbus Public Schools, said: "I don't think our problem is greater than that of any other major city, and it is less than that of most cities."

Eibling termed the recent bombings at the homes of the principal and four teachers at Whetstone High School as "an exception rather than the rule."

Thomas J. Quick, superintendent of the Franklin County Schools, agreed with Eibling.

But teachers point to court cases that tell of personal experiences involving harrassment, threats and violence.

One said: "A kid picked up a hammer. He said he was going to crown me with it. I told him he had better use it, because I was going to take it away from him.

"I went after him and he dropped the hammer and ran into the hall. I brought him back and shook him up a little. I didn't strike him, but I did tear his shirt."

The teacher said he later was "called on the carpet" about the incident by the school principal. "Administrators don't want publicity; they abhor it," he said. "I don't know why."

The man's complaint about fear of publicity appears to be one of the pet peeves of many local teachers.

A twenty-year veteran of the Columbus Public School system said: "I honestly believe most administrators would rather allow a problem to fester in the dark than to bring it into the daylight where it can be dealt with.

"Everybody—and I mean the teachers and parents too— seems to have a mortal fear of headlines," she said.

Another teacher said the school principal refused to take disciplinary action against a student who frequently sent her unsigned obscene letters.

She said she and her husband compared the handwriting on themes written by her students to that of the letters. "When we found matching handwriting, I went to the principal," she said. "He told me he would check into it."

She said she questioned the principal two weeks later and was told the case had been "dropped." She said he told her he could not "take the chance" of accusing the student because the parents "might try to cause trouble."

These are just a few of the incidents told to Spectator reporters. Most of the teachers who talked refused to permit their names to be used for publication.

Other incidents gleaned from newspaper files of the last five years revealed cases of local teachers who had been threatened, slapped, beaten, kicked, stoned, stabbed and "molested."

But apparently no one has put this violence into perspective. Eibling said the Columbus Board of Education does not have a compilation of the incidents "because the cases are so rare that statistics would be meaningless."

However, the incidents are serious enough to warrant legislative action.

THE SPECTATOR

OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

Robert Burdock, Publisher | Don R. Beckman, Advertising Director | John Auble, Jr., Managing Editor | R. H. Rogers, Business Manager

Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, February 10, 1966

The Flickering Lantern

Students of journalism at Ohio State university are learning a hard lesson in newspaper reality, not in the classroom, but in the clinic of the newsroom of The Lantern.

The student journalists complain the university newspaper is being "censored" through economic pressure from faculty sources. If, indeed, this is true it is lamentable from an academic standpoint.

As long as the university administration holds the purse strings of The Lantern's operation such censorship is always latently possible.

It's a bitter fact of life that the chap who pays the piper has a strong influence on the selection of tunes.

But the piper, as well as the student journalist, has a choice. He can hang up his flute, or his typewriter ribbon.

Or, determine to struggle along without a generous patron.

A financially strong newspaper can even turn the tables on the patrons. There are those newspapers so economically entrenched that they can tyrannize the very people who support them.

Waterman Made Waves

Columbus Attorney Joseph Waterman is in the news again this week. He felt he spotted a discrepancy in revised election regulations and brought the matter of signatures necessary on a petition to the public's attention.

There are, undoubtedly, many critics who'll accuse Waterman of nit-picking. Let's hope not. Let's hope that the people of Central Ohio haven't slipped into such a state of apathy that they scorn alertness.

Whether Waterman's right or wrong is not the question. The thing that should be mentioned is the fact that Central Ohio has people who keep their eyes open and who will stand up and be counted.

Waterman is, himself, a candidate in the 62nd Ohio House District. If he is elected this sense of alertness is to be praised.

If there's anything we do not need in Ohio politics, it's elected officials who shy away from controversy . . . elected officials who "don't make waves" because they fear losing friends at the polls.

It's the only way taxpayers will ever get their money's worth.

Two Can Be A Crowd

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

There's one in every bar.

He's the man who sits near the booths, watches, waits and pounces on the first unsuspecting slob he can find.

A customer walks in, parks himself in the booth, quietly orders a beer, stretches in contemplation and this character nails him right to the woodwork.

"Yesss there . . . say, I noticing you're drinking Blutz beer, fine beer, drink it myself . . . Ya' mind if I sit down, thank you . . . Now I'm not one to just butt in but I couldn't help noticing . . ."

And on and on through selling his car, through politics, through religion, through labor, through management . . . the guy's a regular talking machine. This bar hawk talks so fast he even orders your second beer for you without so much as a semicolon.

Faced with this situation recently, I tried insults.

"I don't think a man who works for the street cleaning department is qualified to revamp the workings of city management."

It was like trying to stop a forest fire with a quart of gasoline.

"Not qualified . . . now listen, young man . . ."

He was off on his entire life history, replete with emphasis on the responsible positions he had held.

The next stratagem was silence. It was then he brought into play the gimmick of force. "Now, I'm right here, aren't I, tell me if I'm not." Silence had all the quieting power of a sunrise bomb test.

The next gambit was to make him feel inferior. I mentioned a fictitious but fabulous salary. Undaunted by the attempt, he proceeded with a well-rehearsed lecture on enjoying life without money. Inferiority was impossible to sell.

In desperation, I pointed out some other people I'd never met. "He," I would say, "is a fine judge of that. In fact I think he's an authority. Perhaps he could help you."

Distraction had the effect of an aspirin on a migraine.

The talking machine droned on with the hypnotic effect of a shining, swinging object.

There was only one escape. While going out the door, I saw him perched on his stool, coolly waiting for his next victim. I remember him as a sort of idle-hour vulture.

They Said It

". . . doctors today are so loaded with cases that they are forced to limit their response to calls. If anybody has an idea that the situation is bad today, wait until medicare gets under way . . . Every hypochrondiac in the country (eligible for assistance under the new medicare legislation) will be insisting that he's sick, must have attention and that the government says he is entitled to it, must get it and the government will pay for it"—Gilbertsville (N.Y.) Calling Ohioans

By The Spectator's
MICHAEL V. DISALLE

Bill White was ruled out as a possible Republican primary candidate for governor. He has been a candidate for office several times before and, although it is possible that his petitions were not technically correct, it does seem that the incumbent's friends were overly anxious to disqualify him.

It certainly does not seem that White could've been considered a serious threat to the large, well-oiled political machine. However, it might well have given the anti-Rhodes Republicans a rallying point.

Perhaps the Republican organization people who had the rug pulled out from under them before the national convention might have cast a primary vote of displeasure as could have the Goldwater people who were also left high and dry.

If these two categories were joined by the educators who vote largely in the Republican primary, the total vote secured by Bill White might have been larger than his 1962 total. This might have damaged the invincibility myth that is now being circulated.

On the other front, there are also some interesting developments.

Most of the press was impatient during the period preceding the filing date.

Although most of the papers were already certain of supporting the incumbent,

The White Wash-Out

they could hardly wait to find out which Democrat they were going to oppose.

The technique now is to say that Frazier Reams, Jr., is a nice, young fellow and might be all right later on.

For some of these papers, the time will never be right to support a Democrat, whether he is a "nice, young fellow" or not.

However, reports coming in from around the state indicate that Frazier Reams, Jr., is catching on. The people who see him like what they see. He is warm, able and effective. He is willing to make public appearances and press conferences. He has nothing to hide. He knows the issues and he is able to articulate them.

It is interesting to watch the changes of technique when the awakening comes that this is going to be a real race and that Frazier Reams, Jr., is running to win.

In the meantime, the last-minute entry of Paul J. Lynch in the Democratic race for lieutenant governor is also causing a great deal of comment.

Lynch announced Saturday night (Jan. 29) and was able, by filing time on Feb. 2, to have circulated and returned sufficient petitions and signatures to qualify.

The fact that Bill Coleman's own Congressional district did not file a Democratic candidate for Congress—that his own county, Union, was one of the four in Ohio to support Goldwater and that the state Democratic organization has been in disarray for the last three years — was pretty well evidenced by the response that Lynch received.

The state chairman with 10 years of experience and exposure could hardly be considered an underdog in this kind of race. But this could, very well, be the surprise race in the Democratic primary.

'Great Society' Is No Bargain

For those who like it, the Great Society may be worth every penny it is costing. For those who oppose it, any price is too high. The trouble is that both sides of the argument usually have no idea just what the tab will come to.

This year's administrative budget was announced at under $100-billion by President Johnson. However, the best estimates as of now are that by the end of the fiscal year, on July 1, 1966, the Administration will have gone at least $10- billion over what was budgeted. This will give the Treasury one of the biggest peacetime deficits in history.

Only part of this can be dumped in the Great Society's lap. After all, close to $60-billion will go for defense alone — and there are such expenditures as foreign aid (a solid $3.3-billion) and other programs begun by previous administrations.

Great Society programs, for which the American taxpayer will be paying in the next five years, add up to some $111-billion in new authorizations.

Of that, $1-billion will go to the Appalachia relief project, $7-billion for a Federal aid-to-education step-up and a conservatively estimated $5-billion for the poverty war.

A $20-billion measure, for various Federal subsidies, sits on President Johnson's desk, awaiting his signature. The International Monetary Fund is scheduled to get $1-billion and Social Security will cost the Treasury $33-billion more than it did before this year.

This is one reason why the Administration is talking of increasing taxes. The Great Society may be great—but it's expensive to all of us.

Letters To The Editor

Liked Housing Series

To The Spectator:

I have just completed reading your second installment in the housing story ("Columbus In Crisis," Feb. 3, Spectator) and I am quite pleased in the way you keep Central Ohio enlightened.

Your reporters are doing an outstanding job in digging out stories that have laid dormant much too long in this city.

You mentioned in your story about the high rate of foreclosures and it might be pointed out that, I believe, very few foreclosures are made by savings and loan companies in the Franklin County area.

These organizations are, traditionally, very conservative. Many foreclosures, I'm sure, are made by banks in New York.

Mrs. Thomas Faye
Columbus, Ohio

(Ed. Note: Our gal, Jane Robinson, did the leg work on the housing series. She agrees with you on the foreclosure situation and thanks you for making your point.)

A Beacon Light

To The Spectator:

Your editorial "It's Time For Warnings" (Spectator, Feb. 3) stands out like a beacon light amid the numerous highway deaths Ohio — along with the rest of the nation — is experiencing.

It's indeed time for some hasty action and I sincerely hope that the Highway directors of this state heed your advice and post warning signs at the seven dangerous intersections in Franklin County.

Perhaps Franklin County can set the pace for other sections of the state to follow. It would certainly behoove the Capital City area to set a good traffic example.

I know that a sign saying "One Of The State's Most Dangerous Intersections" would certainly slow me down and cause me to give thought to the terrible death toll on our nation's highways.

R. B. McIntosh

Circulation Impresses

To The Spectator:

I am really impressed with your total circulation in Central Ohio. I think you people have done a tremendous job.

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Gets A Chuckle

To The Spectator:

I couldn't help but laugh when I read your editorial "The Freedom's Ringing (Spectator, Feb. 3). It's about time somebody poked some fun at this organization.

I believe the greatest gift we have as Americans is the ability to laugh and, believe me, I have laughed many times at those ridiculous recorded messages.

The Spectator has consistently reflected the views of the people of Central Ohio. It's refreshing to know that there is a newspaper in this city that isn't afraid to print the truth.

My hat is off to you. Keep up the good work.

Questions New Stadium

To The Spectator:

Why, in heaven's name, is the city still thinking about building a 54,000-seat all sports stadium on the banks of the Scioto River (Spectator, Feb. 3)?

I fail to see why Columbus can't make use of the Ohio State University Stadium. Why use an 80,000-seat stadium a few times a year and let it lay vacant the rest of the time? I know it's a state school but this shouldn't be that prohibitive when the need for a civic stadium is apparently so great.

And, if a new stadium is built (by taxpayer money) what happens to Jet Stadium? Or Vets Memorial? Let's not let the lure of drawing a major league team to Columbus cause us to act in haste in a matter of this magnitude.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON: Marquis Childs

There can be no doubt of the profound sorrow with which most of the world received word that bombing of North Viet Nam was resumed and the enlargement of the war will now go forward. Inevitable as it may have appeared to the political and military strategists of the Johnson Administration, millions everywhere clung to the last-minute hope that this beginning of an attempt to find a peaceful solution would succeed.

CHILDS

To each side the terms offered had the look of a call for surrender. Certainly Hanoi's demand that the United States remove all military forces before any peace conference was unacceptable. Collapse of the fragile structure of the South Vietnamese government would have immediately followed.

In the 10 days of debate at the highest level over what course to follow, the President's top-level advisers were not unanimous. Under Secretary of State George Ball persisted in hoping that continuation of the bombing pause would bring either gradual de-escalation or a first tentative move toward the peace table. Shortly before the President launched his peace offensive Ball went to Florida for a much-needed rest. He had been there only three days when the President got him on the phone to say:

"You're a blankety-blank peacemonger. Now you get back up here and run this peace offensive."

Except for some initial Navy and Marine Corps interest there was no support in the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the limited holding strategy. Military commanders are always reluctant to support a static situation where morale deteriorates as in a state of siege. The entire countryside, including the rich rice-producing delta, would have gone to the Communists. A minority of Vietnamese who have not succumbed to terror or blandishments of the Viet Cong would have been overwhelmed.

President Johnson's conclusion was that this was a form of slow surrender which would result in turning the whole country over to the Communists.

Just as plans were all in readiness for resuming the bombing so preparations are complete for moving an additional 300,000 to 400,000 American ground troops to Viet Nam by the end of July or early September. This will make a total of 500,000 or 600,000. According to one Allied source, the major push to try to clear large areas currently held by the Viet Cong will not begin until late September or early October when a massive force will be in readiness.

With the prospect of escalation on such a scale the farthest hope officials working with the President in the difficult and tragic decisions of recent days hold out is as follows: The Communist regime in Hanoi will finally face the reality — that the United States cannot be driven out of South Viet Nam. This may come in a year or a year and a half after an unflagging drive to keep the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese constantly off balance.

Then with this realization one of two things may happen. The Communists will gradually without prior announcement begin to withdraw. Or they will agree to go to the peace table. It is a slim hope.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

From the title, "The Loved One," which is at Hunt's Cinestage, one probably thinks this is another run-of-the-mill Hollywood love story. Not true, this is one of the most unusual story lines to flash across the [illegible].

Based on Evelyn Waugh's celebrated satire on glorified mortuaries, the movie is about a fast-talking promoter, played by Jonathan Winters, who operates a fantastic memorial park and funeral home. He conceives the idea of transforming it into a more profitable Senior Citizens Retirement City.

With the help of top ranking space program chiefs, he rockets the "Loved Ones" with the slogan, "Resurrection Now!"

Liberace, Milton Berle, Barbara Nichols and many others who have bit parts add nothing to the movie, except box office appeal.

The producers advertise the show as "something to offend everyone." It does. There are corpses all over the place, some used as messengers of love notes between the embalmers. It is barbed satire on funeral directors, their practices, policies and costs in "laying away a loved one."

Comments from the audience after the show were, "it's a riot," "wild" and "grotesque." Promoted as a zany comedy, it just isn't so. There is comedy all right, but it is very morbid comedy.

If you are a sensitive person, DO NOT SEE "THE LOVED ONE."

Iceland Is Cool Fun

Iceland, the only commercial, artificial ice rink in the area, offers many extras to skaters. Located at 3270 Cleveland-av, the full-size hockey rink has special youth programs, qualified instructors and special rates for parties of 25 or more.

The ice rink is weather protected by a building with the sides partly open, to give the skater the feeling of skating outdoors.

Adjacent to the rink are two log cabins. These may be reserved, free, to groups of 25 or larger. The cabins have open fireplaces which are used for roasting hot dogs, marshmallows and warming up after a stroll on the ice.

In its third year of operation, Iceland is open daily, except Monday, for afternoon and evening sessions. Monday, the entire rink and facilities is rented to clubs interested in holding skating parties as a money-making project.

Teen Haven Has Top Bands

Sonny Palmer's Teen Haven opens Saturday, Feb. 12, from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Located at Westinghouse Union Hall, 3578 Grace-st, one-half block west of Great Western Shopping Center, Teen Haven features top teen bands and their Go-Go Girls, The Gidgets.

This week's band will be the exciting "Fugitives." Record albums are given away each Saturday. Admission is $1.

An Evening With Mathis

Last Thursday evening, Johnny Mathis played to an over-flow crowd at Capital University. Each member of the audience was held in the palm of his hand.

Mathis is not only talented, he is a master showman. Many of today's stars should take lessons from him, for Johnny understands stage presence, pacing and humility.

Musically, programming and production rate this revue as one of the best to play Columbus in a many a moon. The only weak aspect of the show was the choreography. Perhaps if the rest of the show wasn't of such excellent quality, this would not have been so apparent.

Sound wise, the Mathis show was superb. His orchestra and chorus had a perfect blend. The results produced a rich, mellow, beautiful sound.

'Pussycat' Steals Show At Hartman

Eartha Kitt, known as a singer, turns in a fine performance in the "Owl and the Pussycat." She is an excellent commedienne and a real spitfire on stage. Miss Kitt gets into her part fast and produces superb characterization.

Russell Nype is also good. He plays his part well, but he is only a patsy for Eartha Kitt.

This is her show.

The show itself is tremendous. One might think that with only two characters on stage it would be dull. This is far from the truth. The "Owl and the Pussycat" is fast, with lots of laughs. The old cliche in show business is true—there is a laugh-a-minute in this one. This is probably one of the best comedies to play Columbus in recent years.

The "Owl and the Pussycat" is appropriately named. Russell Nype is the wise, old owl who finally succumbs to the gay, wild life of Pussycat, Eartha Kitt.

It is a very smooth, well-rehearsed play. For honest entertainment, this one is a must.

Reynoldsburg's FCL Pennant Picture Focused Down To Ex-Champs – 'Old Nemesis' University

By JACK WITTENMEIER

It's perhaps both ironical and appropriate that Reynoldsburg should face University tomorrow night in a game which can cinch no worse than an FCL title tie for the Raider cagers.

Reynoldsburg has been devoid of a loop basketball title for four seasons — finishing second each time to the Little Bucks.

BUT THE shoe is on the other foot this time around as University seems destined for a next-to-last finish (thanks to two wins — Bucks' only in FCL — over tailender Rosary).

And this time, Reynoldsburg is all the way at the other end of the standings.

Several weeks ago, an FCL coach stated that University would surely knock off one of the "bigs" before the season ended.

AS OF today, only the Raiders remain in that category on the Little Buck schedule.

A 5-11 season to date (University has won last two in row) can only be salvaged with the satisfaction that the Little Bucks knocked a prime contender out of the title picture.

Such is the setting for coach Dick Fishbaugh and his crown-hungry Raiders, who moved up to 11-5 (6-0 in loop) with a solid 68-48 win over Academy last weekend.

AND THE Raiders will get their third taste of the FCL's three "cracker-box" hardwoods at University where play for the claustropobia-inflicted must surely be a night-mare.

On the plus side, however, is a University quintet which barely resembles the powerful fives wearing Little Buck togs in the past few seasons.

For instance, the Little Bucks are yielding five points more per game than they are scoring (as compared to Reynoldsburg's plus 10 over opponents).

AND FOR the first time in quite a few games, Reynoldsburg will have a decided height edge, University High's tallest starter barely reaching six feet.

Coach Fishbaugh, who uses a 3-2 or 2-1-2 offense and either a man-to-man or zone defense from the Bucks, singles out three big personnel problems for his Raiders.

One is 5-11 Gary Brown, University's top scorer with a 16.3 average, another is Gary Page (6-0), an above-par rebounder (15.8) and the third is Johnny-come-lately Larry Willis (5-11), who's raised his point average to 8.4 with 19 and 20-point outputs in his last two outings.

OTHER BUCK starters look like Bill Wood (5-11, 7.7) and either Steve Shaffer (5-11, 4.1) or Phil Stickney (3.1).

That title deadlock between New Albany and the Raiders is looking more and more like a certainty.

Reynoldsburg gets its share with a win tomorrow night and the Eagles will face St. Mary the same night without seeing the Rams' 6-6 Rod Webb (broken finger) before hosting a slumping Canal Winchester the next weekend.

REYNOLDSBURG wraps up its regular '65-'66 cage season Saturday night, hosting Mifflin (4-11).

Rebounding superiority (53-36) was once again a big factor in the Raiders' win over the Vikings last weekend with three cagers (Gary Shade with 22, Terry Miller with 12 and Dick Baserman with 11) hitting the double digits.

Reynoldsburg looked healthier at the foul line also by hitting on 12 of 20 attempts for 60 percent — a mark the Raiders haven't seen too often this campaign.

SHADE AND Miller topped rebounding — Gary collecting 17 and Terry nabbing 11.

TERRY'S STAB—Reynoldsburg's Terry Miller (left) outreaches an Academy opponent to snare this rebound Friday in Raiders' FCL win over Vikings. (Staff photos by Jack Wittenmeier).

WHACK! — Academy's Steve Mahaffey (13) finds this field goal attempt Saturday foiled by Reynoldsburg's Paul Lauderback who was charged with a foul on the play. Raiders won, 68-48, to move within one win of FCL crown share.

Devil-Raider Tilt High On Youth Sked

A possible title game looms Saturday in the Herbert Mills section of the Reynoldsburg Youth Basketball League.

The unbeaten co-leaders — the Red Devils (coached by Chuck McClelland) and the Junior Raiders (coached by Jerry and Gene Shivener)—match 5-0 marks in the 8 a.m. opener.

THE LEAGUE tourney will open on Mar. 12 and the loop championship game will be preceded by an All-Star game.

The BVL (Bowlers' Victory Legion) is the bowlers' charity. Local bowlers make contributions to many worthy causes by bowling in many charity events.

However, the only recognized national bowlers' charity is BVL which helps disabled veterans in veterans' hospitals around the country.

WE ARE ALL sorry that no Columbus entrant stayed to the All-Star Finals, but winners Dick Weber (four-time repeater) and Joy Abel are to be congratulated.

We're hearing talk locally and nationally about marathon bowling (even as far away as Okinawa) but neither ABC or WIBC recognize or keep records on this. Probably could get most information from physicians who doctor mangled thumbs after such sessions.

Apr. 16-17 in Skokie, Ill., will see the National Seniors Tournament with 94-year-old Allen Smith of Ann Arbor, Mich., as a contestant. Who are the oldest man and woman to compete in our area?

THE NATIONAL AJBC program (juniors) has shown a 12.3 percent increase in members so far this season. Columbus has one of the best junior programs in the nation—in fact we think it is definitely best — but we're prejudiced.

Feb. 17 is deadline date for entry in the ABC—this year in Rochester, N. Y. That town is in for quite an experience. ABC this year—WIBC next year.

The Professional Bowlers Association (with Akron as national headquarters) is only seven years old but now has 33 tournaments each year scattered around the U.S.A. and boasts a prize fund of $1,300,000.

IF YOU are a league bowler but have never bowled in a tournament, you are in for a real thrilling experience. Your average need not be high as most tournaments use the handicap system.

Pirates Host Junior High Cage Tourney

Reynoldsburg Junior High will host its second annual Invitational Basketball Tourney, Feb. 15-16, 18-19.

Participating teams will be Indianola (defending champ), Whitehall, Circleville, Pickerington, Westfall, Watkins, Groveport and the hosts.

DRAWINGS FOR the tourney, under the direction of Ed James, were held last night.

Trophies will be awarded to the champion and runner-up quintet with an individual cup going to the winner of a foud shooting contest (best of 25 shots).

Admission for the tourney will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students.

GAMES ARE scheduled for 4:15 and 5:30 p.m. on the 15th, 5:15 and 5:30 on the 16th, 7 and 8:30 p.m. (semi-finals) on the 18th and 7 p.m. (consolation game) and 8:30 p.m. (championship game) on the 19th.

FEARLESS PREDICITIONS

The 1965-66 basketball season is headed for the home stretch with a couple of weeks before those nasty, won-or-else tournaments. If last Friday's results are any indication, the tournaments this year will be packed with surprises.

Fearless' overall record thus far is 238-93 for a .741 percentage.

East-West Vie For Championship

By BOB WHITMAN

East and West meet at Capital's Alumni Gym Friday night to establish City League supremacy.

The once-licked Cowboys (14-1) tackle Bob Hart's East Crew (9-4) in a game that could leave one City champion (if East wins) or three title winners (if West wins).

The other team that could win by not even appearing at Capital is Linden (12-2) who stands to profit by a West win. The Panthers tanned West 63-49 before East tripped them 60-56 a few weeks ago.

A Cowboy triumph would leave the City in the same shape it was last season when South, West and Linden shared the crown.

EAST COACH Bob Hart looks for a battle of the boards to determine the crown-wearer this year as he has been impressed with West's board work. The big rebounder for the Cowboys is Larry Ginn, a 6-2 center.

The Tigers will counter with 6-5 pivotman Randy Smith and 6-2 Vance Carr plus a jumping-jack trio of Gil Mathews (6-1), Luther Curry (6-1), and John Frazer (6-0).

East will hold a slight height advantage as West will have Mike Dreeling (6-4) and Jerry Francis (6-2) to stand with Ginn over the six foot mark.

THE ONE-MAN scoring machine Jerry Francis, currently averaging 27.5 points per game (413 points in 15 outings) will have his hands full Friday as Curry draws the assignment to handle him.

Curry has drawn the top opposition's scorer all year. He held Ed Young from Linden to 10 points and only two baskets, Bob Chandler from Central to 18 points and five goals and during the first half he allowed South's Joe Hayes to five points. He was removed from Hayes because of foul trouble.

East will match Francis with Mathews (265—20.1), Carr (141—10.8) and Curry (145—11.1). West's Ginn is the only other Cowboy averaging in double digit with a 11.3.

WEST COACH Fred Heischman figures that breaking the press and stopping the Tiger fast break are 'musts' in bringing home the second straight title to West.

"If we are to contain them," Heischman said, "we must take away their fast break."

Tiger mentor Hart looks for West to toss everything and anything against East Friday.

"We have to be ready for anything," Hart said, "so we have to be flexible to change at the game goes on."

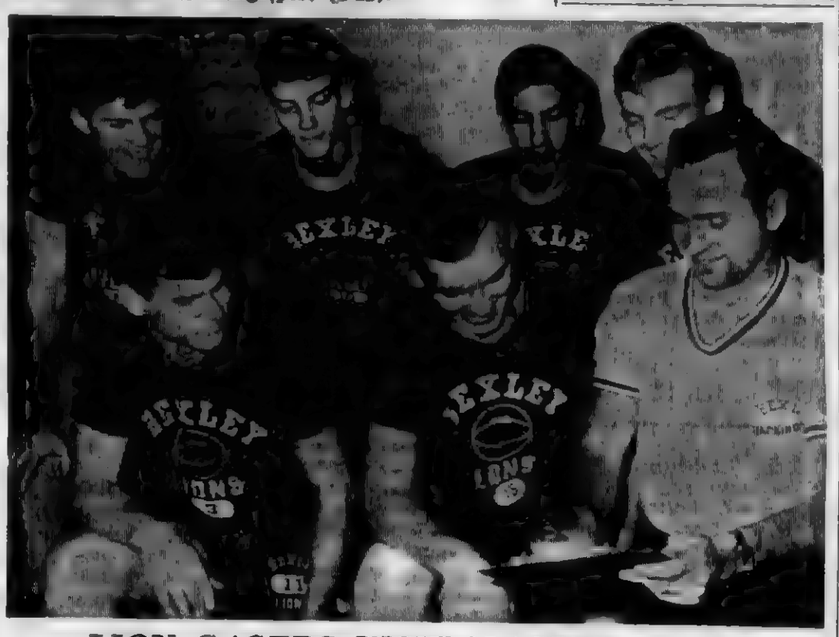
DICK GEYER'S Hartley Hawks earned at least a share of the Catholic League crown with a 60-55 win over Watterson last Friday. The Hawks were paced by Dave (19 point) Rogers, who held his cousin Watterson's Gene Rogers to 10, and Doug (17-point) Parker.

Hartley (8-6) can get the crown outright with a win over DeSales (9-5) tomorrow.

In other area action: Eastmoor (6-7) meets Central (7-7), Delaware battles Whitehall (9-5), Academy (5-8) goes to Dublin (6-10) and Gahanna (4-10) meets Groveport (1-12).

'FRIENDS BECOME FOES'

FANCY MEETING YOU HERE—could well be what West's Jim McGhee (left) and East's John Frazer (right) will be thinking when they see each other at West Friday night. The pair started for Chicago Harlan High School, Chicago, Ill., last winter and somehow found their way to the Columbus City League — each on different teams.



Gahanna Plans Cage Twin-Bill Tuesday Night

Gahanna-Lincoln High School will be the scene of a big basketball doubleheader Tuesday when the Lions' Alumni takes on the Lincoln High faculty before a game between Central Ohio Welding and Dollar Federal.

The Alumni-Faculty game will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the second game scheduled for 7:45.

Featured players will be ex-OSU cage stars Doug McDonald, Dick Ricketts, Gene Millard, Jim Doughty and Dick Taylor, to name a few.

Also on hand will be former Gahanna greats such as Jim Shaffer (holds nine Lincoln cage marks), Craig Kulow (holds two scoring marks), Ken Barth and Johnny Strait.

LION CAGERS VISIT 'JACKET NEST

THEY MAY be all smiles now but this sextet of Bexley cagers and coach Gene Millard will be all business tomorrow night when the Lions invade Mt. Vernon for a big cage clash with the Yellow Jackets. Kneeling (from left) are Pat Lemmon and Mac McCloy and coach Millard. Standing are Dave Johnston, Bob Forman, Steve Callif and Charlie Burkam.

DeSales Hosts Big Eight Tourney—Season's No. 1 Mat Attraction

By Jack Wittenmeier

DeSales — by hosting Saturday's "Big Eight" mat tourney — nails down the wrestling season's number one, "can't miss" attraction.

Visitors to the Stallion mats will be Worthington, Walnut Ridge, Brookhaven, Franklin Heights, East, West and Eastmoor — or the top eight District finishers last spring.

AND WITH the exception of possibly a couple entries—that could well be the closing lineup at the '66 District tourney early next month.

HALF OF the entries (Worthington, DeSales, West and East) have already copped big tourney titles this season with the rest of the field usually close behind in their tourney tries.

Prelims open action at 11 a.m. with wrestling scheduled straight through until about 6:30 (finals should begin somewhere between 3 and 4 p.m.).

ADMISSION for this dandy will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students (whole session).

EAST'S TIGERS discovered enough "seconds" can add up to a big first last weekend as Chuck Deyo's matmen topped the field at the Brookhaven Invitational.

The Bengals got only two firsts (Ralph Cox at 106 and Jake Holloway at 130) but five runnerup spots (Dan Young, Clarence Bennett, Bill Allen, George White and John Revels) helped zoom East up to 79 points — plenty to win.

Walnut Ridge — the other area squad at the invitational — placed last with 20 points. Dave Sheets' second and Ron Remy's consolation win were the Scotties' top efforts.

STEVE BEERY got Whitehall its lone first as the Rams dropped to sixth place at Worthington's classy invitational, won by the hosts with 78 points.

Whitehall, which got consolation wins from Mike Decker, Randy Nichols and Ken Flowers, finished with 37 markers.

In area dual competition, Hartley clipped North, 22-16; Bexley blasted Granville, 27-14, and Eastmoor split a pair — slugging Wnut Ridge (25-12) before falling under Linden (29-20).

HARTLEY showed its strength "down the middle" as Joe Weldon began a Hawk decision streak at 120 and Roswell Brown, Bill Cline, P. K. Erwin, Mike Newton and Lou Bernhard followed suit to provide Hartley with a commanding 22-5 bulge.

At Bexley, wins by Reese Lattimer, Tom Shafer, Steve Sloan, Steve Gutter, Jim Kelley and Marc and Gary Gitlitz powered the Lions to their fourth dual win in nine outings this season.

Eastmoor finished strong (pins by Larry Mixon and Steve Gutridge plus Rick Newpoff's decision) to pull away from W-R.

DAN CALLINAN, Pete Prendergast, Joe VonEida and Gary Cooper got other M-E wins (all verdicts) while three Dave's — Sheets, Carr and Saffle — joined Greg Fout to get verdict wins for the Scots.

Callinan, VonEida, Newpoff and Gutridge all pinned their Linden opponents but those were the only points the Warriors could collect.

CAROLYN MILLER of Xi Alpha Phi Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, has been chosen Valentine Princess by her chapter and may be chosen queen of the sorority's annual Sweetheart Ball, Saturday, Feb. 12 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at Valley Dale. Proceeds are for the Peck O' Wee Ones Foundation, Inc., a home for the non-educable mentally retarded children in East Columbus.

FEBRUARY 11 IS PARTY DATE

The Lockbourne AFB Noncommissioned Officer Academy Graduates' Association (NCOAGA) and its Wives Auxiliary will co-sponsor a Valentine Party Friday, Feb. 11 at the NCO Open Mess.

A farewell dinner in honor of Mrs. Joseph Ward and a welcome to potential members, Mrs. Robert N. Fouts and Mrs. Billis L. Connor were highlights at last week's meeting. Birthday gifts were received by Mrs. Ray Vasinda and Mrs. William Hanson.

GUESS WHAT—CARNIVAL TIME AGAIN

PROMOTING "Name the Carnival" contest in French Run School's annual affair are from left: Mrs. Robert Styer, holding 15 months-old Ben; Mrs. Myron Wiggins, Mrs. Jay Miller, Mrs. Tom Lucas and Mrs. C. C. Pennington. Open to all pupils from kindergarten through grade six, the contest winner will receive 20 free tickets. The theme for this year's pageant will be determined by the winning title selected. Kicking off activities early, the group is looking forward to the big date set for Saturday, Mar. 26.

Public Invited

'QUEEN' CONTEST IS NEXT SUNDAY

The public is cordially invited to attend the Police Sesquicentennial Queen Contest finals Sunday, Feb. 13 at 1 p.m. in the Whetstone Recreation Center, 3923 N. High-st. These semi-final contestants will appear in bathing suits and formal gowns. Television celebrity, "Spook" Beckman, is Master of Ceremonies.

Judges are Ann Reider, Nita Hutch and Nick Basso, television and radio personalities; Diane Courtright, 1964's Miss Ohio; Joseph R. DeLuca, DeLuca Salons; and Frederick J. Simon, director Public Safety.

From the 18 semi-finalists will be chosen five finalists and from these five the queen will be announced at the 34th Annual Police Ball on Tuesday, Feb. 22, at Rollerland.

The winner will receive, among other prizes, a one week all expense paid trip to New York City sponsored by Leow's theatres and hotels, a week in "Good Old Columbus Town" and a portable television.

Among those entering the contest from this area were:

Sharon A. Wilson, 1220 Waggoner-rd, Reynoldsburg, Bachelor of Fine Arts and Nancy P. Hively, Rt. 1, Baltimore, BS in Education.

ES PAPER

Melinda L. Hamberg Toma, 86 S. Cassady, BS in Education: Ronald I. Fowlkes, 299 Taylor-av, BS in Education; David M. Williamson, 3273 Darracq-cir, Bachelor of Business Administration.

COUPLE TO WED ON VALENTINE DAY

Mrs. George M. Parsons, 2611 Fair-av, announces the engagement of her daughter, Emily Herron Parsons, to Joseph Banche, son of Mrs. Barney Banche, Coello, Ill.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. Parsons and the late Mr. Parsons, while the bridegroom-elect is the son of Mrs. Banche and the late Mr. Banche.

Miss Parsons, an Ohio State University graduate, is associated with North American Aviation, Inc., while Mr. Banche has bachelor and master degrees from the University of Illinois, and is also associated with North American Aviation, Inc.

The couple will be wed Monday, Feb. 14 at 1 p.m. The Rev. Norman Coply will officiate.

MRS. EUGENE HARR

Mrs. Harr Is Chosen Queen

Mrs. Eugene Harr, 6739 Greenbush-dr, has been chosen by Mu Theta Chapter, of Beta Sigma Phi, to be their Valentine Queen at the Sorority's annual Sweetheart Ball, to be held Saturday, Feb. 12, at Valley Dale.

Mrs. Harr, who has been a Mu Theta member for four years, is past secretary and vice-president of her chapter and at present is serving as chapter secretary, parliamentarian, and service chairman.

Proceeds from the ball will be donated to the Peck-o'-Wee Ones Foundation, Inc. home for retarded children.

Music will be provided by Chuck Selley Orchestra.

Preceding the dance a cocktail party will be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Augden, 1595 Haft-dr.

GARDEN CLUB MEETS

The Whitehall Garden Club will meet Thursday, Feb. 17, at 7:30 p.m. at the Whitehall-Yearling High School.

The program will feature picture slides of members' gardens shown by Mr. and Mrs. George Dreisbach.

All members are to bring an artificial arrangement for exhibition.

Hostesses are Mr. and Mrs. Loren Mason.

VALENTINE PARTY

St. Pius X announces its Valentine Day games party, Monday, Feb. 14, 7:45 p.m.

MEET MONDAY

ARC 12 meets Monday, Feb. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Leonard Segal, 776 Chestershire-rd.

CUBS PLAN DINNER

Sunday, Feb. 20, at 4 p.m., Cub Scout Pack 326 of St. Pius X Parish will hold its First Annual Blue and Gold Dinner at St. Pius X School to celebrate the 56th anniversary of scouting in the United States. The busy cubs are working on special decorations. A fried chicken dinner promises to be a treat for the whole family and guests.

WHAT IS A HAIR DYE?
I can tell you what it is, but we professional colorists don't use it anymore. That's right, it's altogether obsolete. It was a metal, or as in the case of henna, a vegetable based color that coated the hair but did not penetrate the hairshaft. Today's permanent hair coloring is based on synthetic organic products that do penetrate and put the artificial coloring inside the hair right alongside natural hair pigment, leaving the outside of the hair (the cuticle) clear and mirrorlike. That is one important reason why it is practically impossible to tell whether professional hair coloring is natural or not these days. Incidentally the new word for it is "hairtint."
WHAT IS IN YOUR BAG OF TRICKS?
Every woman who reaches the age of reason begins to accumulate a purse full of who knows what. She can usually be depended upon to have a comb and maybe even a little purse size brush, a lipstick, and after that a miscellaneous assortment of other odds and ends she just might need.
Unfortunately, before she knows it there are usually a lot of things she doesn't need and doesn't deliberately choose to carry along. It's such an easy thing to toss things into the purse like a magpie, until it gets terribly untidy and downright backbreaking to lug it along. One of our patrons has a system which seems to work for her so we are passing it along for what it may be worth to you.
Every morning she dumps everything out of her purse in the middle of the table and then simply picks up and puts back in anything which she decides she needs, before she sallies forth. A bonus advantage is that the life of the purse is so much longer if it is not overloaded so grievously.
WHEN SHOULD REGULAR BEAUTY SALON APPOINTMENTS BEGIN?
As soon as she needs more than mere suds and washcloth to stay adorable it is time for you to put your little girl's beauty problems in the hands of a professional.

Larry Sheridan Is Named Outstanding East Kiwanian

Larry Sheridan, 939 Ellsworth-av, was named outstanding Kiwanian of 1965 at Eastern Kiwanis Club's annual president's party, held at the Athletic Club.

Don L. Callander, 1193 Pierce-av, was installed as president by Lewis C. Chadwick, lieutenant governor of Division 10 E.

Also honored for service to the club were Ernest E. Emswiler, 694 S. Cassingham-rd, retiring president, and Robert Schwartzwalder, 1491 Crestview-av, chairman public relations, recipient of the Distinguished Service Award.

Walter W. Seifert, professor Ohio State University, school of journalism, was the featured speaker.

Callender was honored for his service as chairman of Eastern's license plate sale, and ticket chairman for the club's annual Little Buckeye football game.

Police Brand Corners As Troublesome

Francis C. McWilliams, captain of the traffic bureau of the Columbus Police Department, has branded Broad and James and Livingston and Barnett as high accident intersections for the Jan. 16 through Jan. 31 period.

Police will tighten enforcement from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Broad and James corner and from noon to 6 p.m. at the Livingston and Barnett corner.

Special emphasis will be placed on assured clear distance and safe changing of lanes.

The Quiet Turmoil

according to Mrs. Laura Lakin, president of the Columbus Education Association and a member of the Ohio Education (OEA) legislative committee.

"After meeting with an attorney all day Saturday, I became convinced there is little that can be done at present to deal with these student offenders," she said.

She stated she favored the resolution adopted last week by the OEA legislative committee.

The resolution, which still must be approved by the OEA executive committee, calls for Ohio General Assembly action in 1967 to increase protection of teachers and penalties against students found guilty of attacking teachers.

Last year's legislature apparently was aware of the need for action. It amended the Ohio Revised Code to permit teachers to exercise "reasonable" corporal punishment.

However, teachers still do not have much freedom to use their own discretion in punishing students, according to Carl Benedetti, president of the Columbus Federation of Teachers.

"There is practically a chain of command a teacher has to go through before he can paddle a student," Benedetti said. "This time element is important because the effectiveness of disciplinary action is lost.

"I am the kind of guy that handles most discipline problems in class, and once in a while it has to happen. I am a teacher, not a policeman, and I don't like to spend my class time for discipline."

"Corporal punishment of a student should be used by teachers only as a last resort," Benedetti said. "But sometimes it must be used, and teachers should not be afraid to use it.

"But they have to be backed by the administration in disciplinary matters, and the administration has to have the backbone not to be scared by complaining parents.

"After all," he continued, "teachers are not supposed to be contestants in a popularity contest. Students will respect any teacher who is just —that is all that is necessary."

Teachers who do not feel they can handle a disciplinary problem are instructed to seek help from the school's guidance counselors, Eibling said. He added that the Columbus Public Schools employ 15 psychologists, who operate from a central office, to handle extreme problems.

Undoubtedly the local schools are not faced with the magnitude of problems in some other cities. For example, police have to escort teachers to and from their work in some New York City schools because of the high violence rates. Chicago, Detroit, Washington and Los Angeles also are trouble centers.

However, since many Columbus teachers apparently are concerned about the local "problem," a thorough investigation could dig out "hidden" cases.

One danger such an investigation should avoid is the grouping of all youths into a single "delinquent" classification.

Edgar W. House, principal of North High School, said: "The majority of high school pupils in Columbus reflect good home training, display a high degree of self-respect and show proper regard for authority.

"In my personal opinion," he continued, "juvenile delinquency is 'lack of respect for authority'. The efforts of parents, school officials, the churches and all society in general must be concentrated in restoring that respect—by whatever method each individual case requires."

Roger Tracy Charged With 'Carpetbagging'

Gene A. Shepard, Democratic candidate for the 60th House District, levels a charge of "political carpetbagging" at Roger W. Tracy, Jr., Republican nominee for the same house seat next spring. "Tracy fits the description of a carpetbagger in every way," Shepard said. "His recent denial of the charge indicates he is either intellectually naive or downright dishonest. Neither of these characteristics qualifies him for office in the state House of Representatives."

Shepard said that GOP chairman William Schneider has admitted a search went out for qualified candidates in each district. "It was a strange coincidence that in the 58th District, they found Tracy, who lives at 2757 N. Starr-rd, Upper Arlington. Tracy said that his renting of a S. High-st apartment for political reasons is a rumor. However, he did not rent this apartment until after the 60th House District was created. He can now be found living at both addresses."

Tracy was quoted as saying, "I chose German Village because I like the idea of private redevelopment." However, Shepard pointed out, "If Tracy's statement is true, which I doubt, he should have rented his apartment in the Village; his new address on S. High-st is not a part of German Village and, in fact, is a new apartment — not one that was redeveloped."

Shepard also quoted Republican Congressman Samuel L. Devine as saying he "deplored carpetbaggers jumping all over the county looking for a spot to land." In this respect, Shepard said, "Tracy is a carpetbagger of the worst sort and I trust the voters of the 60th district will feel the same way when they nominate their candidates in the primary election on May 3."

Twyford Endorsed

The Spectator learned this week that Reynoldsburg Mayor George W. Twyford has been endorsed by the Ohio Nationality Association in his bid as a Democratic candidate for Ohio's 12th congressional district. The announcement was made by Frank Kuboski, director of the association which is headquartered in Columbus. "We picked Twyford," Kuboski says, "because of his outstanding qualification. He has a distinguished background and he fully understands the many segments of community life in the 12th congressional district regardless of race, creed or nationality." Twyford's Republican opponent in the 12th (roughly, eastern Franklin County) district is Samuel L. Devine.

Will Discuss Housing

Representatives of more than 50 Columbus area organizations are expected to attend an open public meeting to explain the rights and responsibilities under the recently-passed Ohio State Fair Housing Law Feb. 24 at 8 p.m. in the city council chambers. The program is an educational project of the housing committee of the city's Community Relations Department. The Commission (Community Relations Commission, advisory body of the department) has embarked upon an educational program which will lend itself to underscoring the rights of all persons within the new law, passed by the Ohio Assembly in 1965," according to Walter R. Tarpley, city community relations director. "Many of the reports surrounding the Watts incident in Los Angeles allude to the buildup of hostility between groups of people as a result of the turmoil brought about by the repeal of the California Fair Housing Law in November, 1964" Tarpley noted. "It is the responsibility of our commission and community relations department to work through problems which could otherwise lead to intergroup strife."

Send In Those Letters

Have you ever wanted to get something off your chest? The Spectator is giving that chance to young adults in the greater Central Ohio area. We invite you to contribute to our new "The Student Prints" column which begins in next week's Spectator. It's a kind of forum where we are encouraging high school or college students up to age 21 to write a letter on any subject. You will have the satisfaction of expressing an opinion for the benefit of some 150,000 readers. And, that opinion may lead to community or school betterment. Don't be satisfied with just one letter, either. Write as many on as many subjects as you like during the year. Include with your signature your school and home address. Address your letters to The Student Prints, Spectator Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, O.

FIRE DESTROYS FIRM

MIFFLIN TOWNSHIP FIREMEN lived up to their "smoke eaters" title in the early Friday morning fire that destroyed the main plant of the 60-year-old Clay Manufacturing Company, east of Port Columbus. Aided by Truro Township, Whitehall and Columbus Fire Departments, the firefighters were hampered by lack of water as flames cut through the fog shrouded morning. The loss was estimated at nearly a half-million dollars and plant manager Edward Landrum, whose family founded the company in 1906, said he did not know how much of the loss was covered by insurance.

The Sky's The Limit

Port Columbus has been an international airport for six months and, already, Central Ohio businesses are profiting from the change-over. Two other major airport dealings will increase Columbus' air strength. Spectator staffer Betty Daft takes a down-to-earth look at the skies over this city in this exclusive report . . .

By The Spectator's
BETTY DAFT

COLUMBUS, O.

Last August, Port Columbus became an international airport . . . a port of entry to the rich Midwest. The impact of the airport's new stature is beginning to be felt by local businesses who can now send representatives directly abroad and import at a lower cost with greater efficiency.

Establishment of Port Columbus as an international port of entry in the eastern section of this city last August expanded central Ohio's business and industrial horizons.

The future now holds unlimited potential as Columbus continues to grow and develop.

Termed the cornerstone of Columbus' air age program, two other factors are combining with Port Columbus which will complete a triangle of aeronautical strength.

Within the next 12 months, ground will be broken for the new $1.6-million south Columbus airport, in the vicinity of Frank-rd. This new air facility will work in tandem with Port Columbus by relieving the international airport of industrial and private aircraft traffic.

The city is also continuing to step-up its use of the Ohio State University-owned Don Scott Field northwest of Olentangy River and Bethel-rds as a further relief for Port Columbus.

How is life at Port Columbus now that it is international in scope?

Currently, a staff of four custom officers are on call 24 hours a day (except from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays) and, within an hour's notice they can be on duty at the airport to clear passengers or freight.

Stanley Stevens, acting chief during the illness of Customs Chief Owen Taylor, says that freight shipments are now far out-numbering passenger arrivals and departures.

Using the facility for direct import are businesses ranging from department stores (where buyers send their wares directly to this Ohio capital) to heavier industries who may now import an engine or piece of machinery faster and at reduced costs.

There's also the important matter of exporting to consider.

Francis Bolton, airport superintendent, says that "among other things, manufacturers of products susceptible to air travel (such as small, delicate electronic instruments) now have cheaper, direct access to foreign markets."

The airport, preparing for the expected increase in passenger and freight traffic, has a new building under way in east Columbus just south of the main terminal that will offer a complete housing shelter for custom checks and immigrants.

Columbus prowess in the air world is also attracting freight handlers to Columbus. "Airborne Freight Corp.," Bolton says, "currently using Quick Air Freight locally, will open offices staffed with its own personnel at Port Columbus within 30 days."

This will mean taking up an additional 5000-square feet. Bolton says they'll operate in temporary facilities until permanent ones can be built.

"Pacific Air Freight has also opened an international office here," Bolton added. "Both are freight forwarders and handle domestic as well as international air shipping."

Naturally, as knowledge of Port Columbus' international status becomes more widely known, its use increases.

But, all of this progress didn't happen overnight.

Fifteen years of preparation — two years in the final request — went into efforts to have the airfield declared an international port of entry.

The Chamber of Commerce did its bit, too. They cooperated with the City of Columbus and the U. S. Customs Office to make the international dream a reality.

As Mrs. Rosemary Martin, manager of the Chamber's department of economic development, put it: "It's now easier to receive goods and get them into production. This puts Columbus within easy reach of every major international market in the world."

The forecast? That's easy. It's "sky high."

Racial Discussion Is Center Feature

Next in the series of the Jewish Center Public Affairs Forum programs, will be held at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 22, in the center's adult lounge, 1125 College-av. The topic, "Racial Balance in Columbus, Artificial or Real?" will be examined through a panel presentation. Discussed will be: DeFacto Segregation and the Law in the North; Can Integration be Achieved in Columbus?; and What is the Formula for Racial Balance in Education, Housing and Opportunity?

Featured panelists will be Robert Ramsey, attorney, vice-president of the Columbus Board of Education; Dr. Nason Hall, Jr., associate professor, department of sociology, Ohio State University; Mrs. Marlene Wilson, chairman, Columbus chapter, Congress of Racial Equality; L. Bernard LaCour, attorney, president, Columbus Urban League, and Dr. Samuel D. Stellman, moderator.

Dr. Samuel Globe, chairman of the planning committee said, "In today's world where social patterns and values are in a stage of constant change, this topic concerns most people in one way or another. Everyone will want to hear the views and themes developed by the panelists and then share their own thoughts in the discussion which will follow."

Bexley Man Inaugurates New Program

Earl Reynolds, Incorporated, a local sales management consulting firm, will inaugurate a merchandising development seminar involving a group of nationally prominent firms in Toledo, Feb. 7 through 10.

This was announced recently by Earl Reynolds, president of the company bearing his name, with offices in the Leveque Lincoln Tower. Reynolds lives at 2722 Bexley Park-rd.

"This is the first automated learning program developed nationally," Reynolds said. "The New York Sales Executive Club will feature a similar seminar in August of this year."

The seminar will be conducted for a leading national distributor of hardware, housewares, plumbing and automotive supplies.

Dr. J. S. Schiff, Ph.D. and professor of marketing from New York City will be featured. Dr. Schiff is the author of "Programmed Learning."

Bexley Group Elects Officers

Bexley Civic Improvement Association met recently and elected seven new men to its Board of Trustees.

Those elected for three year terms to the board were Bill Birch, John Loehnert, Brad Salt, Tad Jeffrey, Jim Pohlman, Herb Lape and Jim Tornes.

The board elected officers for 1966. New officers are: president, Bill Birch; vice-president, Dick Bohl; treasurer, John Zahn; and secretary, Brad Salt.

During the business meeting, some 40 $100 certificates were retired by drawing.

Chairman of committees include: maintenance, Dick Bohl; operating, Dave Vogel; finance, John Loehnert and vending, Verna Ziegler.

THE SPECTATOR

OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, February 17, 1966

Going Steady

Next week, The Spectator will name its "High School Journalist of The Year." He, or she, will be $200 richer and so will Central Ohio for recognizing the accomplishments of youth.

The ability to condemn high school students by labeling them "teen-agers" and dumping them into a heap called "deliquency" is a growing tendancy in this country.

The chances given youths to "show their wares" is limited. The talented, crisp minds of young people are often shoved to one side where so-called adults frequently tell them to mature.

The Spectator knows the quality of high school students in Central Ohio. It is a quality far superior to most sections of the country and it is a quality that deserves long over-due public exposure.

In the Feb. 24 issue, The Spectator is including a large section entitled "Tales Out of Schools" which will serve, first, as an outlet for high school journalists and photographers and, secondly, will enable them to vie for valuable prizes.

It's just a start because, also the next week, The Spectator pioneers in this area with a letters-to-the-editor forum for young people (under 21) who are in school. It's entitled "The Student Prints."

All of these efforts are closely related. They're aimed at giving the young people of this community an outlet. A chance, if you will, to show the world.

The Spectator is proud to "go steady," in a sense, with the youths of greater Columbus. It should be a long, lasting and rewarding relationship.

Narrowing The Freedom

The Mid-America Bookstore, 162 N. High-st, is the kind of business that is destroying the freedoms responsible Americans expect.

In recent weeks, the store has offered for sale dozens of magazines — ranging in prices from $4 to $8 — aimed directly at homosexual readership. The prominently displayed magazines are filled with photographs showing front views of completely nude males.

Although a weak attempt is made by the magazines' publishers to masquerade the materials under "nudist" and "art study" categories, the real purpose of these publications is obvious.

The Spectator strongly supports basic American freedoms — including the freedom to publish and sell magazines. However, these publications being sold openly in downtown Columbus serve no informative, artistic or literary purposes.

Because of the erotic content of these magazines, they add fuel to the censor's fire and dangerously weaken the cause of responsible freedom.

The Plotters

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

One of the advantages of being a bachelor is to listen with a certain degree of smugness to the marital woes of friends.

According to a recent survey of three companions (all married under five years), the average young housewife is conniving, nagging, manipulating, a mediocre mother and a bad cook.

Hardly a recommendation for marriage.

The discussion started when one of the young men who was having trouble getting his shirts ironed mentioned this fact to another young man who was having difficulty in getting dinner. It seemed the wives had called one another and the one who didn't iron shirts was defended in her position by the one who didn't cook meals. Also, the one who didn't cook meals was defended by the one who didn't iron shirts. The third young man discovered that his wife who was negligent in keeping a supply of toothpaste, was being defended in the three-way society by the other two.

Sensing a conspiracy, the men put their heads together to somehow prevent the wives from comparing notes. It was difficult, one said, to come home to a stale bologna sandwich only to be scolded because one of his working companions was home a half-hour earlier.

It was concluded, after raking the poor girls over the coals in a manner which would be unusual for the wives even in a heated telephone discussion, that the three women should receive a lesson.

Since all were to attend a cocktail party that night, one man would bring a freshly ironed shirt to the man who was having trouble getting his shirt ironed. In return, the first man would bring a tube of toothpaste to the man who brought the shirt, since the shirt-bearer's main problem was getting his wife to supply that item.

And both the shirter and the toothpaster would bring a sandwich to the man who was having trouble getting dinner. It was a masterful plan. One which only three men with intelligence, cunning and distinct desire for revenge could concoct. Satisfied with that, they left with great expectations.

It was rather satisfying to think that if a bachelor needs toothpaste he goes to a drug store. And if a bachelor needs a meal he goes to a restaurant. And if a bachelor needs a shirt ironed he goes to a laundry.

Beside the furor of the young married life, bachelorhood seemed golden.

The thesis received even more ammunition when all three men appeared the next day with the sheepish grin and hangdog look that only a badgered husband can wear.

The plan had fizzled.

The thing that had caused the trouble was not the intended embarrassing insult, but the mere fact that the men had dared to discuss their wives in tones other than reverent.

Ah, the single life is paradise enow!

They Said It

"The concepts and ideas of this nation are the noblest yet conceived by man. Some may be showing signs of wear, but only because they have been tried and found true so often. We would suggest that the youth of today (and here the adult will have to lead him, if he can find the time), before striking out to find something new or more novel or more exciting, examine and re-examine those concepts and morals which have stood the rigors and the stresses of life."

Calling Ohioans

By The Spectator's
MICHAEL V. DISALLE

State government is at the bottom of the news heap. The actual operation of the Federal government is news. Whatever the President says effects our very existence. What he says, where he says it, why, makes news when he chooses to so make it.

Local government is close to the people, traffic lights, street lights, location of express ways, zoning, sewers and water are every day problems to the citizens of a community. When the Mayor speaks out on these problems he also makes news.

City Councils usually meet weekly, people with immediate problems can obtain an immediate audience. Differences of opinion on the approaches to the solution of these problems produces controversy, and consequently makes news. As a result people are better informed on the operation of the Federal and local governments than they are on the state government.

On the state level, legislatures meet every two years, unless called for a special session which is usually a cut and dried affair before they come to Columbus.

The General Assembly convening in Columbus is away from home. Locally they are considered citizens from afar here on business. At home very few people know they are away or why. They meet for a relatively short period every two years. If the Governor is of one political party and the General Assembly of the other, there is enough controversy to make news while they are in session.

A fairly evenly divided General Assembly can also produce enough conflict to generate news. If the Governor and the General Assembly are of the same political party, party unity and success are the order of the day, little or no public conflict, discussion or debate and the result is an even less informed electorate.

Here the responsibility of the Chief Executive is clear. Sound programs sold to an interested electorate receiving solid support because they are necessary and serve the purpose of government. But there is very little real glamor in the functions of state government.

Highways must be built, but they are expensive and should be good. The public interest rests in the lack of or poor quality of highways if this should be the case. A case load of 30,000 mentally ill at one time does not stir up public imagination or sympathy unless it hits home. This problem is easy to neglect, for even should the patient complain, who's going to believe him?

The inmate of correctional institutions is, in the minds of a vast majority of citizens, unworthy of concern and certainly his complaints go unheeded. In fact, the public official who realizes the social implications and the long run financial benefits of a progressive platform is often times the victim of guilt by association.

The young are too busy with the problems of youth to become interested in the problems of the aged until Father Time taps them on the shoulder and says "you're next." The poor are too often described as the products of their own neglect.

This leaves education with numerous supporters, but very little opportunity to make a solid case, for there are millions to educate, and this is expensive.

Too often teachers are being asked to absorb this cost. They are expected to work for less than is paid other educated and professional people. There is no reason and there is no excuse other than we need too many teachers because some think we have too many children. This program also suffers in quality as a sacrifice to the quantity needed.

Faced with apathy, and lack of concern, the Chief Executive of the state finds himself in a dilemma.

If he does what he should do, he can be attacked for being a spender. If he fails to do what he should do, he can be attacked for not fulfilling his responsibilities.

What then does a politically ambitious Governor do? He sells tomato juice, eats sauerkraut bread, goes to Europe, visits parks and monuments, stays away from state institutions, fishes through the ice, cuts ribbons, reads nothing speeches to captive audiences, polishes publishers' egos and takes no position if there is someone with a conflicting point of view.

The Roar Of The Greasepaint

Letters To The Editor

Policy Limits Punishment

To The Spectator:

I'm very pleased that The Spectator is taking a closer look at the school discipline problem in this area ("The Quiet Turmoil," Feb. 10 Spectator).

Teachers in Columbus are not allowed to use corporal punishment on students which is a problem, I feel, relating to the over-all discipline problem. It's not a matter of using the punishment but just to know that the power is there would be a help.

Although the school board's official policy permits it, an administrative bulletin last year entitled "The Columbus Public Schools' Policy On Discipline" forbids it. The bulletin says, in effect, that a principal may use means not open to teachers to punish students. This is the policy statement that school administrators must adhere to.

Changed His Mind

To The Spectator:

Your editorial, "Waterman Made Waves," (Spectator, Feb. 10) gave me reason to sit down and re-evaluate my sense of values.

I, like many others, I suppose, usually criticize nit-pickers. As you pointed out, however, "If there's anything we do not need in Ohio politics it's elected officials who shy away from controversy . . . elected officials who 'don't make waves' because they fear losing friends at the polls."

I think, now, that Joe Waterman's alertness is to be praised and I thank you, the editors of The Spectator, for being alert enough to alert us on alertness.

Marvin Lieke
Columbus, Ohio

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Bring On The Girls

To The Spectator:

I certainly admire Mrs. Betty Knab's efforts in trying to revive burlesque in Columbus (Spectator, Feb. 10).

She hasn't got an easy job ahead of her but, if she sincerely believes in burlesque the way many of us do then, perhaps, her dream will come a reality.

I'm sure that even many of the city officials who worked so hard to keep burlesque from this "pure" capital would admit they have fond memories about the old days when burlesque was a fine form of entertainment.

And, I agree with Mrs. Knab when she says that a good, wholesome burlesque show would spell the demise of the smut movie houses that are contaminating Columbus.

An Old Showman

Suspects Scheming

To The Spectator:

It looks suspicious to me that Ted Brown and the GOP ringleaders are conniving and scheming to use every diabolical method possible to rule my petitions for governor invalidated.

Apparently Ted Brown ruled that I didn't have enough qualifying names on my petitions before the Knox County petitions containing 828 names had been received from the Knox County Board of Elections.

His letter informing me that he could not certify my name for placing it on the May 3 ballot for governor, was dated and postmarked Feb. 2, 1966. When I was in Mr. Brown's office on Feb. 3 the statement was made by one of his assistants, George Farris, that the Knox County petitions were late in being returned and had just arrived that morning. This statement was made in the presence of several newspaper reporters.

Later, I talked over the telephone to Bill West, who is also one of Brown's assistants, and he stated that the Knox County petitions arrived on Feb. 3.

If it is true that my Knox County petitions arrived in Ted Brown's office on the morning of Feb. 3 as stated by two of his assistants, then his dated and postmarked letter of Feb. 2, notifying me I didn't have enough signatures to qualify me as a candidate for governor, has every earmark of a frame-up to prevent me from running against James Rhodes for governor.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON: Marquis Childs

(Editor's Note: Spectator Washington correspondent Marquis Childs is currently in Honolulu, where he covered the visits there by the President and Vice-President):

HONOLULU — From the long row of windows in Admiral U.S.G. Sharp's office the view is out over Pearl Harbor and the sunlit sweep of the Pacific. As Commander-in-Chief, Admiral Sharp presides over an empire of 85,000,000 square miles, with American forces in the three services approaching the 600,000 mark.

CHILDS

So massive is the commitment to this empire that the Viet Nam war is seen as only one phase, if at the moment the most critical phase, of the thrust of American power. For better or for worse, the die has been cast. To reverse the drive for an American future in the vast area of the Pacific seems impossible short of a nuclear encounter.

Parallels are always dubious, but the central effort today is to do in the Pacific what the United States did in the Atlantic. That is to shape a new alliance and, to use a piece of government shorthand, build an infrastructure that will sustain it.

This is the chief objective of Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey's recent tour of Asia. It is first to wrestle up another 20,000 to 25,000 troops from America's Asian "allies" for the war in Viet Nam. But for the long pull it is to lay the groundwork for an alliance of broader scope and sterner purpose than the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

South Korea is expected to provide a second division of upwards of 20,000 men. Australia will contribute a second battalion and New Zealand may add a second small contingent. If present expectations are fulfilled, the Philippines will come through for the first time with 2,000 engineer-service troops.

Following a meeting of commanders from all over the Pacific, which coincided with the Honolulu conference, a new kind of cautious hope colors the outlook for Viet Nam. For perhaps the first time, military men speaking privately believe they have the elements in readiness to do the job. By 1967 the Viet Cong will begin to fade away, not by seeking negotiation at a peace table, which no one expects, but by acknowledging they cannot win.

At that point the guerrillas may spill over into Thailand through the Laos corridor, the route today of up to 80 percent of the infiltration into South Viet Nam.

But it is in the thrust of the far-flung construction effort that the permanence of the Pacific empire is evident. Hundreds of millions of dollars are going into contracts with the great American engineering firms to build whole new harbors, docks, large military installations. And this is not in Viet Nam alone.

In type, Admiral Sharp is no imperial pro-consul. He has a quiet, reasonable approach to the diplomatic aspects, including the bombing pause, as well as the military responsibilities of his command. But there is no doubt as he takes off from time to time to inspect his remote outposts who is boss of this extraordinary undertaking.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

Doris Day, America's reigning boxoffice queen, stars with Rod Taylor in the romantic-comedy, "Do Not Disturb," at Cinema East. Set in England, the film's cast also includes Sergio Fantoni and Hermione Baddeley with Reginald Gardiner, Maura McGilveney and Aram Katcher. Doris Day and Rod Taylor play an American couple who are transferred to England by Taylor's employers. There, the combination of British customs and business pressures head their marriage straight for Her Majesty's divorce courts. As can be expected, Doris Day turns in another sterling performance. While the comedy is pretty funny due to the many unusual situations that Day and Taylor become mixed up in, "Do Not Disturb" is primarily successful and entertaining because of Doris Day.

Excellent color photography makes this show interesting. It's like taking a wonderful, inexpensive trip to London and Paris. Presented in cinemascope and de luxe color, the director captures the flavor of Paris through good use of scenic shots and gay, night life atmosphere. "Do Not Disturb" is shown on a non-reserved seat, continuous performance basis at the Cinema East.

Continental Music At Normandy Room

Romantic music, a debonair troubadour and soft lights is the setting for exquisite dining in the Normandy Room at Stoney Creek. Spanish guitarist Alex Santiesteban's strolling background music is served for dining pleasure every Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Alex, who hails from Madrid, Spain, strums the guitar with continental flair. He sings in French, Italian, English as well as Spanish.

Manager Roger McElroy signed Alex following an enthusiastic reaction to the popular musician who was booked for one night at the resort restaurant.

Besides Alex, The Normandy Room offers the very best in food and service.

News From The Community Stage

In cooperation with the Arts Council of Columbus as part of its Winter Showcase of the Arts, the Gallery Players of the Jewish Center will present "The Glass Menagerie," by Tennessee Williams. This production will be given at the Jewish Center, opening Saturday, Feb. 19. The play will continue for 11 performances through Mar.-6.

Edythe Mendelson portrays Amanda Wingfield, Lillian Hubert plays the daughter.

Tickets are available at Central Ticket Office, 37 N. High-st, or at the Jewish Center, 1125 College-av.

Other items from community stages include The Little Theatre Off Broadway in Grove City, which presents Summer Arthur Long's "Never Too Late," Feb. 18, 19 and 25, 26 at 8:30 p.m. at Brookpark Junior High. Tickets are on sale at the door . . . Columbus Players Club is giving "Witness for the Prosecution," 8:30 p.m. Feb. 18, 19 and 24, 25, 26. Tickets may be obtained through club members.

With most community theaters operating, there are plenty of opportunities for amateur thespians. Contact one of the local community theatre groups now.

No Exploring At Explorers

The Explorers Restaurant, 1080 Dublin-rd, is undergoing several improvements. George A. Roberts, who recently acquired the Explorers, announced a complete redecorating program. Presently, the interior is being painted and new murals added. Next to come is carpeting of the entire restaurant. Serving excellent food for breakfast, lunch and dinner, at popular prices, the Explorers is open seven days a week. Roberts, who brings years of experience to the Explorers, has inaugurated many new policies. There is a special menu for children, and all pastries are baked fresh every day in their own ovens. A new, fast, convenient carryout service is offered. One can now drive right up to the kitchen door and pick up food. There is no exploring at the Explorers Restaurant. You know the quality of food and service that awaits you.

Monte Carlo Orchestra Schedules Visit

Monte Carlo is more widely known for its casino and Princess Grace, but it is also the home of a famous orchestra, which a Parisian critic has called "one of the five or six best in Europe." The Monte Carlo National Orchestra will give a concert at Veterans Memorial Thursday, Feb. 24, under the auspices of the Symphony Club of Central Ohio.

Conductor will be Paul Paray, and 26-year-old Michel Block, pianist, will be soloist. The program consists of Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony, "The Spider's Feast," ballet music by Albert Roussel, and Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe." Block will play the last of Mozart's piano concertos, that in B flat major, K. 595.

Tickets may be purchased at the Symphony Club's box office or at the Central Ticket Agency.

Third Anniversary At Lake View Inn

The Lake View Inn is presenting the fabulous Danny Mann Trio, nightly for dining and dancing pleasure. Danny, long a favorite with Columbus patrons, has a romantic voice that really sells a song. His trio is as good for listening as for dancing. This week, the Lake View Inn celebrates its third anniversary. All of the friends and patrons of the inn are invited to take part in the big celebration. This is truly one of the nicest rooms in the city, serving delicious steaks and chops at popular prices. They are open daily with good businessmen's luncheons. One can enjoy good music and food at the Lake View Inn 9 p.m.-2 a.m. daily and 8 p.m.-12:45 a.m. on Saturday.

A Starr Shines At Nationwide Inn

Cal Starr, guitarist and singing troubadour, is appearing nightly in the Sabre and Saddle Lounge at Nationwide Inn. Cal just finished a two-year stand in Chicago clubs and theatres, where he recently appeared with Ernest Tubb at McCormick Place.

The latest album of Cal Starr is on Capaco Records entitled "New Voice in Town," which has been selling very well. Sharing the stage with Starr are the highly popular Go-Go Girls of the Sabre and Saddle lounge.

VERNON

Jackie Vernon Is Subtle Master

An evening at Danny Deeds' Maramor is a guarantee of a night of laughter with Jackie Vernon. With recent appearances on the Jack Parr, Ed Sullivan and other television shows, Vernon brings to Columbus comedy that sells. While many other comedians have "laid an egg" in town, it's not the case with the talent of Jackie Vernon.

He is no slapstick comedian. Nor is his material in the vein of sick comedy. The sustance of his act is subtle comedy that is so ridiculous and unsuspecting it is hum-

For good, plain laughter, Jackie Vernon must be included on one's calendar of events this week.

REHEARSE 'LAST' PLAY

AREA RESIDENTS (from left) Betsy Klusener, Mike Van Horn, Mary Zettler and Mary Armstrong express concern that perhaps their rehearsals for St. Mary's Senior Class play, "I Remember Mama," are becoming too strenuous for Kathy Hoffman. The girls are seniors at St. Mary of the Springs Academy; Mike, a senior at Bishop Hartley High School. The play will be presented Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 19 and 20, at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre of Erskine Hall. Besides the Academy girls the cast includes boys from Bishop Hartley, Bishop Ready and Bishop Watterson High Schools. Tickets are available at the door. Because St. Mary of the Springs Acadmy will close this June, the seniors are making a special effort to make this a very special production carrying on the tradition in education this 98-year-old school represents.

MISS MILDRED SAYLOR, in charge of displays at the Bexley Library, is seen with a special display of antique dolls being shown there during February. They are the collection of the late Mrs. George Brinton Chandler and all of them date from 1820 to 1860. Most are foreign-made.

Display Antique Dolls At Bexley Library Now

Of current interest to the residents of Bexley and its vicinity is the display of antique dolls now being shown in the lobby of the Bexley Library. These dolls, from the collection of the late Mrs. George Brinton Chandler, who resided for many years on S. Drexel-av, are being loaned by Mrs. Lawrence U. Jeffries, 241 N. Remington-rd.

All of the dolls are more than 100 years old, dating from 1820 to 1860, most are foreign-made, and all are choice and unusual. Their composition is varied, ranging from papier-mache to glazed pink Dresden china and the beautiful Parian bisque with Dresden decorations of flower wreaths and lace frills. They are dressed according to their period, some in entirely original gowns, others faithfully redressed by Mrs. Chandler from fashion plates in Harper's and Godey's Lady Book, using old silks, laces, and embroideries — and skill.

Mrs. Chandler's collection, recognized as one of the finest in the country, originally numbered well over 300. Following her death in 1961, her daughters, Mrs. Jeffries and Mrs. Frederick L. Moore of Princeton, N.J., after selecting a few cherished dolls for themselves, divided the collection in half, making two donations in memory of their mother, one given to the Nationwide Foundation in Columbus, the other to Shelburne Museum in Vermont.

The Nationwide Foundation collection, arranged in settings with antique doll furniture and accessories, is on permanent public display at the WRFD studio and the adjoining Green Meadows Country Inn just north of Worthington, where it is constantly visited by central Ohioans and travelers alike.

The collection at Shelburne, Vt., in conjunction with the dolls and doll houses of the museum's founder, Mrs. Electra Webb, should attract anyone planning a summer motor trip through New England. The museum, covering 40 acres and housed in 40 original century-and-more old buildings, depicts a wide display of early Americana. It is open from May through September.

But for a more immediate and convenient introduction to some ladies of the past century, visit your Bexley Public Library first!

JANET RODA

VOGUE VISITS

Janet Roda, associate editor, Vogue Children's Magazine, will be at Lazarus Saturday, Feb. 26, 1:30 p.m., as special guest commentator for the store's Spring children's fashion show.

A special feature of the show, "Twins in Fashionland," will be 16 twins, five to 12 years old, modeling clothes for Spring and Easter. More than 40 outfits will be shown.

Miss Roda, a born New Yorker, graduated from Endicott Junior College in Boston. She has been fabric editor of Mademoiselle Magazine and head of several of the magazine's departments.

Lazarus Spring children's fashion show is open to the public at no charge but tickets are necessary and currently available in the store's sixth floor children's department. Reservations can be made by calling 463-2121, extension 3780.

Celebrates 100th Birthday

MRS. AMELIA WINKELHAUSEN, 1159 Kingsley-av, celebrated her 100th birthday Jan. 31. Born in Franklin County she has lived her entire life in Columbus. Her husband was William Winkelhausen and she had three children; Helen Winkelhausen, Mrs. Gladys Wilkenson and William, Jr. Her entire family is deceased with the exception of her daughter-in-law with whom she makes her home, Mrs. William Winkelhausen. She is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, Third and Fulton-sts, and she worked many years at the M. C. Lilley Co. on E. Long-st. Shown presenting Mrs. Winkelhausen with 100 roses, one for each year of her life, from Columbus Allied Florists Association is (left) Lou Viereck and Jack Connell, association members.

House Party Set For Baptist Girls

Young women, aged 16 to 24, and their counsellors throughout Ohio will attend the annual Young Woman's Auxiliary House Party Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 19 and 20, at the Fairground Youth Center.

Approximately 300 are expected to attend the event sponsored by the Woman's Missionary Union Department of the State Convention of Baptists in Ohio.

Purpose is to bring together representatives from Young Woman's Auxiliary Organizations from more than 325 churches affiliated with the State Convention of Baptists in Ohio.

The young women will participate in activities centered around missions which will help them to become better informed about their obligations through their churches.

A missionary from Nigeria, two foreign students—one from Brazil, another from Hong Kong, and a pastor will be featured speakers.

Young Woman's Auxiliary Promotional Features will be presented by Cheryl Black, Nancy Winslow and Jo Lett, Whitehall Baptist Church, and Kathy Lindsay, Carolyn Allaby, Sherri and Linda Tetters, Frances Miller and Linda Lacey, Reynoldsburg Baptist Church.

ANNUAL TEA HELD

Ziv Chapter, B'nai B'rith Girls, held its annual Mother-Daughter Tea recently in the Ponderosa, Lex Mayers' Meeting Room, 5055 E. Main-st.

A wig fashion show was featured. Modeling were Mrs. Melvin Eisler, Mrs. William Bless and Linda Bless, Mrs. Charles Weiss and Paulette Weiss. Mary Korenberg and Karen Dietch were refreshment chairmen.

Rhonda Freedman and Karen Pilzer arranged favors.

Mit pins were presented by Judy Alexander.

MOM'S IN HOT WATER
...SINCE SHE GOT HER NEW FLAME!

Matter of fact, the whole family's in hot water—because Mom's new flame is a modern, durable Gas water heater.

No more infuriating waits while a pokey flameless water heater recovers from the shock of delivering a tub-full of hot water. Their new Gas water heater, with its unequaled quick recovery, is always ready with all the hot water a modern family needs.

With a dependable Gas water heater, you'll be in hot water, too—and you'll love it. Especially when you think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

Anti-Commie Campaign Started

By The Spectator's
TOM SEDLAK

John K. Madden, 31 E. Town-st, has launched a campaign to rid Columbus of "left-wing extremists." He told The Spectator recently that his prime target is the Spartacist Party, a group which recently opened an office and mailing headquarters at 1508 Summit-st.

Columbus Safety Director Frederick J. Simon also said he was concerned about the Spartacist activities. He said he investigated legal aspects of the group after reading an article in The Spectator Jan. 20.

JOHN MADDEN

The article exposed the local Spartacist movement and quoted one of its leaders who said, "We definitely are Communists."

"However, I learned," Simon said, "that the statements made of this group's desire to overthrow the American government are not illegal as long as they do not advocate that it be overthrown by force or violence.

Simon added that city government has no legal jurisdiction in matters involving "un-American" activities. He said he has asked Police Chief George W. Scholer to contact the FBI to advise it of city officials' concern about Spartacist activities.

But Madden plans to take a more direct approach. Already he has sent letters to President Lyndon B. Johnson, Gov. James A. Rhodes, Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner and many newspapers.

"Now I want to bring together people and money for an opposition campaign to run the Spartacists out of the state," Madden said. "If somebody doesn't do something quick, these people are going to ruin the American way of life."

He said he believes the Spartacists' basic goal is to create turmoil on the Ohio State University campus and accused university officials of being "lax" in dealing with students who are members of the organization.

"I was in the U.S. Marines during the Korean War," he said. "I know what America stands for, and I think it is disgusting that we allow Communists to operate in our own backyards while Americans are fighting the spread of communism on the other side of the world."

Simon said he does not believe left-wing activities are increasing in Columbus, but only that the leaders are becoming "more vocal."

"I personally feel that our people are intelligent enough to deal with these groups," Simon said. "And the best way to deal with them is to ignore them because they thrive on publicity."

'Miss Politics' Wed In East Denver Church

Miss Politics of Ohio, 1964, Miss Vickie Sue Hixson, is now Mrs. Edward O'Gara III.

VICKIE HIXSON

Mrs. O'Gara is a well-known Columbus model. Her husband also models and is a former lacrosse player for Notre Dame. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Hixson, 4245 Vineshire-dr, while the bridegroom is the son of Mr. Edward O'Gara II of Chicago and the late Mrs. O'Gara.

The couple exchanged vows in the Blessed Sacrament Church, East Denver, before the Rev. Fr. Faylen. A reception followed for 50 guests.

Mrs. O'Gara is a graduate of West High and Ohio State University, and member of Glenwood Methodist Church, Valley View.

Her husband is a 1965 graduate of Notre Dame.

The couple has resided at 1650 Paris-st, Aurora, Colo., since their November wedding. They plan to visit both their families this month before Mr. O'Gara leaves for his training in the Naval Air Force. The couple will reside in California after Mr. O'Gara's training period.

SPEAKS ON ART

Events Set At St. Pius

Tom Gleba, TV newscaster and weatherman, was the guest speaker at the St. Pius X Rosary Altar Society meeting Wednesday, Feb. 2, 8 p.m. in the parish school. He showed films and discussed his "Visit to the Vatican and Europe" including an audience with Pope Paul VI and tour of Rome with former Bishop of Columbus Clarence Issenmann.

The hostesses were Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. Gary McCaw, assisted by members of Team 1 of the Pataskala and Lakeland Hills area.

Mrs. Paul Kunkemoeller, society president, announced the election of Mrs. Charles Deignan as vice president. Mrs. Edward Fagan and Mrs. Michael Zorich are chairmen of the new Sunshine Committee. Duties include visiting the ill. A representative from each team will assist.

• • •

St. Pius women participated in a lenten evening of Recollection, Tuesday, Mar. 8, at the Shrine of St. Therese, E. Broad-st. Mrs. Edward Fry, religious activities chairman, was in charge, assisted by Mrs. J. R. Flaherty. Dinner was served at the Shrine, followed by several chapel sessions under Msgr. Patrick Griffin, retreat master.

POSTAL SUPERVISORS TO PARTY

WASHINGTON'S CHERRY BLOSSOMS will set the scene Tuesday, Feb. 22 at 5:30 in the Desert Inn, 3540 E. Broad-st, for the annual George Washington Birthday Banquet for Postal Supervisors and their families. Arrangements are being made by Auxiliary Branch 33. Mrs. John Meehan is general chairman assisted by Mrs. Frank Bower, Mrs. Carl Stalder, Mrs. Joseph Huffman and Mrs. Therman LeCrone. Making decorations for the event are Mrs. Stalder, standing, and from left: Mrs. Bower, Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. Meehan. All retired postal supervisors will be honored. (Foto by Firestone).

RAISE HOSPITAL FUNDS

THE LARGEST fund rasing project of the Women's Service Board of Grant Hospital is the Candy Cane Charity Ball. At the Grant Hospital Board of Trustees meeting, a check for $8,882.51 was presented by Mrs. Raymond W. Bethel (left) general chairman of the Second Annual Candy Cane Charity Ball 1965, and Mrs. Jesse Eisen, president of the Women's Service Board, to Dr. Warren G. Harding II, Grant Hospital administrator, and Paul R. Gingher, president, Hospital Board of Trustees. This amount was the net profit from the ball to be put in the endowment fund for the needs of Grant Hospital.

East, Hartley Earn 'View From The Top'

By BOB WHITMAN

The trumpets pealed praise to the champions last Friday night for pair of Eastern Spectator cage teams.

The quick Tigers from East gained their third City League title in four years with a 52-50 win over West before a jam-packed Capital University field house crowd.

While a little more than a dozen blocks away, the muscular Hartley Hawks were ditching DeSales, 82-61 to gain their second Catholic crown in as many years. The Hawks shared the trophy with Watterson last season.

BOB HART'S talented Tiger quintet became unhinged late in the contest and almost blew an ideal situation to a never-quit Cowboy squad.

East had the ball, a 51-43 lead and Jerry Francis, West's offensive whiz, on the bench (fouled out) with 1:09 left.

But a hook shot by West's Larry Ginn and five quick points by sub Jim McGhee put West within one 51-50 with 26 seconds left.

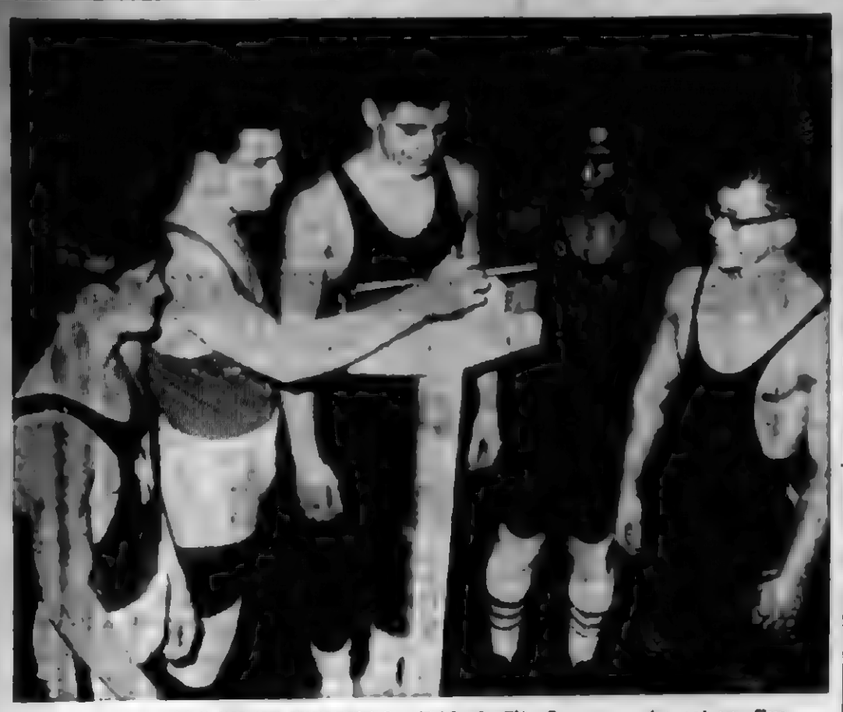
THE COWBOY'S had the ball and were driving for a lay-in with 15 seconds showing when Bob Spears slipped and was called for traveling.

Guard John Frazer added East's 52 point by making the first of a one and one situation. The second shot bounced to Ginn who hurled it to Jimmy Bell, whose desperation shot from mid-court was short.

Hart bemoaned the numerous mistakes in that final and almost nightmarish minute. "We made too many silly errors" he said.

HARTLEY reported back to the floor after intermission with a five point lead (30-25) and then exploded in a 25-10 third period margin.

The Hawks coasted the rest of the way en route to a 52 point second half and an outright Catholic crown.



Denny Parker topped the scorers with 23 points and brother Doug Parker finished second with 21.

DeSALES WAS the preseason choice to capture the crown which has been Watterson and Hartley's toy for the last five years (three for Watterson outright and a share with Hartley and Hartley's this year).

Jackie Moore's Walnut Ridge team got their second in a row Friday with a 62-54 win over Whetstone. The Scots baffled Brave scoring ace Dick Rahn, holding him to four points.

Last games before tournament time for area teams are Friday: East goes for an outright City title this week against Walnut Ridge (2-13), Hartley (11-6) hosts Ready (6-11), South (8-6) at Eastmoor (6-8), Whitehall (11-6) at Arlington (14-3), Bexley (8-8) at Urbana, Academy (8-8) at West Jeferson (6-8) and Gahanna (6-10) hosts London in a Mid-Eight finale.

WATCHIN' THEIR WEIGHT for Friday's City League mat meet are five top contenders for individual titles. From left are: Whetstone's Doug Johnson (112, 10-2), Walnut Ridge's John Cruse (175, 9-3), West's Benny King (defending 154 lb. City champ, 13-2), East's Jake Holloway ('65 runnerup at 127, 15-0) and North's Rick Rodock (105, 8-0).

City, SSL, Mid-Eight, CCL Stage Annual Loop Meets This Weekend

By JACK WITTENMEIER

School boy wrestling moves into its final pre-sectional warmups this weekend, sporting four big league meets which promise to serve as indicators for district favorites.

The City and Mid-Eight Leagues have scheduled Friday-Saturday tournaments while the South Suburban and Central Catholic loops (three and four teams respectively) jam all the action into one Saturday "basket."

THE CITY tourney (at South) features all 11 loop members (Central, East, Eastmoor, Linden, Marion-Franklin, North, South, Walnut Ridge, West, Whetstone and defending champ Brookhaven).

Prelims are scheduled Friday at 3 p.m. with an admission of 50 cents charged to spectators. Action resumes with semi-finals (noon) Saturday with finals getting underway about 3:30. Saturday's admission will be $1.

CITY MEET

Defending champ — Brookhaven (topped runnerup Eastmoor, 97-61); Returning champs — Benny King (West); Returning runnerups — Brad Burbacher, Ron Levi, Steve Kesterson (B-H), Ralph Cox, Jake Holloway (East).

TOP INDIVIDUALS

CITY*

103 — Cox (E), Callinan (EM), Graham (WH), Forrest (MF); 112—Johnson (WH), Sherman (C), Humphrey (MF), Sheets (WR); 120 — Burbacher (BH), Carmean (N), Prendergast (EM), Stoner (WR); 127 — Holloway (E), Frasure (C); 133 — VonEida (EM), Holley (W), Terry (C), Nolo (BH); 138 — Bennett (E), Russell (C); 145 — Thomas (W); 154 — King (W) 165 — Mixon (EM), Rogers (W), McNeal (BH), Rodock (N), Bowman (C), Robinson (S); 175 — White (E), Cruse (WR), Newpoff (EM), Harper (S); HWT — Jackson (E), Gutridge (BM).

* based solely on seasonal records.

DEFENDING league champion DeSales plays host to that loop's mat tourney Saturday.

Prelims are slated for 1 p.m. with action continuing through to the meet's conclusion. Admission (whole session) will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Besides a trophy to the winning team, the meet's outstanding wrestler will receive the "Casey Fredericks Trophy."

Participants will include Bishop Ready, Bishop Hartley, Bishop Watterson and the host Stallions.

CCL MEET

CCL*

103 — Geese (W); 112 — tossup; 120 — Arnold (DeS), Weldon (H); 127 — Brown (H); 133 — McNamara (W), Stratman (R); 138 — Mahoney (DeS); 145 — Micheal (R), Newton (H); 154 — Hiles (DeS), Scales (R); 165 — DeAscentis (DeS), Morrison (R); 175 — Barleycorn (H); HWT—Jones (R).

* based solely on seasonal records.

DUE TO the split-up of the Central Buckeye League there will be neither a CBL nor a BAC (Buckeye Athletic Conference) mat tourney this season.

"FEARLESS" FAVORITES

CCL — big edge to DeSales; SSL—big edge to Franklin Heights; MID-EIGHT—tossup between Groveport and Hilliard; CITY — East to edge West; Brookhaven, Eastmoor close behind.

WHITEHALL (8-0) and East (4-0) maintained perfect dual marks during the week while the Tigers added the top pre-District prestige victory of the season by heading the Top Eight field at DeSales Saturday.

The Bengal matmen took three firsts (Ralph Cox, Jake Holloway, Willie Jackson), a second (Clarence Bennett) and three consolation wins (Young, Taylor, White) to help amass 78 points—enough to slip past runner-up West (72 points).

Two other area entries at the tourney — Eastmoor and Walnut Ridge — finishing seventh and eighth respectively.

JOE VONEIDA'S second was best for the Warriors while Dave Sheets' consolation win was tops for the Scotties.

George White's decision followed by Jackson's pin-win provided the "umph" for the Tigers to bypass Linden, 25-16, in a dual test.

Cox got East's only other pin while Holloway, Dan Young, Bennett and Bob Taylor copped decisions.

WHITEHALL struck early (led 12-0), then hung on top for a 20-18 verdict over Arlington.

Decisions by Bruce Upperman, Mike Becker, Steve Beery and Spike Ludwig provided that early lead while Randy Nichols and Bill Stewart later added verdicts.

The winning margin actually came on Dave Graff's draw at 175.

BEXLEY split a pair — downing Hamilton Township, 48-3, but losing to Groveport, 24-15.

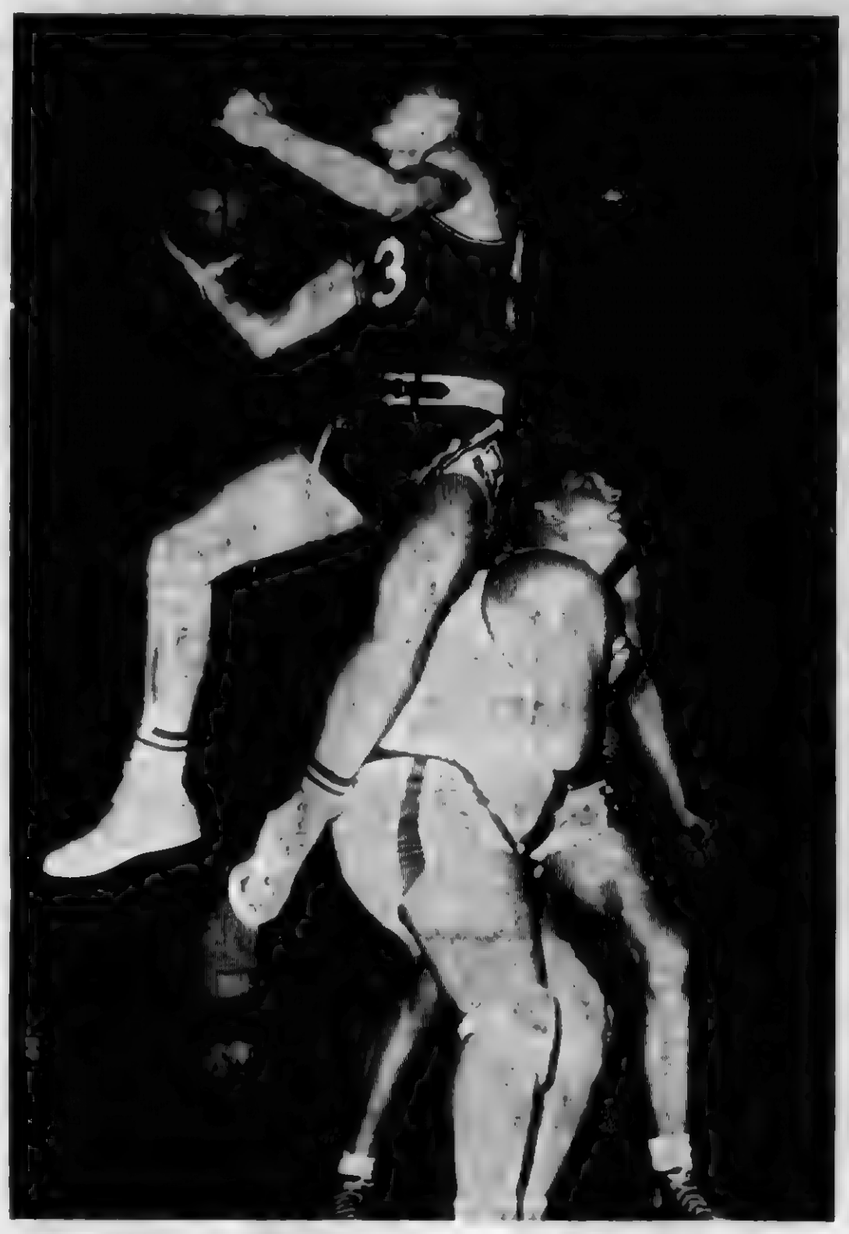
Reese Lattimer, Steve Sloan, Mike Elin, Marc Gitlitz, Gary Gitlitz and Rick Grove all won via pins as the Lions won 10 of 11 matches against the Rangers.

Lattimer, Sloan and heavyweight Dennis Walker got the victories vs. Groveport, the latter via a pin.

DECISIONS by Steve Flowers, Pete Prendergast and Rick Newpoff were all the points Eastmoor could ring up in a 26-9 setback to West.

Elsewhere, Hartley dropped a pair—23-20 to South and 25-12 to Fremont St. Joseph.

The Hawks dropped a ten-point lead as South copped the final three classes.



ROSWELL BROWN got Hawks' lone pin while Jack McNamara, Joe Weldon, P. K. Erwin, Mike Newton and Lou Bernhard got verdicts.

Hartley took a 9-0 lead on Fremont (decisions by McNamara, Bob Fowle and Weldon) but those were all the wins the Hawks were to get (except Mike Newton's decision at 145).

Vic Bodish To Head '66 Jet Book Ticket Drive

Columbus Postmaster Victor Bodish will head the 1966 Columbus Jets Book Ticket sales drive. The drive gets under way Mar. 15 and runs through Apr. 20. Its goal is 70,000 tickets.

Ticket books will again sell for $10 — a savings of $5 on each book.

SIT-IN — Rod Parker (with ball) ran into a "peck" of trouble Saturday on this field goal attempt, taking an impromptu seat on the broad shoulders of Hamilton Township's Kenny Peck. Needless to say, the goal attempt went awry but Rod totalled 11 points anyway, helping pace Hawks to tenth straight win via 72-65 win over Rangers. (Staff photo by Jack Wittenmeier).

'Fearless Predictions'

"Fearless" came up with a 17-5 record Friday night and seems to have the knack once again.

And it was found almost too late as the teams go to the hardwood for the last time before tourneys.

The overall "fearless" log for the year is a 259-89 for a .743 percentage.

WHATZAT??

SPECTATOR Sports Editor Jack Wittenmeier registered slight surprise at this headline until he was told the paper was part of The Spectator's fun at Tuesday's meeting between WMNI radio and Cincinnati Reds officials. The meeting finalized plans for the radio station to broadcast all Cincy games this coming season.

Kegler's Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Congratulations to John J. Webb who opened everybody's eyes at Winko by bowling his perfect game in league play — at 1 a.m.

Favorite bowling daughter — Marge Merrick — is featured in the February issue of The Woman Bowler magazine.

ONE OF Columbus' bowlingest families is the Davis clan — all six members of which are league bowlers at various East Side establishments.

The Davis' include father Glenn, Sr.; mother Jane and children Glenn, Jr., 17; Frances, 14, and John, 12. According to Mom, the Davis house has a closet "just for our bowling equipment."

Grove City Lanes, under Manager Earl Purcell, has four men's leagues and three women's leagues founded in 1957. They yearly sponsor the Spot Bowlers Blind Tournament.

PERTINENT remark: A bowling bore is a fellow who opens his mouth and puts his feats in it.

If you would like to write to a serviceman in Viet Nam who is interested in bowling send your letter unsealed and unstamped in a larger envelope and mail to Vietnam Mail Call, Box 2602, Washington, D.C. 20013.

In lower right hand corner of the big envelope in which you mail your letter, place the word "Bowler."

THESE LETTERS will be distributed to information officers in Viet Nam who will see that they get to servicemen who ordinarily do not get mail. No packages, please.

It is said — "Some people bowl religiously—every Sunday."

High money winner thus far in PBA events is Dick Weber, St. Louis, Mo., with $22,140. Who says that good bowling doesn't pay?

PLAN TO enter the Optimist Club of Western Columbus' Headpin event at Western Lanes (next two weekends). Donations go to boys work.

Splits are a bowler's menace—but they happen to the best. At Detroit's ABC I saw Billy G. bowl in the classic division, leaving nine 7-10's in a three-game series.

He did not convert any of them but in each case picked up either the seven or 10 pin.

DID YOU know that 67 foreign countries now have tenpin bowling?

Watch for announcements of the League Secretary's Tournament to be held in late April or early May.

TIP OF THE WEEK: On a wide open split, do not try to convert. Play safe — aim for the pin or pins you are most likely to get. Better some pins on your score than none at all.

Local Hearing Aid Sales 'Racket' Goes On Unheard

SIXTH IN A SERIES

Hard-of-hearing people in the Greater Columbus Area —some incurabley deaf—are falling victim to one of the most smoothly-operating, least noticed and most seldom challenged group of hucksters to hit town in several years. They've invaded a business which has opened doors for them by not licensing its dealers.

They sell hearing aids—over-priced and often worthless—and they rake in tens of thousands of dollars a year at it.

Unfortunately, the hearing aid business has the needed characteristics of a fast-cash racket.

It has an embarrassed, and generally desperate clintelle. Most people with hearing difficulties don't want to broadcast the fact. And they want desperately to keep a job and a normal way of life. This makes them easy marks for a campaign which promises a cheap, fast solution to their problems.

Medical matters bore the eye-teeth off the man on the street. Thus, the most unethical practices in hearing aid sales can continue under the noses of an uninterested public.

There are no self-governing forces within the business to keep it "clean." Oregon is the only state which requires licensing of dealers. The dealership, salesman and product are all free from the need of anyone's stamp of approval.

So what happens? This:

An elderly man is sitting at home a few hours after dinner. It's been a long day and he has removed his shirt, tie and shoes to relax.

The doorbell rings. It rings because some time ago he listed his hearing deficiency on a job application, or signed for a free drawing on a hearing aid, or answered an advertisement offering the "perfect" hearing aid.

He opens the door — and for him the battle's over, because in the next three or four hours the two well-dressed salesmen who barge in will pressure him to the point where he would be willing to sign a confession to membership in the Communist party just to get rid of them and get some sleep.

While they're in his living room, the salesmen are apt to use any one of a dozen shady sales techniques.

As one handles the sales-pitch, the other might take the "customer's" own hearing aid into the next room in order to "examine it under a stronger light." He will either stuff cotton down the throat of the instrument, to make it sound inferior to the one being demonstrated, or return with a handful of worthless parts, claiming the aid is defective (the hearing aid he took out of the room is in his pocket, completely intact, ready to be re-sold as a "used" model to someone else).

Meanwhile the other salesman has run electronic tests on the man's hearing, with impressive-looking equipment (his technical background consists of the ability to find three stations on a transistor radio). He punctuates his interminable pitch with scare-statements such as, "You'll be deaf within six months if you don't buy now!"

The real capper comes when the prospect finally agrees to buy. The terms quoted sound easy enough to handle, he really is concerned about his hearing — and besides, he's tired.

One of the two holds out a sheet of paper, with some very interesting fine print folded out of sight.

"Just a receipt," the salesman says, "to show the boss I was at your house tonight, and not goofing off on the job."

The customer signs, and doesn't realize he has placed his signature on what may be an agreement to pay fantastic interest rates, or a chattel mortgage—either of which will hold up in any court."

A few weeks later, he marches down to the dealer's office carrying the worthless hunk of junk he has purchased. He doesn't know it, but he is quite probably the proud owner of an obsolete used hearing aid, enclosed in a shiny new casing. And if he checks the fine print on his guarantee, he'll discover that it only covers those parts which virtually never wear out.

At the office, he is confronted with his own signature on a contract and the threat of lawsuit if he doesn't pay up. The fact that he is crippled without a functioning hearing aid means nothing.

This story is not an extreme case. It is average. You can hear worse tales, about people in your own area, from doctors or reputable hearing aid dealers.

For those who doubt that these men are more interested in profit than the welfare of their customers, an example:

There is one brand of hearing aid — a Japanese import — bought in large quantities at a factory cost of $12 each. Suggested retail price is around $29.50. You can get one in Columbus for the low, low price of $300 and up.

It is strange that barbers and beauticians must pass a licensing test in order to practice, and yet are not as closely associated with the health of their clients as are the hearing aid dealers.

Licensing is not as easy as it sounds. It must be done through the enactment of a law by the state legislature. Attempts to license dealers in states other than Oregon have been defeated by a determined and well-organized industry.

Business ethics are fine until they cut into the astronomical profit. No manufacturer or distributor will back a measure which would inevitably trim the land-office sales of his product.

And the dealers are told in their monthly bulletins that licensing would be too restricting and would subject them to the control of the medical profession. A recent edition of "The Hearing Dealer" suggests ways for local dealers to organize against attempts at passing a licensing law—offering "legislative kits" to be used as guides in state legislature procedure.

But despite the industry's insistence that it can clean its own house, the problem still exists. Innocent people are still being "taken."

The problem will be resolved when the business is cleaned up.

And the business will be cleaned up when enough local people who have been victimized by unethical dealers have the fortitude to write their state senators and representatives and tell them about it.

IN THE NEWS THIS WEEK...

From Spectator Area News Sources

'We, The People . . .'

After a stop at Beechwood Elementary School in Whitehall, members of the Eastern Sertoma Club called upon Bexley Mayor William Schneider at City Hall to present the city with a bronze copy of the Declaration of Independence. Next on their itinerary was a luncheon meeting to hear Judge Paul Herbert of the Ohio Supreme Court, followed by a trip to Montrose Elementary in Bexley. Bronze copies of the Declaration of Independence went to each school and each student received a similar copy. It was all part of Eastern Sertoma's way of celebrating Freedom Day.

Famous Band Here!

Tickets are still available for the 8 p.m. performance of the University of Michigan Symphony Orchestra's appearance at Whitehall-Yearling High School Friday, Feb. 25. Lawrence Griffin, band director at Yearling, said this is the "biggest thing band-wise that has happened in Columbus." Schools from all over Ohio are expected to attend this event which will feature a matinee at 2 p.m. as well as the evening performance. The Michigan orchestra was the first college organization chosen by the state department to tour as a part of the cultural exchange program. They have played all over the world including Moscow where they received 45 encores. Tickets are $1.25 and are available at the door. All seats are reserved.

'Safety' To Be Topic

The South East Community Council announces that Ptl. Steve McDonald will speak at its Mar. 8 meeting to be held at the Barnett Recreation Center at 8:30 p.m. The public is invited. Steve will talk on "Home and Neighborhood Safety." A question and answer period will follow. The Pinehills Civic Association has become the 20th organization to participate in the South East Community Council. New South East Community Council officers, installed at the January meeting, are: Hal Smith, president; Roger Folz, vice-president; Mrs. Mary Bratka, secretary, and Mrs. Ellen Post, treasurer.

Church Hosts Leader

A civic leader from London, England, will be the guest speaker at a luncheon at Broad Street Christian Church Friday, Feb. 25. An outstanding international spokesman on urban problems, Dr. Maurice Barbett's visit is being sponsored by the Central Coordinating Council of the East Side of Columbus. Reservations may be made by calling the church office.

Bexley Scholars Tops

Bexley High School claimed five of the finalists in the national merit scholarship testing this week — now eligible for merit scholarship are, Charles Burkam, Woody Jones, Fritz Laird, Steve Samuels and Phil Stohn. The 2000 scholarship winners, to be selected from the 14,000 national finalists, will be announced from Mar. 25 to Apr. 20. The five Bexley seniors are in the upper 11 percent of their class, and two of them—Woody Jones and Charles Burkam—have 4.0 averages.

What's New Y-Teens?

"What's New?," a city-wide Y-Teen program will be held Saturday, Feb. 26, at 8 p.m. in the Youth C. . . at the Ohio State Fairgrounds. Entertaining groups from most Columbus high schools will perform. Three folk singing groups will represent the East End: Terry Dickson and Dinah Caldwell from Eastmoor, Terry Ervin from Walnut Ridge, and Chet Weld and Bill Cohen from Bexley. Tickets are being sold through the Y-Teen Clubs for $1.

Attention Carriers!

The Spectator is offering a chance for its carriers to get their Father's Day gifts now. How? From Tuesday, Mar. 1, to Tuesday, May 10. The Spectator is having a subscription contest. And listen to the prize: For every five new paid-in-advance customer subscriptions the carrier turns in, he gets one free ticket (plus meal and transportation) to the doubleheader between the Cincinnati Reds and the New York Mets. Any carrier who gets 10 subscriptions can take Dad along because the game is held Father's Day, June 19. Check with your supervisor or call the Circulation Department (BR. 4-1155) for more details. Get busy and get that special gift for dad and yourself for June 19!

Mimi: Gal On The Move

Mimi Deaton, a Bexley High School senior, is The Spectator's first "High School Journalist of the Year" in the Franklin County area.

The personable and bright young lady is a fine example of the top-quality high school journalists of today. She's a fine student and is quite active in her school community.

Important, too, is the fact that she has an adult outlook in her journalism duties on the Bexley High "Torch." This is adequately distilled with her pleasing sense of humor.

She is featured this week in The Spectator's big "Tales Out Of Schools" edition in Section B of this newspaper.

She is the first. There will be many more in the years to come but the standards have risen somewhat this week thanks to a girl named Mimi . . .

BEXLEY'S SWIM RECORD-BREAKERS

THIS SEPTET of Bexley swimmers recently established a pair of school tank records in the 200-yd. medley relay and 400-yd. freestyle relay events. Pictured with varsity coach Russ Owen are (from left): Rod Gossett, A. J. Myers, Colby Crall, Larry Ringer, Bob Kahan and Pat Leach.

Raider-Hawk Tilt Highlights Area 'AA' Tourney Schedule

By JACK WITTENMEIER

It isn't often that the "fate of the draw" lines up a pair of league champs as opening tournament foes but AA drawings set up just that sort of faceoff for this Wednesday.

Reynoldsburg, new FCL champ, will challenge Hartley, title holder in the CCL, at 7:30 p.m. at the Fairgrounds Coliseum for the right to advance.

THAT BATTLE is preceded Monday by yet another quirk of the draw — one that pairs Mid-Eight League co-champs Hilliard and Grove City (9 p.m.).

The Hawk-Raider match serves as an encore to a meeting between the two schools last year when Hartley bounced Reynoldsburg out of the running after each had captured opening tests.

Fans will get the opportunity to watch two opposing styles — Reynoldsburg's steady, determined pace with emphasis on defense and Hartley's "hit 'n run," sometimes "alley ball" style of attack.

DICK GEYER'S Hawks (12-6) have been the real "comers" since the turn of the year—the Hawks apparently making a New Year's resolution not to lose.

They haven't, incidentally, since Dec. 29, when Brookhaven dropped the Hawks to 1-6 with a 77-73 setback.

But Hartley bounced back with a big win over tough Dayton Alter and hasn't been headed in 11 straight games since, downing Watterson, DeSales, Hamilton Township and Ready twice each and adding wins over Hillsboro and Mansfield St. Peters.

REYNOLDSBURG (13-5) can't claim an 11-game win skein but the Raiders did wade through a pressure-packed schedule in an FCL unparalleled for its balance this season.

There is a great deal of difference between shooting a grouse and blasting a parakeet in a cage — one is hunting, the other is butchery.

Offensively, the game boils down to a match between the Raiders' scoring twins—juniors Gary Shade and Terry Miller (just under 17 pts. per game averages) and CCL scoring king Dave Rogers and the deadly Parker trio.

THE HAWKS hold the scoring balance edge with four starters — Doug Parker (6-5, 16.0), Denny Parker (6-1, 12.9), Rod Parker (6-2, 11.5) and Rogers (6-5, 12.7) —in double figures.

Rebounding will be another key factor in Raider coach Dick Fishbaugh's thinking. Board ability is a Hartley strong point, although the smaller Raiders have done well in this department this season — often against taller quintets (total of 821).

But Fishbaugh also realizes his charges face the serious challenge of slowing down Hartley's running game which features the almost uncanny passing of the Parker trio.

WEDNESDAY'S winner faces the winner of the Whetstone-Circleville game Saturday (Mar. 5) at 9:30 p.m.

IN OTHER area "AA" action, City champ East (11-5) faces Buckeye Valley (16-1) in the tourney opener tonight at 6.

Tomorrow, defending District champ Eastmoor (7-8) resumes play (5 p.m.) vs. Lakewood (6-13) while Walnut Ridge (2-14), Gahanna (6-12) and Whitehall (10-8) wait until Saturday to break tourney "ice."

The Scotties face Marysville (7-11) at 6:30 p.m., the Lions battle Watterson (8-8) at 8, before the Rams close play at 9:30 against Teays Valley (10-7).

BEXLEY is the last area five to face tourney competition — the Lions (8-9) battling London (7-11) in a 9 p.m. finale Tuesday.

Only "A" test finds Academy (8-9) meeting rugged Westfall (16-3) at Ashville Saturday (7 p.m.).

Matmen Vie For 88 District Slots In Sectionals At Whetstone, W-R

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Eight area grapplers in each of 11 weight classes will move one step closer to the state wrestling tourney (Mar. 11-12 at St. John Arena) this weekend with success at Sectional tourneys scheduled for Whetstone and Walnut Ridge.

The winner and runnerup in each class at the four sectionals will advance to district competition the following Friday and Saturday (Mar. 4-5) at Walnut Ridge.

ADMISSION at the sectional tourneys will be $1 for adults (students included) and 50 cents for children (under 12).

Here's the rundown of teams for the sectionals:

SOUTHWEST SECTIONAL (Sat., 1 p.m., at Whetstone)

Central, West, Bishop Ready, Franklin Heights, Pleasant View, Grove City, South, Hamilton Township, Circleville and the Ohio School for the Blind.

NORTHEAST SECTIONAL (Fri., 7 p.m., at Wal. Ridge)

Brookhaven, DeSales, Linden, Westerville, East, Mifflin, North, Bishop Watterson, Newark and Fairfield Union.

SOUTHEAST SECTIONAL (Sat., 1 p.m., at Wal. Ridge)

Whitehall, Bexley, Eastmoor, Walnut Ridge, Bishop Hartley, Groveport, Marion-Franklin, Watkins Memorial, Granville and Liberty Union.

SECTIONAL tourney managers are Tom Beck at Whetstone and Pat McMillen at Walnut Ridge.

EAST TOOK the last step to regaining the City League wrestling championship Saturday at South, copping four individual firsts and edging West, 35-29, for the title laurels.

East thus regained the CL top spot after Walnut Ridge and Brookhaven had pushed the Tigers out of a three-year mat reign into a two-year dry spell.

Chuck Deyo's crew did it again with its big guns—Ralph Cox at 103, Jake Holloway at 127, Clarence Bennett at 138 and Willie Jackson at heavyweight.

Hartley lost out in a thrilling battle for the runnersup slot in the CCL mat tourney (won by DeSales), the Hawks (61 pts.) tumbling behind Ready (68) and Watterson (63).

Mike Newton (145) got Hartley's lone win while Joe Weldon, Roswell Brown and P. K. Erwin had to settle for seconds.

IN A pair of area dual meets, Bexley edged by Ready, 20-16, and Walnut Ridge clobbered Marion-Franklin, 32-11.

Reese Lattimer, Steve Sloan, Mike Elin, Jim Kelley, Mark Gitlitz and Rick Grove got the Lion decisions over Ready.

Terry Roberts and Dave Saffle got W-R pins while Dave Sheets, George Stoner, Dave Carr, Greg Fout and John Cruse got verdicts in the win over M-F.

Celtics Capture Round In Whitehall BB Play

Paced by leading scorer Ken Maxwell, Chances "R" downed Bubba Sitta, 62-42, to run its Young Adult league-leading cage record to 8-0 last week.

Jerry Meldrum's 33 points paced the Bombers to a 59-32 win over Rinehart Five. In other games, Silent Woman trimmed Ohio State Bank, 59-32, and Hales' All-Stars tripped the Fire Dept., 82-51.

BILL FOULKE'S 16 points showed the way as the Raiders (5-0, leader of Senior Boys cage league) bounced the Zats, 53-37.

Elsewhere, the Fingerbowls crushed the Klans, 130-59, behind Louis Bard's 36-point effort and the second-place Bruins slipped past West, 42-36, with Mike Fasone's 14 points high for the winners.

Leading Junior Boys' scorer Danny Purdue (105 pts. for first round) guided the Celtics to the initial round title via a tight 36-34 win over the Globetrotters.

IN OTHER scores, the Invaders nipped the Warriors, 32-21, and the Buckeyes dropped the Raiders, 38-27. Round two opens up Tuesday at Rosemore Jr. High.

Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, February 24, 1966

The Value Of Exile

Last week Juvenile Court Judge John Hill banished a pair of local 16-year-olds from this city because they set off explosions at the homes of several teachers and the principal of Whetstone High School.

It's readily agreed that the youths deserved punishment for their act (which was not just a simple, harmless prank) but understanding the judge's logic in his "sentence" is difficult.

Surely the youths should not be wisked off to a penal institution but sending them to exile—requiring them to continue school outside the city — dovetails with the judge's reported statement that ". . . this court stands behind the schools and we demand respect for the authority of the schools and of the police."

Will this "sentence" or the resulting consequences make a lasting impression on the teenagers now? If the judge had imposed a fine (equal to the damages) payable only by the boys via manual labor, a more permanent impression would have been achieved.

The case brings to mind another youth who damaged a post office box during the depression days. His penalty was to be put to work paying damages at 50-cents a week. The tracks of this youth and the police never crossed again and the youth learned, first hand, the value of property.

If the purpose of the court is to rehabilitate as well as punish, it's hard to understand the lesson to be learned in Judge Hill's "exile" penalty.

Pledges Teacher Protection

Three weeks ago, The Spectator carried a report entitled "The Quiet Turmoil" which cited cases of violence in Franklin County area classrooms.

This week, a political candidate is announcing that he will support legislation "to protect teachers and school administrators from harassment and terror tactics instituted by juveniles and others."

"The Quiet Turmoil" was not meant to be a plank in a political platform. The Spectator is convinced that the candidate, Richard C. Sensenbrenner, who is seeking the Democratic nomination to the Ohio House of Representatives in the 61st district, did not view it that way, either.

Instead, Sensenbrenner is a single man in this community who has decided to come to grips with a cancerous problem. He recognizes the seriousness of the situation and believes in his own heart and mind that the classroom violence needs immediate attention.

"We must consider immediately those steps necessary to halt the invasion of school property, the threats and abuse, and the actual physical violence committed on the homes, property and persons of school teachers."

It's not the most popular political stand in the world, especially since Columbus school administrators in top positions in this city emphatically declare that classroom violence is practically non-existent here.

It's In The Book

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

Getting a book published is like getting married: you don't know what you've gotten into until you're there.

Having a novel making the rounds, I have despaired of ever finding it even read, much less published.

One firm to which I sent the manuscript returned it in such mangled shape that the whole 647 pages had to be retyped. Another firm held the book up for four months until I had to ask for it back. And when it was returned they claimed the characters were "diffuse." Not quite sure how they arrived at that conclusion, I learned later. Seems they had dipped down some 250 pages, took out samples from 25 to 50 pages and distributed them to sundry editors. After which, without bothering to put them in order, they stuffed them in the approximate place.

Now how is one to judge characterization, with a random reading of 20 pages in a 647 page work? No wonder the characters were "diffuse."

Somewhere in a little office these people choose and judge what the public will read with no other qualifications than their own taste. "Lust for Life" bounced around for years, as did "Peyton Place" and a number of other best-sellers. Their problem was getting the first reading.

A friend of mine has a novel out, too. One publisher wrote him that he liked the work and that it had some of the best characterization he had ever read. It was, however, too weak in plotting to be of value. The next publisher who read the very same work claimed that the plot was among the finest he had stumbled across but that the characterization was bad.

Stories have been told of readers for publishing houses. One such reader who later became famous as an editor claimed he examined novels on his commuter train and if the manuscript kept him reading beyond his stop, he'd condescend to read it all the way through.

Not only are readers for publishing houses casual, they can be downright rude. I had one short story returned that had jelly and coffee stains on it.

To all aspiring young authors I would give this advice: Be prepared for anything. I once heard of a man whose manuscript was returned with a whole fried egg pressed neatly between the pages.

They Said It

"The Great White Father, LBJ, who is not the most adverse person in the world to publicity, was rather proud of his recent gall bladder operation as attested by the fact that many pictures were taken of the scar. One fellow, who lives down below Oxberry, said that it was a good thing that his operation was not for piles. Another wit quipped in and said that it mightn't have been too bad —the other pictures might have shown him for what many local people think he really is" — Andrew Whitaker in Grenada (Miss.) "That's More Like The Good Old Days"

Calling Ohioans

By The Spectator's
MICHAEL V. DISALLE

The threat of a world controlled by a Communistic atheistic philosophy is real and growing each day. It is fed by our impatience and our desire for a peace which we feel we are entitled as a matter of right.

To some, it means that all we need to achieve peace is to wave a magic wand or lay down our weapons. This was the thought behind the uneasy truce reached in Korea. Very few realize that peace has not been achieved there, almost fourteen years after General Eisenhower's dramatic announcement that he would go to Korea.

Perhaps we should begin to wonder where we would be involved next in the steady plan for world-wide Communist aggression if we accept Ho Chi Minh's ultimatum that we leave South Viet Nam. Incidentally, leaving the South Vietnamese to the "fair and impartial elections" promised by the Communists would be like leaving little Red Riding Hood to the fabled gentle wolf.

In Viet Nam, as has been true in other situations, the programmed take over has not been limited in method to just the obvious. The South Vietnamese and their allies have been subjected to attack through subversion behind the battle lines. World-wide propaganda (easily believed against a powerful nation) has been effective. The same people who have complained about "civilian" boombings do not hesitate to use every atrocity to frighten and destroy civilians who do not adhere to their philosophy.

The attempt to find a just peace formula has been an all consuming activity of President Lyndon B. Johnson. His historic all-front peace offensive is without precedent. Every possible avenue has been — and continues to be — probed. When world-wide opinion seemed to indicate that our bombings stood in the way of peace talks, they were halted. The result was a continuation of the take-over activities of the North Vietnamese, the Red Chinese and the Viet Cong.

One of the surprising developments is the evident willingness of so many Americans to believe the propaganda of the opposition and to doubt the good intentions of their own government. Can anyone believe that our involvement in Viet Nam is politically or economically a benefit to the President of the United States?

We have clearly and constantly indicated our desire for peace. In the past we have paid dearly for our concern for peace. In spite of our acknowledged position of wealth and strength we have not bullied others or sought unreasonably to use this concentration achieved through years of hard work and ingenuity.

Shouldn't those who doubt the good motives of their own government begin to put more belief in our objectives rather than let their judgments be swayed by the words of those who are clearly our enemies?

How long can democracy and free speech continue to exist if our very existence is threatened by partisanship in forming of judgments on our foreign policy? The President's efforts are being constantly slowed down by those who seek political benefits or who fear the political consequences of the war in Viet Nam.

It is about time that they begin to consider not only the political but the all-time consequences of a failure to achieve a just result in Viet Nam.

For a peace resulting from a surrender of principle today could very well mean a loss of freedom tomorrow.

A Time For CD Common Sense

Ohio Senator Stephen Young says that two 200-bed field hospitals have been stored for civil defense purposes at Oak Harbor and Port Clinton, O., since 1958.

The Senator went on to indicate that this situation is duplicated in other cities in Ohio and in other states.

It's hard to understand why officials of the Department of Defense are not making use of such hospital beds and equipment in Viet Nam, Okinawa and Japan where the hospitals of our armed forces are jammed with wounded and sick from Viet Nam.

Our servicemen are being afflicted with malaria and wounded in jungle "booby traps." When these men are injured they are usually placed on temporary cots.

The Civil Defense fallout shelter program, which accounted for storing the hospitals in cities in this state, has, the Senator says, "been a stupendous hoax and waste of taxpayers' money."

New York Mayor John Lindsay has abolished his city's office of civil defense. He said that scrapping it means a considerable saving for the city.

Maybe it's time for this kind of common sense action here.

Letters To The Editor

Did We Play God?

To The Spectator:

Your use of Herblock cartoons and columns by Michael DiSalle and Marquis Childs has led me to hope that The Spectator can take over as another badly needed progressive voice in this community.

But, although I laud its comments on freedom, I am disturbed by your editorial, "Narrowing the Freedom" (Spectator, Feb. 17). The store you mention may well be selling dirty literature and, of course, this is to be deplored. But I don't think a responsible newspaper should place itself in a role it apparently opposes — that of censor. I would think that if you feel you have evidence of law violation you would turn it over to the police and let the matter run its course.

It may be a painful fact of life for some but there is growing realization that nobody can really be a censor; it's too much like playing God. But you do this with your gratuitous comment that the store's offerings "serve no informative, artistic or literary purposes." This is opinion, not fact. And, what about the wants of the disturbed people who buy the publications?

Bob Krause
51 Chatham-rd
Columbus

Editor's Note: Our statement was meant to be one of opinion. That's why we placed it on our editorial page. If a responsible newspaper doesn't speak out when infringements of a community's moral code are made, then that newspaper is not responsible at all. We're progressive — but we're not blind. We don't think you really believe that turning "stool pigeon" or "police officer" is the answer, either.

'That Was No Lady...'

To The Spectator:

You made the statement that Betty Knab is "a lady accountant who's crusading to return burlesque to Columbus" (Feb. 10 Spectator).

Betty Knab may be an accountant but she can't be a lady. No lady would allow her name to be connected with burlesque . . . least of all to promote such filth.

Mrs. P. M.

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

A Hope We Can Cope

To The Spectator:

Your front page article, "The Quiet Turmoil," (Feb. 10 Spectator) is certainly a much needed one and very well written.

Only an educated, well-informed public can begin to solve the behavior problem in their schools. If only well-balanced, self-disciplined teachers were in the profession instead of being the ones to leave it . . . and if parents were better disciplined adults . . . then our children would have firm guidance and good examples in learning behavior limitations.

This is part of a larger social problem. This "accent on youth" and dominance of children in such affairs as how a large part of family income should be spent . . . these kinds of things reflect an immature adult society.

Could this be fear of publicity? We don't want to face the fact that we can't cope with our kids because we can't cope with ourselves?

'Not Hear,' He Says

To The Spectator:

You have, in your manner of writing, done a disservice to the hard of hearing as well as reputable hearing aid offices in our Columbus area ("Columbus in Crisis," Feb. 17 Spectator).

I have no doubt that practices such as you have noted are carried on in a number of areas . . . though I doubt that Columbus has been subjected to these abuses.

You must certainly realize upon reading your own article that it reads like a blanket indictment of all dealers in hearing aids, since you mention no names and offer no evidence whatsoever of these goings on.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON: Marquis Childs

CHILDS

WASHINGTON—Generals and admirals thinking in conventional terms of America's past wars have failed to grasp the meaning of limited warfare that would stop short of committing large masses of land troops in Asia. That is the conclusion drawn from the fact that the principal analyst-philosopher of the limited or littoral (coastal region) strategy has never had a serious hearing from the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

He is Rear Admiral (Ret.) John D. Hayes, who in 1954 wrote an analysis of peripheral strategy, littoral tactics and limited war. This is an exposition of the kind of proposal made by Lt. Gen. James Gavin for limiting the war in Viet Nam to a series of coastal enclaves. Gavin testified before the Fulbright committee on how his theory could be applied.

Hayes would use ground troops to hold specific areas backed up by the full might of America's sea and air power. Updating his concept of littoral tactics, which he believes will eventually be adopted in Viet Nam, Hayes a year ago quoted from his original thesis in the conviction that its validity cannot be challenged.

"To effect a sound integrated strategy there must be a system of tactics which will fully employ all military specialties. Such a system of tactics for peripheral strategy is one that uses the littoral of the world as the new borders of the United States. The littoral becomes the line from which operations are projected in offense, the line on which defense is conducted."

Failure to understand the potential of the littoral strategy has proved very costly since World War II, Hayes believes. He cites China and Korea as tragic examples of what this failure has meant.

In discussing his littoral strategy Admiral Hayes points to what he believes was a fundamental misconception about China. While on a small-scale map it does appear to be a continental state like Russia, its history for more than a century proves that its great rivers and long coastline are the focus of its power. The coasts of China and Southeast Asia, Hayes observes, are directly exposed to the forces of sea power as continental Russia is not.

Influenced, Hayes believes, by our fixation on Europe we withdrew Marines from North China and two Army divisions from Korea. The last place the Chinese Nationalists abandoned was Hainan, the large island on the South China coast that forms the Gulf of Tonkin. "Almost immediately it was discovered that such a strategy deprived us of all freedom of action, both military and political. Within a year we were back in Asia but with only a foothold on the peninsula of Korea, and at what a bloody cost."

As the Fulbright hearings continue and the escalation of the Vietnamese war raises in acute form the threat of Chinese participation, the question of strategy and a limited war will be more and more to the front. The next step, according to private word from official sources, is to be the mining of Haiphong harbor in order to shut off the flow of supplies to North Viet Nam.

That could bring a showdown not only with China but with the Soviet Union as well. It is the strategy of those who believe "victory" in South Viet Nam can come in the pattern of the past.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

In trying to catch all of the entertainment in town, I cover several different types of shows and acts, from the proverbial soup to nuts. Now I would like to tell you about one of the most popular emporiums in town that serves everything from soup to nuts, with a menu containing delectable side dishes of belly dancers and European singers, and for dessert, a swinging dixieland band. Mr. Broad and High himself, Benny Klein, presents the finest, most exciting entertainment in Columbus. Known as "Uncle Benny," by most of his friends, Benny strives to please by serving the very best in food and amusement. Currently appearing at Benny Klein's is Princess Dalealah, an abdominal dancer from Lebanon and Segrid, a continental vocalist from Germany. Dalealah brings to the stage the true ethnic dance of the Middle East. Dressed in colorful, authentic costumes, this cute import presents an interesting act.

Fresh from another part of the world, Segrid adds European flavor to the entertainment at B.K's. Singing in French, German and English, the fraulein has personality and beauty to match her vocal abilities. Backing up the acts and providing the musical portion of the fare, Joe Dunlap and his Dixiecats, has to rate as one of the finest, most solid musical aggregations in the country. With Middle-East dancing, continental singing, dixieland music and Uncle Benny, there is something for everyone. Stop in, you'll have a good time.

National TV Producer Believes In Luck

The other evening yours truly attended a banquet of the Columbus Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. The Columbus Chapter, one of nine in the United States, votes each year for the "Emmy Awards." This award is given to various television shows, writers and producers. The Columbus Chapter contributes much to the community. Scholarships are given to outstanding college students in the field of television. Top professional men are brought to town to work with local TV people to help improve the quality of local programming.

One of the men in Columbus last week, and the feature speaker at the banquet, was John Gudel, the nation's leading television and radio producer. Gudel's three longest lived shows, Art Linkletter's "People Are Funny," (23 years) Linkletter's "House Party," (22 years) and Groucho's "You Bet Your Life," (17 years) have been simulcast via radio and television on a national basis.

During his 28 years as a producer, Gudel has recorded many firsts: singing commercials; summer reruns, and the first adult western, "Frontier Town." He has written for the movies and produced many well-known radio and TV shows.

Gudel believes the old axiom that no matter how much talent one has, it takes a lot of luck. A man loaded with talent, John Gudel is probably one of the funniest people to ever appear in town. He is a writer and producer, but this man is better than any night club comedian you've heard. Yet, with all his abilities, his successful career is based on being at the right place at the right time.

Symphony Preview

Another Columbus Symphony Preview will be given Wednesday, Mar. 2, at 10:30 a.m. at the Fashion. This is one of a series of public service lectures to heighten listener pleasure by increasing his knowledge of the music to be played at the next concert. Evan Whallon will be the feature speaker. There is a 50 cent donation asked.

Salute To TV-4

TV-4's "Dance-O-Rama" colorcast, for the young-at-heart, viewed Saturdays at 11 a.m. and hosted by Jerry Rasor, has been named the top TV bandstand show by Billboard Magazine. "Dance-O-Rama" won first place in competition with all other bandstand programs, including local and network productions seen in this area in a response-rating poll. Produced by Dick Murgatroyd, "Dance-O-Rama" features one of the "Top Ten" recordings across the nation, dance contest, cheerleaders from various high schools and live performances by top recording groups and guest artists.

Meet Stuart

This is Stuart, hero of the forthcoming "NBC Children's Theatre" production of "Stuart Little," based on E. B. White's book about a mouse born into a New York City family. Stuart, shown here riding on a see-saw in Central Park, is played by a stuffed animal though his parents and brother are portrayed by real people. The story, with Johnny Carson as off-camera narrator, will be presented as a one-hour color TV special on the NBC Television Network Sunday, Mar. 6, on TV-4.

Nagler Paintings On Display

An exhibit, "Thirty Years of Religious Painting by Fred Nagler," long recognized as America's foremost religious painter, is on view at North Broadway Methodist Church through Sunday, Mar. 6. On loan from the Midtown Galleries in New York City, the show consists of 34 works done in woodcut, water color and oil painting.

The public is cordially invited to see the showing in the church's large dining rooms from 1 to 5 p.m. daily. Groups desiring to make special arrangements for morning or evening visits should call the church office, AM. 8-3625.

The Community Stage

By CLAUDIA ELKINS

Delicate and tender defines "The Glass Menagerie" as done by Gallery Players. Tennessee Williams' fragile play is treated by director Harold Eisenstein with immense understanding of human qualities. Edye Mendelson's stirring portrayal of the mother is beautiful. Philip Wilson gives an excellent performance as the devoted brother. Bob Connors and Lillian Hubert give able performances in their respective roles as the gentleman and the daughter. This play can be seen through Sunday at the Jewish Center. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Two stars move quickly and brightly across the Little Theatre Off Broadway's performance of "Never Too Late." Complementing each other, Jim Hodges and Johnny Dollar capture every situation with deft humor. This cleverly written comedy is directed by Dick Grace. If one makes it through long scene changes a good play is enjoyed. Shows are this Friday and Saturday at Brookpark Junior High School in Grove City, 8:30 p.m.

Adds Entertainers

The Bowery is adding more, exciting talent. Besides the popular Geoff Tyus Trio, appearing nightly will be the Ravens and several Go-Go Girls direct from New York. Sunday you can still eat all the spaghetti you want and listen to the music of Harry Epp's Muskrat Ramblers.

OSU Students Want Old Books

The Student Education Association of Ohio State University is collecting textbooks to send to students in a remote section of the Philippine Islands starting this week.

The group has put receptacles around the campus and is asking students to donate their used texts rather than selling or keeping them. The main push for the drive will come at the break between quarters. The books will form a reference library for students at Urdaneta, Luzon.

The dearest hope of the parent for his child is that he become all that he is capable of being. This is precisely the goal of school and college and exactly what city, state and nation strive for.—Morris Meister.

PM SMALL POTATOES

A young lady who was an occasional patron of ours moved out of town recently. But before she left she came in to say goodbye to us. I am so proud of what she said that I want to tell everybody about it. She said, "I loved coming to your salon. I just wish I could have been able to come in every week. Everyone made me feel that you were so interested in me . . . I can't tell you how much that meant! I'm small potatoes and I only came in maybe once a month, but you always seemed so glad to see me and so anxious to try to please me . . . I'll miss you all."

Even we don't get tributes like that every day so we hope you will forgive us for bragging a little. It's a fact, too! We are interested in all our patrons. There are no "small potatoes" in our salon.

TAKE A POWDER!

Powder for everything is the new makeup magic. It provides one of the simplest, subtlest, and surest ways to apply your blusher, your eyebrows makeup, and now your eye shadow It's practically goofproof.

SUPERWOMAN IS SUPERCHIC

But beware! It can be overdone. An article in a popular woman's mag recently offered some important advice. It reminded us that while men admire and are even greatly attracted to superwomen, they nevertheless fall in love with woman-women.

FATAL FADS

Fads are fun but they can be fatal if they look funny on you. A woman's first duty is to understand what comprises her own personal chic. Our salon staff never sets startling styles above individuality.

LOVE TO DANCE?

One of the most uninteresting sights on any dance floor is the girl whose face is lost in a tangle of hair. Our own preferences are . . . long hair that falls like heavy satin ribbon caught by some charming device such as a ribbon or flower holding it off the face . . . or short hair with freedom and swing.

HEARD UNDER THE DRYER

Out Of The Frying Pan

By The Spectator's
TOM SESLAR

Louis Sanford sits in his office in Franklin County and he worries because he believes that Central Ohio is not yet adequately prepared to cope with such disasters as fires, floods, plane crashes or a nuclear attack.

He is not a pessimist. But, as chief of the Sharon Township Fire Department and president of The Central Ohio Fire Chiefs Association (COFCA), worrying is part of his job. And, Louis Sanford cites figures and incidents that prove that he has good reason to worry.

The rapidly increasing size and complexity of the nation's metropolitan areas increase the chances of cities becoming victims of major disasters . . . trouble they cannot handle with existing fire and police protection.

Statistics concerning life and property loss caused by disasters are skyrocketing. Primarily, Sanford believes, because most large urban areas do not have an efficient disaster plan.

COFCA, under Sanford's leadership, is taking major action to make Central Ohio a leader in solving the problem.

That action falls under the heading of "The Red, White and Blue Plan" which is a new concept in disaster control.

All fire departments in six counties — and other strategic agencies in the counties — will subscribe to the plan. The counties are: Franklin, Delaware, Licking, Madison, Fairfield and Pickaway.

Sanford, 521 High-st, Worthington, outlined the plan:

• When a disaster strikes, the fire chief in charge of the area will automatically become the commander of the "Red, White and Blue" operation. He immediately will summon help from other departments on a scale proportionate to the seriousness of the disaster.

• The scene of the disaster will be called the "red zone." A coordinator working with the fire chief will designate two other zones — the white and the blue. The blue zone, located near the fringe of the red zone, will be a center for coordinating communications, first aid and incoming vehicles. The man in charge of communications will notify area hospitals to prepare for incoming disaster victims. Dispersal of injured persons to the hospitals will be controlled in the white zone.

• City police, county police, the Ohio Highway Patrol and Civil Defense will help to coordinate the various activities and to keep all unauthorized persons out of the area.

"No matter how small a community is, it conceivably could have as many as 1,000 men and 100 pieces of disaster equipment on the scene within minutes," Sanford said.

He added that no community will be drained of adequate protection by the disaster operation because so many departments will participate in the plan.

Teen News

The Teen Club at Barnett Recreation Center celebrated Valentine's Day by sponsoring a sweetheart dance. Margaret Carter and Mark Shore were crowned king and queen of the dance. Future plans of the club are a sock hop in March and a talent show in April. The Johnson Park Junior High School Dance Band provided the music.

Brotherhood Rally

Thursday, Feb. 24, from 6:30-10 p.m., Barnett Center will host the Columbus Recreation Department's annual brotherhood rally. Ten representatives from each of the city's centers will participate and take part in eight discussion groups. Speakers from the community will talk to the teens on brotherhood in general and brotherhood in athletics. "The Gears," a teen band from the area, will provide the music. Members of the band are Bob Alwood, Wes Richards, Jerry Harrison and Tom Rodoski.

Barnett's intermediate girls' basketball team participated in the recreation department's tourament held at Sunshine Center, Tuesday, Feb. 22, at 7 p.m.

Engineers Assume 'City Salesmen' Roles

Professional engineers, 17,000 strong—now observing engineering week in Columbus — are training their thoughts on new ways to bring industry into the city.

Engineering officials number 856 manufacturing plants in the city, with an average of 20 engineers each, and cite the city itself as a principal engineering employer with 50 in various departments.

Engineers' societies will devise ways in which their members can become public-relations minded in their dealings with engineers and industrialists in other cities, in order to attract them to Columbus.

The capital is called an "ideal environment" as an engineering, research and technical center:

• Big employers of engineers are already located here, such as North American Aviation, Western Electric, Ternstedt, Buckeye Steel Casting, Jeffrey Manufacturing, and Timken Roller Bearing.

• Ingredients are present for top research development, including Battelle Memorial Institute, Chemical Abstract Service, Ohio State University and Industrial Nucleonics.

• Also important are cultural factors — Columbus Symphony, Gallery of Fine Arts, Museum of Industry and Science, the city's colleges and university, and many other facilities.

The week-long engineering observance opened Monday with a display in city hall built by Western Electric Co. and Bell Laboratories.

On hand were Patrick Lyons, Western Electric's assistant works manager, and Howard Stemm, superintendent division of electricity, representing Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner.

Professional engineering societies actively engaged in the observance are, mechanical, electrical, civic, chemical and aeronautical organizations.

The societies participate in career day programs for 12 public high schools in Columbus, six parochial high schools, and a dozen more in the county.

NEED A HEARING AID?

Here's How To Avoid Being 'Swindled'

In answer to readers' inquiries concerning last week's "Columbus In Crisis" story on hearing aid sales racketeering, The Spectator offers the following guide to anyone considering the purchase of a hearing aid:

1. Be sure you have a proper evaluation of your hearing loss. Talk it over with your doctor and family.

2. Check the yellow pages of your phone directory to see if the company from which you plan to purchase is established locally.

3. Check the price by comparing it with those of brand-name aids.

4. Demand money-back privileges in case the aid doesn't satisfy you.

5. Ask for a trial before you complete and business agreement — if you can't hear with the aid when it's demonstrated, it is unlikely you'll hear with it a month later.

6. Beware of incomplete finance papers, or those not fully presented. Be sure of purchase price, interest rates and length of time allowed for payment.

7. Check your guarantee —it's only as good as the dealer who honors it.

Women Voters Speak Out For '1-Man, 1-Vote'

The League of Women Voters of Metropolitan Columbus believes that the "one-man, one-vote" standard for apportionment of state legislatures should be maintained.

Members of the League of Women Voters throughout the United States have given intensive study to the issues involved in apportionment, and their nationwide consensus is in agreement with the position taken by the members of the Columbus League.

A statement of position on apportionment of state legislature was issued by the National Board of the League of Women Voters of the United States on Jan. 12, 1966.

Columbus league president, Mrs. Burton Schildhouse has written to Senators Lausche and Young and to Congressmen Devine and Sweeney, outlining the league position and asking them to join in opposition to any proposed constitutional amendment which would allow for consideration of factors other than population in apportionment of state legislatures.

Scientists Mark 100th Anniversary

Christian Scientists throughout the country begin today a year-long observance of their 100th anniversary, according to The Christian Science Board of Directors of The Mother Church in Boston, Mass.

There are three Christian Science churches in Columbus along with the Upper Arlington Christian Science Society. The churches are located at 457 E. Broad-st (First Church), 871 N. Park-st (Second Church) and 3989 N. High-st (Third Church).

Major events of the observance include a worldwide public speaking tour by Erwin Canham, editor-in-chief of The Christian Science Monitor.

Canham will not appear in Columbus. However, Christian Scientists here may attend his talks in Cleveland (May 7) and Cincinnati (June 3).

The centennial stems from events in 1866 which marked the turning point in the life of Mary Baker Eddy and began her pioneering of a world religious movement.

PARTY PLANNED

The Blendon Grange will sponsor a euchre party Friday, Feb. 25, at 8:30 p.m. in the Grange Hall, 393 E. College-av Westerville. The public is invited.

POSITION OPEN

The Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners for the Defense Construction Supply Center announced that applications will be accepted until June 10, 1966, for the position of laborer paying $2.05 per hour. A written test will be given. Information and application forms may be obtained from the Executive Secretary, Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, Defense Construction Supply Center, Columbus, O., or at any post office.

IN THE NEWS

Grodell Is 'Policeman Of Year'

Columbus Chief of Police George W. Scholer announced the selection of Patrolman Stanley Grodell for the award of Policeman of the Year. The award was presented by the Exchange Club of Columbus at their noon luncheon on Thursday, Feb. 17, at the Neil House Hotel. Officer Grodell was selected from a list of 11 nominees submitted by their immediate superiors. The selection was based on the officers' performance of everyday duties during 1965. Officer Grodell is a 15-year veteran of the Division of Police. He resides with his wife, Mary, and their four children at 4471 Kenfield-rd.

Conservatives To Hear Milligan

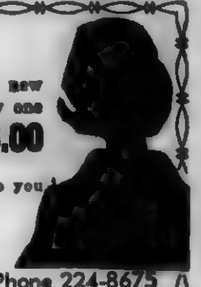
Ohio Conservatives Inc. will hold its second public meeting Friday, Feb. 25, at 8:15 p.m. at the Southern Hotel. Fred J. Milligan, executive secretary of the Ohio Information Committee, will be the speaker. His topic will be "The Importance of Precinct Organization to Political Success." The meeting is open to the public.

Wants KKK Investigation

Otto Beatty, Jr., a recent graduate of OSU, College of Law, and a candidate for the House of Representatives from the 63rd District appeared before the Franklin County Voter Education League and called upon Attorney General William Saxbe to use his powers under the subversive activities section of the Ohio law to start an immediate investigation of the Ku Klux Klan in Ohio.

Legal Secretary For Year Sought

The Columbus Association of Legal Secretaries is now in the process of selecting the Legal Secretary of 1966. Candidates for the title are Mrs. Charlene Carroll of the office of Irving Gertner; Nancy Crown from the offices of Krumm, Schwenker & Fisher; Mrs. Charlene Hall of George, Greek, King & McMahon and Mrs. Melva Hatch of Gumble & Hofheimer. The presentation of the award will be made at the March 2, 6:30 p.m. meeting of CALS at the Desert Inn.



Local Men Get OCC Appointments

Two changes in the Ohio Chamber of Commerce executive staff have been announced by Herschel Atkinson, executive vice-president of the Ohio Chamber. James M. McCollum, 1825 Millwood-dr, has been named director of public relations, and David H. Durbin, 261 Northmoor-pl, has been appointed manager, news information.

FROM YOUR GRANGE MUTUAL CASUALTY CO.

Better Drivers Deserve and Get Better Rates at Grange Mutual . . .

No. 1 As a better driver you deserve and get better rates from Grange Mutual. Why pay for the careless drivers when Grange Mutual's insurance is suited to your individual record. The fewer accidents YOU've had, the lower YOUR rates.

No. 2 As a young married man (21 to 24 years) with children, YOU deserve and get special rates at Grange Mutual. We know that YOU, as a young parent, are a safe, responsible driver.

No. 3 Take advantage of our new drive-to-work rates. Why pay higher rates for driving over twenty miles to work?

No. 4 Grange Mutual is proud to award lower rates to young drivers under 21 who have successfully completed recognized driver-training courses. We urge all parents to suggest driver-training courses to their children.

No. 5 If you are a resident student over 100 miles from home and only drive the family car occasionally YOU receive the same low rates as married drivers pay.

No. 6 Grange Mutual recognizes the safe driving habits of farmers with much lower rates at much greater savings.

No. 7 Women drivers under 25 with good driving records pay less.

Grange Mutual Policyholders who are better drivers qualify in the above seven categories. The Grange Mutual representative will be happy to give you complete details and figure YOUR exact rates.

Call YOUR Grange Mutual Casualty representative today . . . he's listed in the Yellow Pages.

Potter is one of 14 members of the division's National Parts Manager Advisory Committee.

Bill Swad Is State's Newest Factory Outlet

The newest direct factory dealership in the state is Bill Swad Chrysler Plymouth Co. at 465 S. Hamilton-rd.

Grand opening is Saturday, Feb. 26, at which time a live one and one half hour TV show will be presented to mark the occasion. The telecast will originate from the new showrooms.

Bill Swad's Rambler at 667 S. Hamilton-rd has been Ohio's leading Rambler outlet for the past two years.

In adding the Chrysler-Plymouth products, the firm is now able to supply a full line of American Motors products.

"With the new facilities, we can furnish every auto need from sales and service to car leasing and car rental," according to R. J. McVicker, a spokesman for the firm.

Green Meadows Country Inn Has Many Features

The Green Meadows Country Inn offers many unusual features. Located on N. High-st, north of Worthington, the inn is close enough to be convenient and yet far enough to be exclusive.

In a separate building is the Management Training Center. It is designed for executive meetings, conferences and training sessions. This is the only motel or hotel educational facility in Central Ohio. It will accommodate 150 people and has all the latest electronic devices. There is an adjacent dormitory for housing.

Green Meadows has special banquet rooms for wedding receptions and private parties.

The inn has an olympic size swimming pool, well equipped playground, and one of the city's largest dining areas.

Green Meadows Inn is managed by Benito Tibaldi, a native of Switzerland. Educated at Lausanne, Switzerland, and working in hotels in Italy, Greece and Switzerland, Tibaldi came directly to Green Meadows from Europe.

LOEB TO SPEAK

Arthur W. Loeb, president Loeb Electric Company, Columbus, will speak on manufacturer and distributor cooperation at the Electrical Manufacturers Council of Ohio Thursday noon, Feb. 24, at the Olentangy Inn.

HUNTINGTON GETS UA AWARDS

INFORMATION AVAILABLE

Pension and annuity payments received by residents of Ohio during 1965 fall into three classes for federal income tax purposes: non-taxable, fully taxable, or partly taxable, the Internal Revenue Service said today.

Document No. 5018, which furnishes more detailed information, may be obtained from the local Internal Revenue Office.

Applications Ready

The director of State Personnel announces civil service examinations are scheduled for Mar. 8 and 9, for retail store clerks in state liquor agency.

Candidates may obtain applications from any Ohio State Employment Service Office, or from the Department of State Personnel, Ohio Departments Building, Columbus, O. 43215. Applications must be postmarked no later than Feb. 24.

Income Tax Hints Given

The Internal Revenue Service released a few hints for those pondering over their income tax problems:

• When married persons file separate returns, both husband and wife must either itemize deductions or claim the same type standard deduction; a husband can not itemize while his wife takes the standard deduction.

• If a taxpayer is a homeowner paying interest and taxes, if he made unusually large contributions, paid large medical expenses or had a theft or other casualty loss, his tax will ordinarily be less if he itemizes deductions. However, if the total of his deductions is less than either the 10 percent standard or the minimum standard deduction, then it will probably be better to take the standard deduction.

• A partnership or sole proprietor doing business in Ohio and desiring to pay taxes as a corporation for the calendar year, must file a statement of election with the Director of Internal Revenue in the district where the principal place of business is located. The statement is due no later than Tuesday, Mar. 1.

Additional information on these subjects may be obtained from local Internal Revenue Offices.

New Winter Course Set

The Institute for Adult Catholic Studies for the winter semester will offer a course titled "The Second Vatican Council," from 8-10 p.m. Mondays of Lent Feb. 28-Apr. 4 at 12 different centers.

The Lenten education program is part of the diocesan observance of the jubilee proclaimed by Pope Paul VI which began Jan. 1 and continues through Pentecost, May 29.

The course consists of six lectures, followed by group discussion on "The Meaning of the Council," "The Church," "The Liturgy," "Ecumenism," "Revelation," and "Education."

Three centers are St. Charles College, Bishop Ready and Bishop Watterson High Schools. The others are Chillicothe, Coshocton, Lancaster, Marion, Mt. Vernon, Newark, New Philadelphia, Portsmouth and Zanesville.

Tuition is $2 per person, or $3, couple.

Westinghouse Hikes Its J. A. Contribution

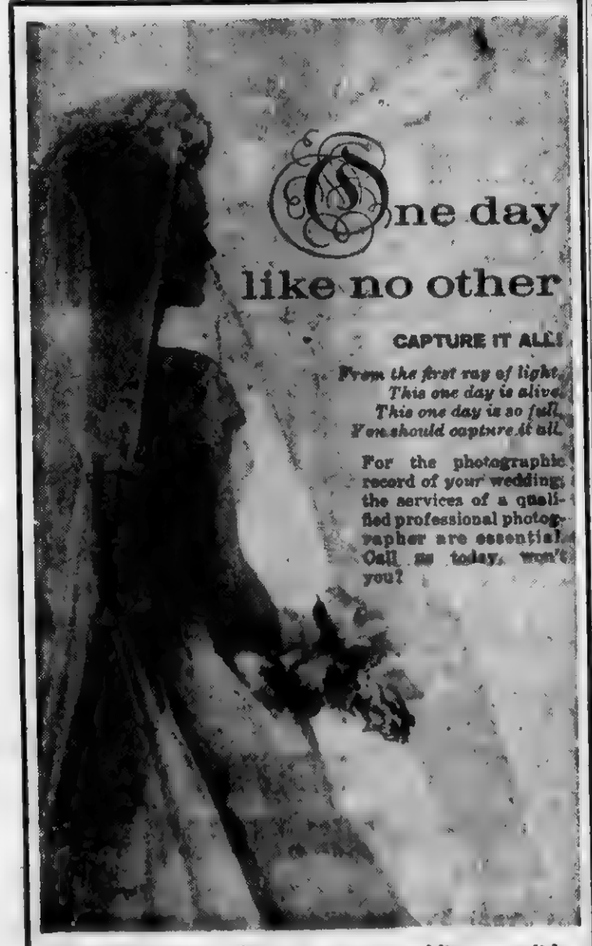
The Westinghouse Electric Corporation has again increased its contribution to the Junior Achievement fund campaign now in progress.

James Bell, Westinghouse general manager, presented his company check to Leroy W. Belhorn, president of Junior Achievement of Columbus, at a meeting of the board of directors this week.

A team of Westinghouse executives working on the fund drive reported their solicitations 75 percent completed.

Clyde Covington Makes Viet Landing

Seaman Apprentice Clyde P. Covington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde P. Covington of 2006 Maryland-av, participated in Operation "Double Eagle," the largest amphibious landing ever made in Viet Nam, while serving with this command.



The assault landing of a large U. S. Marine force near Thach Tru, 30 miles south of Chu Lai, began when a 13-ship Naval Task Force steamed into the objective area in the predawn hours of Jan. 28.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE ENGINEERING PROFESSION
Central Ohio

On behalf of Western Electric Columbus Works, it gives me great pleasure to join in honoring the more than 800,000 men and women of America who have chosen the profession of engineering as their career.

Engineering is a challenging job at the Columbus Works. The more than 600 Western Electric engineers and their colleagues of the Bell Telephone Laboratories are a powerful engineering team serving the nation and contributing to the growth and prosperity of Greater Columbus. Through research and development, they create improved telephone switching equipment for the expanding needs of America's communications system. In manufacturing, they must meet Bell System standards of high quality, low cost and compatibility with the existing complex network of telephone facilities.

On the occasion of National Engineers' Week, I salute the people of Western Electric and Bell Telephone Laboratories and all engineers in America who make the profession "a creative resource for progress."

Sincerely,
P. Zweier

Society For Promotion Of Cruelty To Animals Has Local Chapter

SEVENTH IN A SERIES

A recent series of pictures in Life Magazine, "Concentration Camps for Dogs," powerfully dramatized a need for reform in all phases of animal experimentation.

Shown are dogs, cats, pigeons, skunks and raccoons, crowded into filthy crates too small to permit standing; heavily chained dogs too weak to crawl to the stale bread and frozen entrails that comprise the only food in sight. A humane society raid rescued 28 of the worst cases. Some 75 dogs remained.

This is a sample of what goes on in many such compounds all over the United States. What about greater Columbus? Quite possibly here, too, officials at the Franklin County Humane Society say.

To cash in on the need of experimental laboratories for almost 2,000,000 dogs a year, "dog dealers" buy dogs and other small animals wherever they can. These, most of them strayed or stolen pets, are eventually sold to laboratories where they often fare no better than they did with dealers.

"We have received a number of phone calls that tell of dog-napping," one Humane Society official said. "We have tried to track them down but have had no luck. But, at least, we keep our ear to the ground."

The Humane Society says that if it is going on in Columbus, she doesn't know where the dog-nappers sell their animals. She says she doesn't know where Ohio State University animal researchers get their animals but she doesn't think they buy them from peddlers.

An Ohio State professor confirmed this. He said that very little experimentation is done with smaller animals. Occasionally, experiments in germs are conducted on dogs but, he added, the university uses only dogs they raise themselves.

The Christian Science Monitor became quite vocal on the subject recently, a subject which they call "a national shame."

The Monitor asks, who is guilty? The thieves? The dealers? The laboratories that buy animals which are obviously lost or stolen pets? Wantonly cruel laboratory operators?

Of course.

But guilty also are people who avail themselves of benefits from medical research but close they eyes to its abuses and demand no reform; indifferent or reluctant legislators and executives; individuals who are too sensitive to read shocking exposes but too busy to write their legislators; individuals who are able to back their convictions with money and fail to do so.

What can Columbus residents do? There are already pending in Congress a number of bills that would do much toward correcting these abuses, notably the Poage Bill, H.R. 12488, and the Clark-Cleveland combination, S. 1071 and H.R. 5847.

Meanwhile, Franklin County workers will continue to keep a watchful eye on Columbus. The conscience of this city is demanding it.

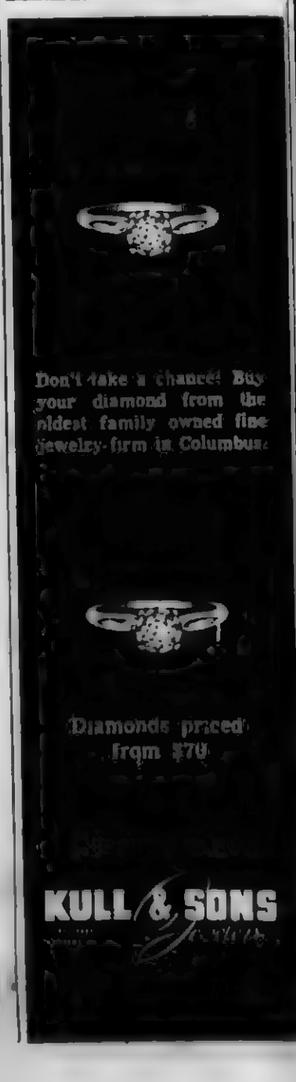
Volunteers Of America Here Hosting Meeting

Cmdr. Ray Tremont

The Volunteers of America Area Council meeting, the first in 20 years in Columbus, will be held Feb. 27, 28, Mar. 1 and 2, at the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel. This meeting is composed of executive officers and assistants who manage posts throughout Louisiana, Texas, Virginia, Florida, Tennessee and Kentucky (southern area) and Ohio, Indiana and Michigan (central area).

Delegates will arrive Saturday, Feb. 26. Sunday, Feb. 27, a memorial service will be held from 2 to 4 p.m., to which the public is invited. Monday, Feb. 28, Fred Morr will represent the governor's office and bring greetings to the group. A luncheon at the Columbus Post on W. Broad will be held for delegates and guests.



Tuesday, Mar. 1, Mayor Sensenbrenner will bring greetings from the city, and from 2 to 4 p.m. Robert Blees, minister of counseling, First Community Church, will speak on "Barriers to Communication." This meeting is open to the public.

At 7 p.m. the council banquet will be held with Cmdr. Ray C. Tremort, southern area commander, as emcee, and Dr. Floyd Faust, banquet speaker. Special music will be performed by Lella White, Mrs. Harold Lust and Marianne Sayre Weirick, with dinner music by Arthur Withrow, all of Columbus.

Purpose of this area council meeting is to bring legislation to the national conference which will be held in May.

Also attending the meeting will be central area commander, William T. Altman.

Teenage Spenders Rely On Ads In Newspapers

A recent survey by the Omaha (Neb.) World-Herald confirmed teen-age reliance on newspapers.

To the question, "What advertising source do you generally depend on for the things you buy?" 56 percent of the total quota sampling between the ages of 13 and 18 preferred newspapers. Newspapers rated 61 percent among girls, 51 percent among boys.

Magazines rated a total of 16 percent, television 14 percent and radio 9.5 percent.

'Tree Of Knowledge' Grows In Schoolyard

By RITA CONARD
West High School

AWARD WINNER
1st Place: Editorial

Knowledge is knowing and being informed. "To acquire success, one must climb a ladder," folks say.

There are many types of trees, but for my illustration I have chosen an apple tree, since there are many hardy types in Ohio, thanks to Johnny Appleseed.

Of course, the one I am referring to happens to be imaginary, but I'm sure you won't mind. Let's say it is growing in our schoolyard.

The parents and teachers have given it good care to rid it of bad apples. Now it's up to us. Shall we just pick the apples that are easy to reach, or do our very best and get the better ones from the top? The picking isn't easy; the ladder often isn't steady.

Some of the rungs may be broken, but others have made it. With more education, we are prepared for a better job. Today it is a must.

Now let's plan our lives. Not everyone will be picking from the top, but let's go up as far as we can. Don't just sit on the ground waiting for the apples to fall.

Are we going to settle for applesauce (plain, boring job), when we could be having pie a la mode (college), apple fritters (satisfactory service to our country), or waldorf salad (own business)?

It may just be an apple tree, but to us it is the Tree of Knowledge.

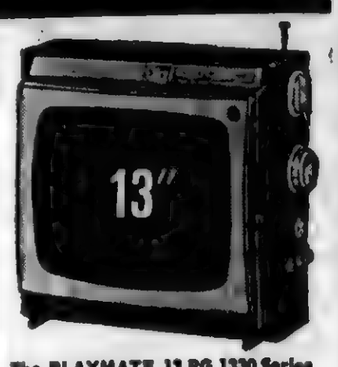
(JUDGES' CRITIQUE: Selection of the editorial writing winner was, perhaps, most difficult. Miss Gilford, however, was selected because of the appropriateness of her article on the tree of knowledge to a high school audience. The reader interest, style, ingenuity, originality and enterprise are outstanding in this editorial and it would certainly be an asset to any high school newspaper in the country.)

Teenage Readership Is Higher Than Ever

Newspaper readership among 13 to 20-year-olds is surprisingly high, according to a recent survey by the Edmonton (Ga.) Journal. Taken in conjunction with a regular Starch Readership Study, it found that 83.5 percent of the 351 teenagers queried had read the survey issue of the newspaper.

Questions on other media revealed that 80.3 percent of the teens had watched television in the previous 24 hours; 87.2 percent had listened to the radio. Page one news and the editorial page ranked among the best read portions of the newspaper.

A similar survey taken last year by the Hagerstown (Md.) Herald-Mail found that 95.4 percent of the 10 to 15-year-olds regularly read one of the two Hagerstown newspapers. Among regular readers, page one readership scored 97.7 percent.



Every Teen Is Fighting For Goal

Every teenager has a goal he is fighting for. This goal is what makes him an individual — to go to college, to become a doctor, to become a loving wife and mother.

A great thing about teenagers is that they have the courage, fight and optimism to get to the top. — Nancy Hutchins, Upper Arlington High School.

SPECTATOR PUBLISHER Robert Burdock presents Bexley High's Mimi Deaton with a plaque recognizing her as the "High School Journalist of the Year" in the Franklin County area. Looking on at right is WLW-C's "Dance-O-Rama" host Jerry Razor. The presentation was made on Razor's show Saturday, Feb. 19.

Story Of Flippo Earns Bexley Girl Spectator Journalist Of Year Award

By MIMI DEATON
Bexley High School

(The Spectator's High School Journalist Of The Year)

Flippo the Clown makes 4:30 p.m. television a veritable children's hour — children of all ages, that is.

When Mike Neal (Bexley '61), who pulls the cords (vocal and otherwise) of Donny Duck, yells "One minute. Quiet!", Bob Marvin as Flippo strides into Studio A, starting an hour and a half of banter with the floor crew and jokes with the studio audience. There are also commercials and a movie, but the audience (including Bexley Dramatics Clubbers) is there primarily for fun and frolic with Flippo.

"Hello, there, group," he says in clipped baby-talk, sounding not unlike Yogi Bear. "This is the floor director. OK, Neal, direct the floor."

The program is unrehearsed. "Too mechanical," says Flippo. "My only preparation is taking treatments on weekends."

According to Flippo, his two-man, college student floor crew "does nothing but bother me."

However, Cleveland-born Bob Marvin is not bothered by, but rather enchanted with, the upwards of 100,000 letters he has received in the past 15 years from his viewers, who range in age from cradle to pension.

AWARD WINNER
Journalist Of Year

One child's admiring letter, received six years ago, contained money which Flippo would "please give to the Heart Fund." He did. Now, throughout central Ohio, children have neighborhood carnivals, lemonade stands, go caroling, etc., for the Heart Fund. Last year, through Flippo, the Heart Fund benefited by over $1,000, and he has received a five-year service medallion and plaque in appreciation from the Heart Association.

No Pagliacci, Marvin vens not for Shakespeare. But, like true clowns, his buffoonery cloaks a seriousness of purpose. "I try to emanate a philosophy of love, community service, and honesty on my show."

With the growing success of Flippo's Heart Fund, "Everyone had a fund but me. So we started a fund to send me to Florida."

Bexley's Bill Cohen (whom Marvin dubbed "the Mrs. Miller of the Flippo Show") and Mark Masser donated the lower half of a mannequin's leg to house the Florida Fund.

"Last time I looked," said Flippo, "there were beads, Confederate and Japanese money, nails, and hairpins. I'm afraid to count it — I'll have to weigh it!"

Starting at age six as a singer, Marvin has been performing "as long as somebody pays me." As a music major at Ohio State University in 1949, he worked with the Chuck Selby and Ziggy Coyle bands, playing the saxophone and singing, and was "discovered by WBNS."

It took time to work out the make-up and character of Flippo. Ethics dictate no costume copying. "If someone does try," Marvin said, "he can't go to Clown Heaven."

Flippo tells teens, "Be honest — in school — dating — everything. Don't go steady. Develop individuality rather than date constantly. Learn about loneliness now — then it will hurt less later."

Television life is not lonely. Pranks prevail. In these environs one must learn to laugh when his sandwich meat is replaced by rubber bands, his Volkswagen seats are turned fore to aft, or when an on-the-air Santa Claus gets a boot full of eggnog.

"Teen-agers are wonderful," said Flippo. "I love 'em." And why not? They've given him the highest rating in his time period.

"Love you. Don't fight. Bye-bye."

What Her Teacher Has To Say . . .

Sara M. Amos, Bexley High School journalism instructor and advisor to The Spectator's High School Journalist of the Year Mimi Deaton, had these words about her student:

As editor of the "Torch," she is doing an excellent job. A senior, she first took journalism courses as a sophomore and served on the "Torch" staff during her junior year.

She still found time to write the Bexley High news column, "The Lion's Road" for The Spectator.

Each year the "Torch" enters the writing competitions in the workshops conducted by the Journalism Association of Ohio Schools (JAOS) and the High School Press Club of Central Ohio.

At the JAOS workshop she won the Grand Trophy for her story on the press conference. Each school at the workshop sent one writer to the conference; she was, therefore, competing with fifty or more of the top high school journalists in the state.

Mimi also won the trophy for the on-the-spot writing contest at the meeting of the High School Press Club of Central Ohio. Here she competed with the best writers in the Central Ohio area.

Mimi is an excellent student in other subjects also. However, I feel that she has a talent for writing and hope that she will continue her studies in journalism.

Mimi Deaton Sweeps The Field

Mimi Deaton, a Bexley High School senior, has been named The Spectator's first "High School Journalist of the Year" in the Franklin County area.

She was chosen from approximately 50 entries in this first annual competition. Judges included Spectator Publisher Robert Burdock, Managing Editor John Auble, Jr., and News Editor James Bruney.

Mimi was working on her high school paper when she was notified of her honor. "I'm thrilled," she said. ". . . and very, very proud."

First place awards in writing and photo-journalism awards went to the following students:

EDITORIAL WRITING — Rita Conard of West High School.

HUMAN INTEREST — Jane Henry of Grandview Heights High School.

GENERAL NEWS — Lance Lisle of Bexley High School.

SPORTS WRITING — Kenneth Marshall of Whetstone High School.

PERSONALITY FEATURE — Margaret Hemphill of Linden-McKinley High School.

NEWS FEATURE — Lynne Tweed of Bishop Ready High School.

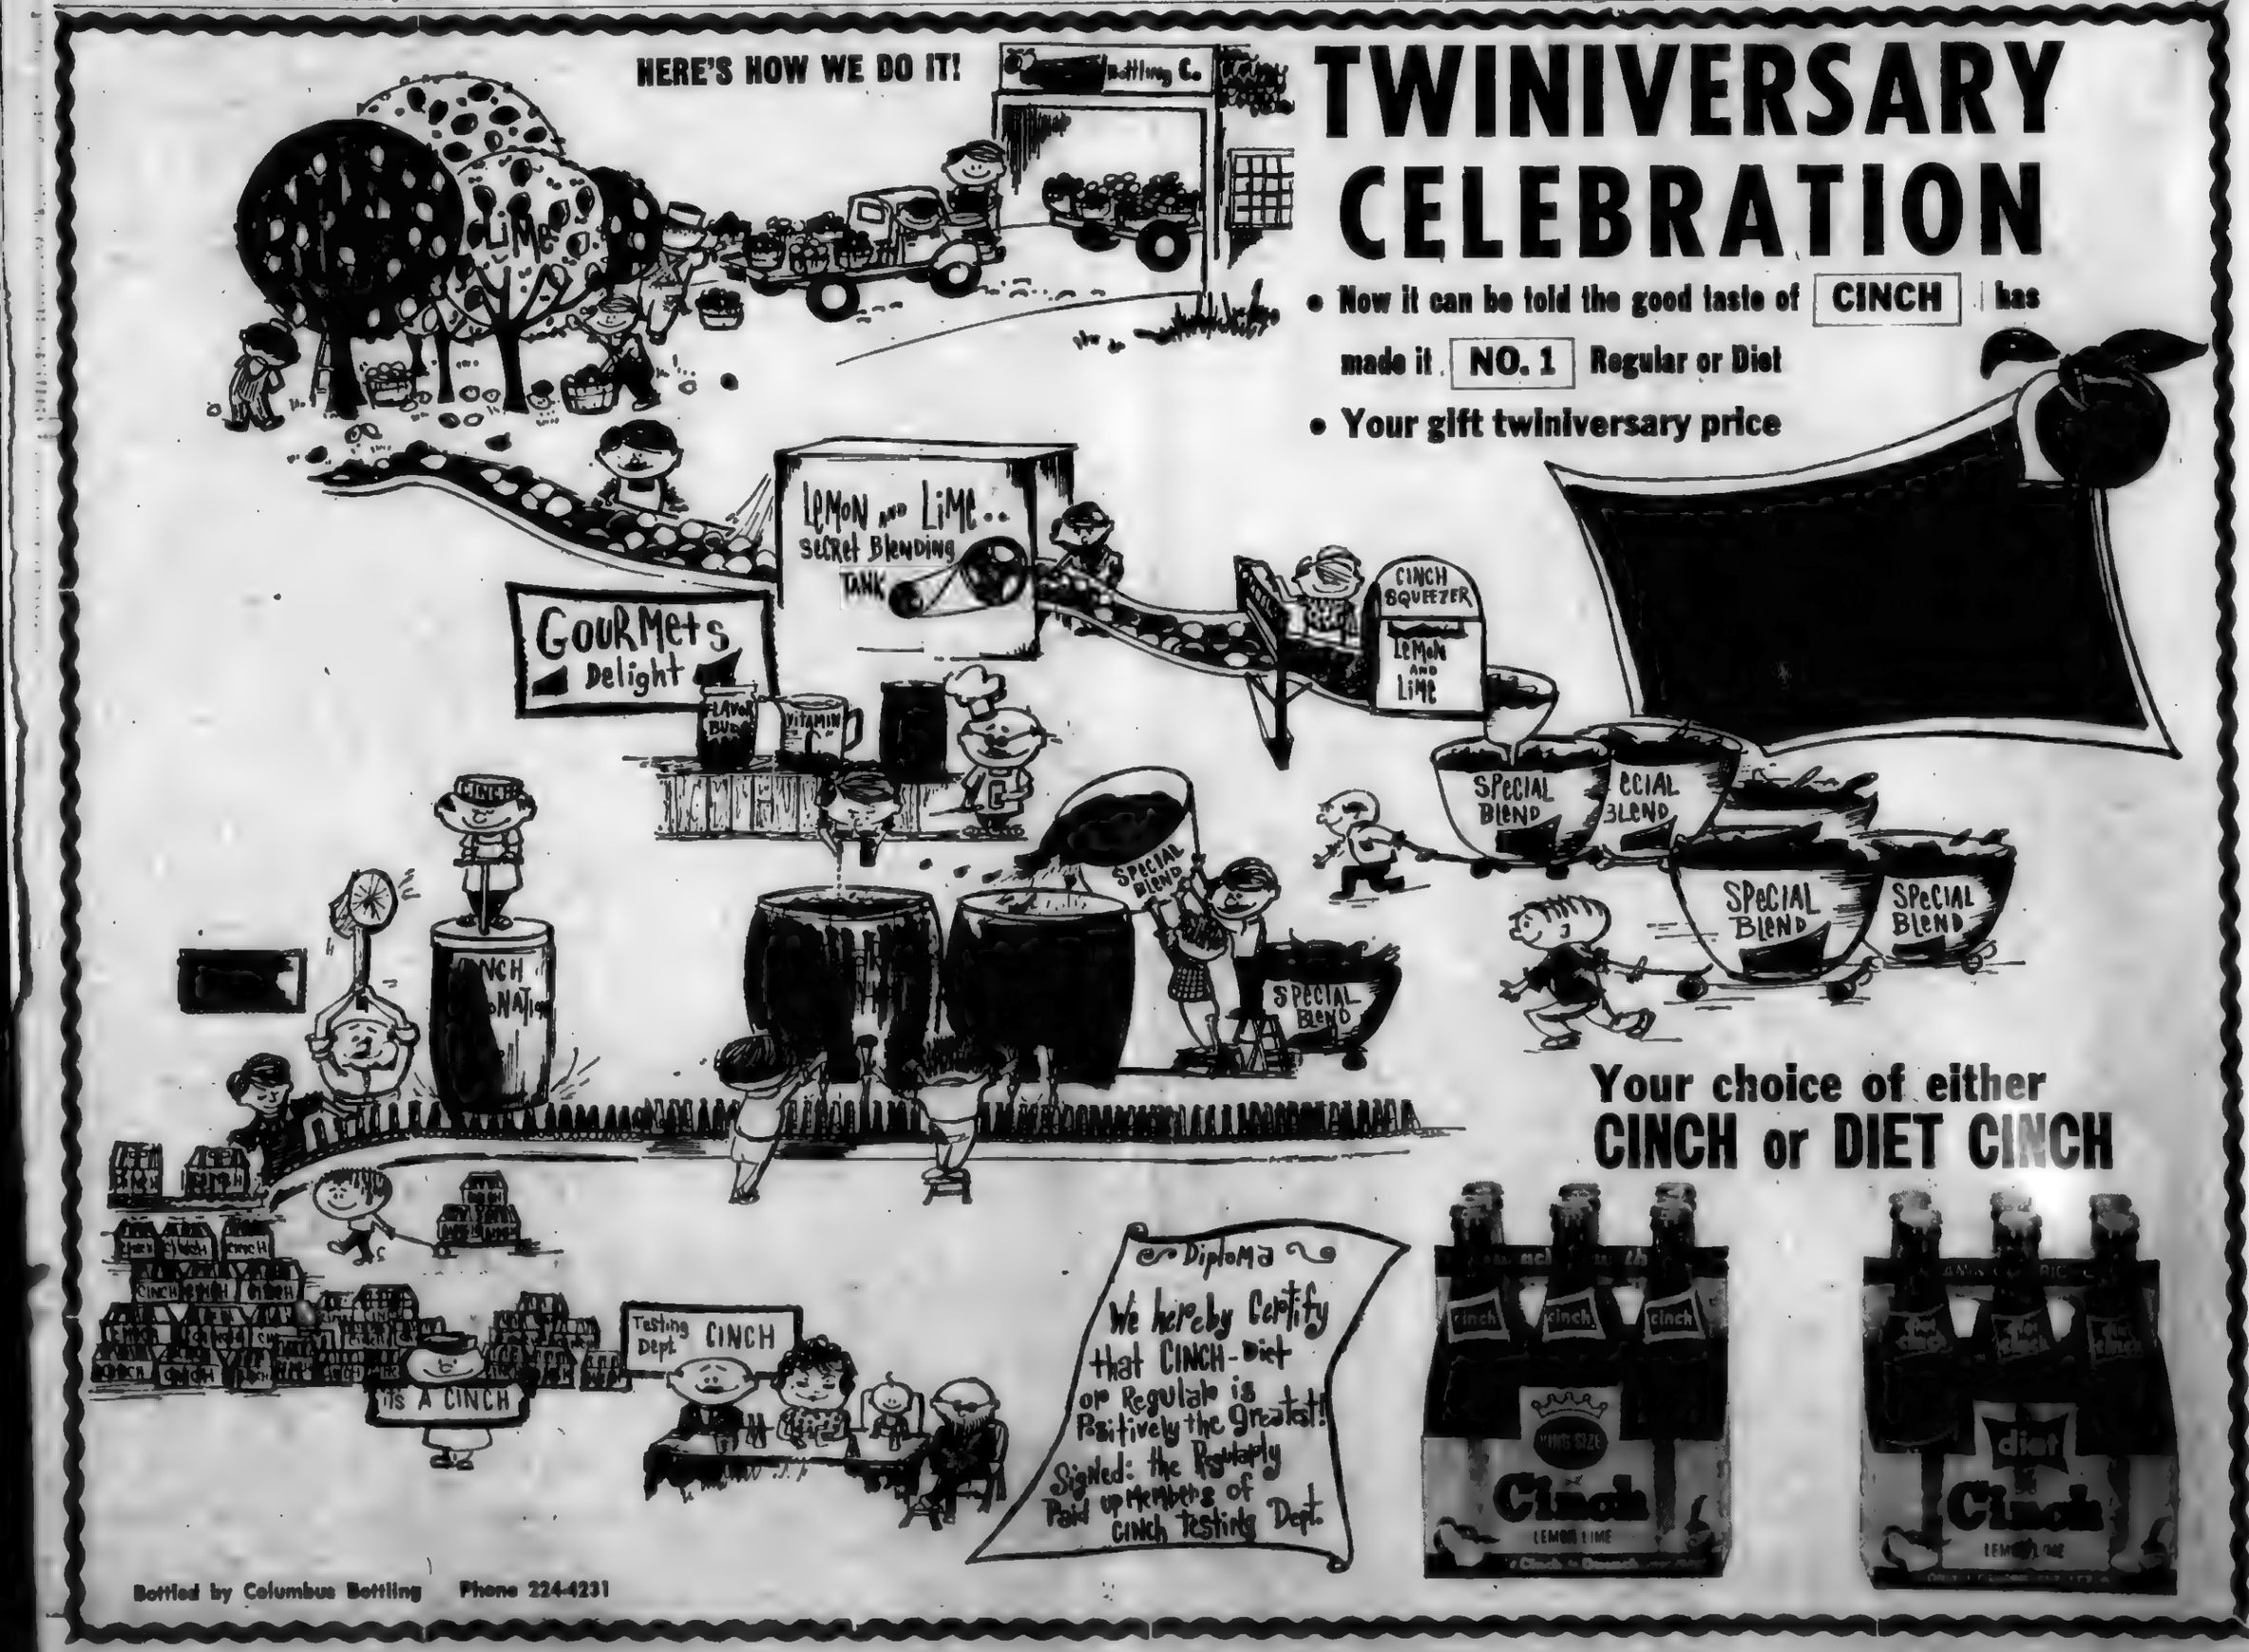
PHOTOGRAPHY — William Rosser of Columbus Academy High School.

All of the first place winners received a plaque and $10 cash award. Miss Deaton received a $200 check which is to be applied to a journalism scholarship at any accredited college or university in the country.

Honorable mentions include:

Rob Crane of Arlington High School, Shirley Acker of Arlington High School, Silvana Camboni of Whetstone High School, Christy Cahill of Bishop Ready High School and Debbie Clark of Arlington High School.

All winning entries are published in this special Spectator "Tales Out of Schools" section. First place award winners are appropriately marked and contain critiques from the judges so that the edition can serve as a guide to all high school journalists.



Miss Deaton was awarded a plaque for herself and one for her school Saturday morning on WLW-C's "Dance-O-Rama" program.

She is quite active in other school activities besides being editor of the Bexley High newspaper, "The Torch." She participates in Y-Teens, Dramatics Club, Future Teachers of America and French Club.

This year, her major academic subjects include English IV (World Literature), French III, American Civilization II and physics.

She ranks approximately 22nd in a class of 238 and has a cumulative average of about 3.6. Last semester, she earned a 3.75 average.

The Spectator's First Place winner in the photography category takes a look here at a high school dance at Academy. William Rosser entered these three in the picture story category. As he put it, "I think that these three pictures depict the teenagers at dances such as this." Other photo work by Rosser appears throughout this edition.

Teen Journalists Ripe For Picking

The next time you sit behind a typewriter in your high school newsroom feeling like your're wasting your time, review this article reprinted from Publishers' Auxiliary (Jan. 15, 1966). It may give you a new outlook in this lucrative field which is lacking enough talented people . . .

ENTERPRISING youngsters like these are the raw material of tomorrow's weekly newsrooms.

Mr. Publisher: Don't turn your back on the 1966 class of journalism graduates. They are the disappearing kind. Before you can turn around again, half of them will have bypassed the job market; most of the other 50 percent will be employed elsewhere.

This forecast is made on the strength of 1964 and 1965 nationwide surveys by the Newspaper Fund. Both studies produced this disturbing fact: Every second journalism school graduate is not available for employment.

These non-workers are headed for graduate schools; they enter military service; they spend the summer after graduation in travel; many of the young women get married and remove themselves from the job market; or they have some other reason for not turning to you for a job.

But you will find among those who want jobs some who are interested in weekly newspapers. Weeklies attracted 96 men and women, about three percent of the 1965 class, or six percent of those who went to work. The preceding class sent 84 graduates to weekly newsrooms.

Daily newspapers do better, as expected — but not impressively. Seventeen percent of the 1965 class were snared by the dailies; this was a drop of two percent from the year before.

Statistically and actually, the market favors the job-hunter. In the weekly field there are 9,392 newspapers, more than at any other time in the past eight years. Invitations to partnerships and eventual ownership are not uncommon, a handsome incentive for the young man or woman who wants to be his own boss.

But the odds can improve for the publisher. He can attract more young people, especially boys, to journalism. It will not be an overnight harvest, but it can happen in the foreseeable future if he gets them while they are in high school.

Obviously, that's not a new idea. Many publishers and editors work closely with high school journalism students. Some print school newspapers on their presses. Others have the congenial habit of making regular visits to classrooms.

What's being done isn't enough, however, even in the face of journalism enrollments, which are at an all-time high—19,239 men and women. The competition for graduates is fierce; weekly newspapers attracted one graduate in 28 in 1965. Daily newspapers, aware of the newspaper and its role in the community, Half of the Fund-surveyed students said they read a newspaper at least six days a week; nearly 75 percent read the newspapers at least weekly. Sports captured their first attention—after all they are boys—but world news, national news and local news placed second, third and fourth as topics "most read." Editorials came next. After that, comics.

This group was far more interested in important events than most of us were at the same age. Improved newspapers can share the credit for that development, so can better schools and teachers. Why this personal interest in news careers? Part of the answer may be found in student response to the question, "Why did you join the school newspaper?" Most of them said, "I like to write."

What else has influenced these students' attitudes toward journalism?

These schoolboy journalists have looked beyond the role of the newspaper. As best they can, since they have limited contact with professional journalists (more about that later), the students have studied the reporter. They know more about who he is and what he does.

We all remember student opinion polls which put the reporter at the bottom of the heap in terms of prestige he has in the community. I remember one young man who felt the reporter was "subservient."

The Fund-surveyed students described here didn't characterize the reporter as omniscient and omnipotent, but they did understand enough about his job to recognize its importance.

These youngsters regarded only the doctor and the scientist as performing more "service to society" than the reporter. They felt the intellectual challenge of a reporter's job equals that of the businessman, the teacher and the government worker.

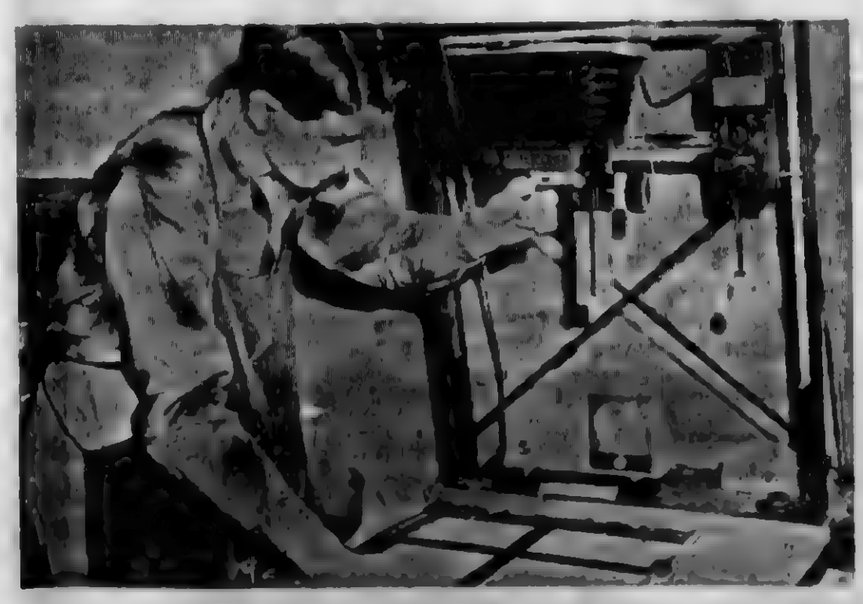
However, the reporter's prestige ranked seventh behind engineers, scientists, doctors, lawyers, bankers and government workers.

This point deserves emphasis.

Only one-third of the young men said someone had encouraged them individually to take up newspaper reporting as a career. Only one in five knew a reporter "well" or "very well."

This Newspaper Fund study cannot statistically support the theory that if more student journalists share a friendship with even one reporter, career interest would automatically rise.

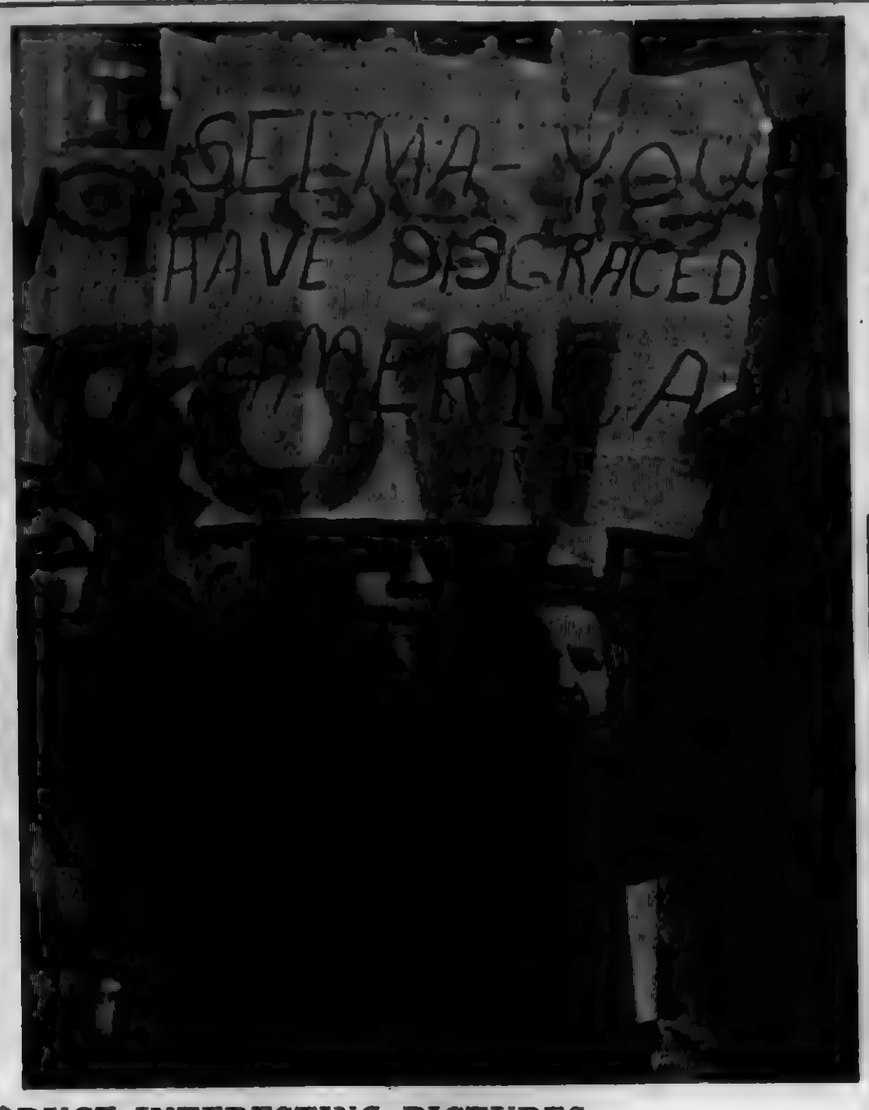
Our experience, however, indicates that the personal attention of professionals to the work of youngsters acts as an incentive. More and better work results as the students strive to earn the confidence of reporters, editors and teachers.



Here at the Newspaper Fund we have initiated a modest program to encourage young writers. Each week we receive 200-300 high school newspapers. Once a month we select two articles to be reprinted and distributed with the Newspaper Fund Newsletter. More than 3,000 teachers receive the reprints. The youngsters know this and it is important to them. Further, the fund telephones the student or the adviser beforehand to request the young reporter's permission to reprint. The effect on the student's morale can be measured by the delighted squeals and the "sincere thank yous."

How much more meaningful would be the effect of a telephone call from the local editor or publisher to praise a student's article? What would community reaction be to a brochure featuring reprints of these hand-picked articles from all area school newspapers?

How many editors would find among these students potential reporters whose interest in community journalism could be nurtured to overcome the often inflated attraction of the metropolitan daily?



Finally, since the high school journalism teacher bucks tremendous odds (the school board, the administration, the PTA, not to mention costs) in the battle to produce a worthwhile high school newspaper, support from the local publisher or editor is received eagerly, yet seldom sought. Teachers recognize that newsrooms are busy places; they often are reluctant to ask for help.

But I don't know one teacher who has ever shunned the friendship and support of an editor willing to share the opportunity to encourage youngsters to consider careers in journalism.

PUBLISHERS who face a scarcity of staffers should look to high school talent, not only for writers but for accomplished photo and dark room personnel, too.

IT TAKES INTERESTING FACES TO PRODUCE INTERESTING PICTURES

Superman Problems Perplex This Senior

Some reflections on the Superman television show: Why can't Lois Lane, Jimmy Olson and Perry White figure out who Superman really is?

What if the crowd in the introduction decided that it was a plane after all? What if Clark Kent lost his job on the "Daily Planet?"

Could Kent ever be a mild-mannered construction worker? Does he wash his Superman suit?

What if a cleaning lady went through Superman's "changing-clothes closet" and decided to take his clothes home for her husband? Perhaps then the world would learn the naked truth at last! — Carolyn Schneider in the Bexley High "Torch."

1st Place: Personality

'To Help Each Person Find His Place...'

By MARGARET HEMPHILL
Linden-McKinley High

(JUDGES' CRITIQUE: Miss Hemphill has demonstrated a welcome ability for detail. This is an item too often overlooked in writing a feature about a personality. Lines such as "This small, fragile woman with a round, glowing face, soft blue eyes and short grayish-brown hair . . ." add greatly to the reader's interest in painting a word picture of the subject. The article flows well and paragraph transition is commendable.)

Six students line the narrow, dimly-lit passageway patiently waiting to see the guidance counselor. Already in the office stands a tall, heavy-set young man engaged in serious conversation with her. This small, fragile woman with a round, glowing face, soft blue eyes and short grayish-brown hair is Mary Geist, guidance counselor at Linden-McKinley High School.

Her neat, businesslike office forms part of the administrative complex in the southeast corner of the building. Here Miss Geist sits at her paper-strewn desk near the center of the room and counsels Linden students.

"The stack of permanent records on my desk today has been pulled from the files so that I can re-figure some of the point averages at the end of the seventh semester," she said in referring to some of her work. "I'm holding my breath until I see if any more pupils are eligible for National Honor Society."

The tools of her trade lie in neat piles in the masses of filing cabinets that dominate the office decor or are posted on a large, frosted picture window above her desk. There may be anything from student permanent records to college applications. Beige print curtains hanging at the one window in the room add a feminine touch to the office.

Miss Geist has been a member of the Linden faculty since September, 1941. She first served as a teacher in the Latin and English departments after completing approximately one-and-a-half school terms as a permanent substitute at West High School.

Prior to this, she taught in Wheelersburg, a small town in southern Ohio. During this time she displayed competence in assisting young people.

"The second year I taught in Wheelersburg. I was introduced to the 'behavior problem' of the school," she said. "When he learned that I had a meager knowledge of Spanish, he decided to come into my Latin class for Spanish instruction. I hope that the special interest that I tried to take in him may have been one factor that encouraged him to complete his high school education." Then, she added contentedly, "The last I heard from him he was a dental assistant in the Navy."

Miss Geist completed her education at Ohio State University, earning her Bachelor of Science degree in education at 21 and a Master's degree in Latin at 22.

She has been counseling full-time for a comparatively short while.

"I was drafted," she said kiddingly in explaining how she acquired her position. Linden McKinley lacked sufficient personnel in this field before she came. Miss Geist admitted that she had always wanted something more than straight teaching. Being a student counselor apparently satisfied this desire.

"It affords the most pleasant contacts with students," she said.

Preparing class schedules, providing college information, and assisting students with their personal problems are her main duties. Miss Geist concentrates on placing students in subjects most beneficial to them, such as directing a student who has difficulty with academic subjects into an industrial arts course where he could learn a skill.

"It is terribly important to help each person to find his place where he alone is needed and where he can achieve to the best of his capacity," she said.

Miss Geist readily supplies college information — scholarship applications, entrance forms, test registrations. Mainly she strives to help students make the best decisions concerning college choices. Personal problems she handles would classify as "a student unhappy in his own situation or "a student that would be more of a problem to himself."

"Sometimes all you have to do is listen," Miss Geist said. This is her philosophy for handling student problems. She feels that no matter how small a problem may seem, a counselor must remember that it is important to that student. Therefore, for all counselors, Miss Geist suggests this motto:

"Neither ridicule nor condemn, but try to understand." Such sound reasoning has carried her through three successful years as a full-time counselor.

No Hand Outs

Peace and freedom are not just handed to us. They both require constant work, high intelligence and the most dedicated commitments.

Our common interest in survival in the nuclear age requires us to seek international cooperation. The year 1965 has been designated as International Cooperation year in the United States.

As the future framers of this world's destiny, we will have a grave responsibility to uphold the United Nations. This responsibility begins now, for we must begin to form a positive attitude.

As President Johnson emphasizes, "Our challenge is not to debate the theory or concept, but our challenge is to improve and to perfect and to strengthen the organizations that already exist."

—Silvana Camboni, Whetstone High School.

Opportunities Unlimited!

Will You Be Ready for Them?

For the majority of young people, age 18 is a crucial turning point. It is the age at which most of them graduate from high school and either go on to further education or training or start to work on a full-time basis.

Whatever the course selected, dynamic changes are going on in our economy. These changes demand a broad foundation of training and education, so that, if a shift in plans becomes necessary, a transition from one occupation or field of work to another may be made more easily.

What can young people anticipate about the kinds of jobs that will be available? In what industries will the jobs be found? Where should they seek these jobs?

A look at yesterday and today focuses on unmistakable signs pointing to a bright future right here in Columbus and Franklin County.

And while planning careers, planning the upbringing of families is in the not too distant future.

Columbus and other Ohio institutions of higher education — public and private — rank with the best in the nation.

Its technical training facilities draw students from throughout the nation.

Its recreation areas and opportunities are virtually boundless.

Columbus is an "All-America City" — and it is — a wonderful place to work and live.

That's tomorrow. What about today?

These youth minded co-operating Columbus companies caution that without the proper schooling and training today, there won't be much of a tomorrow. Education holds the combination that unlocks the vault in which the opportunities are stored.

First, they urge, finish high school. That's basic whether that is the end of formal education or not. It is the foundation for further schooling or technical training.

GAS COMPANY technicians work in pleasant surroundings, using the most modern laboratory facilities for research and technological advancement.

1st Place: Human Interest

(JUDGES' CRITIQUE: Keeping interest in a human interest story is not always an easy task. Miss Henry's piece on ship builder John Tilley does just that and she does it, we feel, by consistently putting impact into each and every one of her paragraphs. The story is a credit to Miss Henry's school newspaper, "The Bobcat," and can serve as an outstanding guide to high school writers everywhere.)

Historical Interest Inspires Hobbyist

By JANE HENRY
Grandview High School

While his friends watch Flippo and Superman after school Freshman John Tilley works in his "shipyard," creating surprisingly exact replicas of world famous ships.

He has been building models for 10 years, but his real interest is in naval history. "Making models is just a sideline," John comments.

After completing basic constructions with plastic model kits, he then spends hours in the library researching the heraldry and riggings of the ships, so that each detail may be as authentic as possible. "There's quite a lot of information about naval history, if you know how to find it," says John.

JANE HENRY

Nail clippers, tweezers, and razor blades are essential tools in his work. Each ship costs about four dollars to make, and some take up to 80 hours to complete.

The models range in size from three inches to three feet.

Although he is mainly interested in the historical period 1500-1890, John has constructed Viking ships and a nuclear power cruiser, the "Long Beach."

His display at the 1965 Ohio State Fair won him a blue ribbon and a two-foot trophy. In this exhibit were the "Cutty Sark," "Santa Maria," "U.S.S. Constitution," "H.M.S. Victory," and a Confederate raider, the "C.S.S. Alabama."

John has also displayed his models at the Grandview Library, and has sold three large clipper ships for $20 apiece.

"My ultimate goal is to put a ship in a bottle," he reveals. "Ships are never built in bottles; they are built, collapsed, and fed through the neck of the bottle. Whiskey or vodka bottles are the best to use. John is learning his technique through books.

He hopes to major in history in college, and then perhaps teach.

Today's Teen Is No Open Book

By SHIRLEY ACKER
Arlington High School

(Honorable Mention: Editorial Class)

Young adults' actions cannot be predetermined in the same manner that a chemist can predict the results of a chemical reaction. The evolving of a new generation is like the discovery of a new element or a new compound. The parents of today's adults also wondered about the younger generation. Today's teenagers aren't the first to create a perplexing situation for older people.

Parents and adults of today are confused by youngsters. Adults say teenagers are irresponsible and selfish do-nothings, fighting for attention. This is a way of ignoring the problem. Older people usually compare teens to turtles. A turtle plods along; he's always going some place, but he doesn't know where he is going. A turtle pulls itself inside its shell to hide from the unknown dangers of the world, and some parents think that teens are hiding from the problems of the future.

Teens are conformers. They look alike because they need to feel secure. If a person acts too differently, he isn't accepted into the group. When teenagers are considered in a mass, they all look alike and appear to act identically. Snowflakes look identical and they act alike, yet each one is different when examined closely. Fitting-in gives a teen confidence in himself.

Adults will probably never understand each youngster's differences. Parents do think they can predict teens' actions. This may be true for a few years. Even a chemist has to discard an old theory when he discovers a new reaction disproving the theory. Nothing remains unchanged. Adults should realize that the younger generation is becoming the present generation.

Growing Up; A Matter Of Escape

By ROB CRANE
Arlington High School

(Honorable Mention, Editorial Class)

Our generation is like a bird's egg which has been dropped into the ocean. For, when the bird pecks his way through the shell of infancy, he finds himself in an alien world. It is a world of starvation, corruption, oppression, prejudice, fear, and hatred. The bird is stifled and choked with charges of conformity, immorality, and cowardice. He has no choice but to fight his way to the surface, to seek his own environment where he can fly in the freedom of the sky and air, not waste and water.

The inhabitants of this watery world, the fish, stare at him with disbelief. They wonder how a being so different could have come into their world. They wonder why he won't accept their ways of life, why he rebels so, and why he can't simply follow their examples.

The bird wonders, too. He cannot understand how the fish can live with themselves in the stench and muck of their society. He wonders if they just close their eyes to all the poverty and injustice of their world. All he knows is that he cannot live there; he must build a society of his own.

And, he does. He rips and tears, claws and kicks himself upward out of this watery waste, until finally he reaches his birthright, the air. He sheds his burden of water; he soars upward, drying his wings and feathers as he sails.

The bird made it. My only hope is that we do, too.

To drop out of school is one of the costliest mistakes a youth can make. Job opportunities for the unskilled are drying up. New knowledge, new skills, more adaptability and greater flexibility are being required by business and industry.

To qualify for the better jobs of tomorrow, you will have to learn the new skills and techniques these jobs demand. Your education will become your most valuable asset. Young people who want a future should stay in school.

1st Place: General News

(JUDGES' CRITIQUE: Lance showed a commendable amount of news accuracy and depth in his story about the Bexley schools' 5-mill tax levy. As associate editor of his school paper, "The Torch," Lance continues to write on an objective plane seemingly ever-mindful of his responsibility to his fellow classmates who seek hard-core news effecting their everyday school lives.)

Levy Failure Drops Property Values

By LANCE LISLE
Bexley High School

"The 5 mill levy is a turning point for the Bexley schools, whether they decline or improve. Also, if the levy fails, property values in Bexley will go down," said John T. Loehnert, chairman of the "Committee of 100" that is working for the passage of the levy on November 2.

Mr. Loehnert, who is a banker and familiar with problems connected with real estate values, cited several cases in which communities rejected school levies and saw their property values decrease.

Although only 35 percent of Bexley families have children in Bexley schools, the last new levy passed with a 62 percent majority. "This means," Mr. Loehnert explained, "that a plurality of Bexley residents support good schools and desire high property values."

"We have never lost a levy," Mr. Loehnert added.

This levy will not actually increase the taxes five mills on the dollar. Only 4.5 mills will be added to the present real estate taxes. The .5 mill difference is the result of the reduction of interest following bond retirement.

The levy will cost the average Bexley family about $45 a year.

The money produced by the levy will be used for operating costs, including teachers' salaries, maintenance, and teaching equipment.

Mr. Loehnert said that many people have wondered whether the buying of property by Capital University has effected the tax duplicate.

His answer is that Capital University is big industry for Bexley since it returns much more money than it removes from the tax duplicate.

Presently, the "Committee of 100" has been increased to 350 people.

On October 21-24 they contacted every home in Bexley. At that time they polled the residents for their opinions on the levy.

"From the results of this poll," explained Mr. Loehnert, "the workers will be able to tell whether more personal contact with the voters will be needed to insure passage of the levy."

A STUDY IN PATTERNS PROVIDES EFFECT

"NOTICING THE outline of the fence contrasting vividly with the players, I set myself behind the backstop and threw the players out of focus for effect," says William Rosser, the Academy photographer who walked away with first place honors in The Spectator's high school journalist contest. Rosser used Plus-X film for this one, setting his camera at 1/125 at f/3.5.

NHS Recognizes Outstanding Students

By CHRISTY CAHILL
Ready High School

(Honorable Mention, News Feature)

Character, scholarship, leadership, service — these are the attributes of a National Honor Society member.

At present time, there are 30 members of NHS at Ready. Sister M. Albertus, O.S.F., is the moderator of the ever-growing organization, which is planning a March induction of new members.

To become eligible for NHS, seniors must have a cumulative point average of 86 and juniors a cumulative average of 88. Sophomores with an average of 90 are eligible to become probationary members, with permanent membership their junior year.

Candidates fill out service sheets, and faculty members who feel they know the candidate well enough submit a rating sheet on his character and leadership. The candidate's leadership is judged in three parts: initiative, executive ability, aand influence. Character is also judged in parts: morality, dependability, honesty, industry, cooperation, and personality.

In order to be better known, the officers and members of NHS are planning an active year. Their first endeavor was a college seminar at which Mr. Bud Trapp, Ready's guidance counselor, spoke on college admissions and scholarships. In the near future, the NHS is planning to feature a career of the week, a "what's going on in Columbus," publication of the Honor Roll, and the March induction.

CHRISTY CAHILL

Officers of the NHS are Jim Beckman, president; Marianne Vargo, vice-president; Sue Evans, secretary, and Barbara Malone, treasurer.

The National Honor Society of Secondary Schools was founded in 1921. The local chapter at Ready was established in 1964 and called the Holy Family Chapter in honor of the former West Side school.

One of the advantages of being an NHS member is that its national scope gives it high significance and unusual prestige. Also, a member of the society is a preferred candidate for a college scholarship and admission to college.

Sister Albertus says that "the society is established to recognize students that have already shown high scholarship, good influential leadership, enthusiastic service, and high moral character." She adds, "We hope having the NHS will stimulate enthusiasm for learning and incentive for service to the school and each other," and she would like to see it "better known so that it might encourage students toward these high ideals of the society."

MIMI SWEEPS—

In past years she has served as a Future Teachers of America cabinet member and then vice-president. Last year she was inducted into the National Honor Society and was a Girls' State nominee.

She was also a member of the Laurel Club, a junior high school honorary society.

"Currently," she says, "my main interests are in the field of journalism. It will be my major when I start at Ohio State University."

Mimi has had many exciting experiences since she began working in this field. The highlight of her young career, however, came last summer when she and her sister, Marcy (15), were the Bexley High delegates to the National Y-Teens convention in Washington, D.C.

"It was really wonderful," she recalled. "We toured the government buildings with Mrs. Frank Lausche and even met Vice-President Hubert Humphrey."

Mimi resides at 2612 Fair-av with her mother, sister and a brother, Tommy, who's 21. Her father the late Paul D. Deaton, worked for United Press International and the International News Service before his death in 1954.

Effect, Not Cause, Concerns Students

By LYNNE TWEED
Ready High School

(JUDGES' CRITIQUE: Differenciating between a feature and a news feature is often difficult. Miss Tweed, however, made it easy. The news value of her Viet Nam survey is unquestioned because of the general news value that the Viet Nam conflict has throughout the world. Miss Tweed brought the war a little closer to home with her survey. She, generally speaking, "localized it" with a high-degree of reader interest.)

"Our young people (at home) don't seem to realize why we're here."

These are the words of U.S. Marine Cpl. George Derieg which he wrote to the Oakland (California) Tribune. Cpl. Derieg is stationed in Viet Nam.

Kathy Truxall of Columbus, who will be a junior at Hartley High School next year, disagreed. ". . . . I would assume the majority of us are acutely aware of this situation . . . Our younger generation is going to inherit that whole God-forsaken war and its horrors and troubles. Don't you think that many of us have thought about it?" she asked in her letter to Cpl. Derieg.

Is Kathy being optimistic? Do most young people really know what is going on? Do Ready students measure up?

EXCALIBUR interviewed 20 students, five from each class. They were first asked what the Viet Nam situation means to them.

A senior boy recognized in the war "the U.S. stand for freedom." A sophomore boy said that "this freedom will be sacrificed if we give up in Viet Nam."

But three seniors, three juniors, four sophomores and four freshmen had no opinion.

One senior girl said, "It's horrible. They're taking away all the boys!" A junior boy said, "I might get drafted."

The same students were then asked what the President's Viet Nam policy is.

Two seniors, five juniors, three sophomores, and four freshmen couldn't give adequate answers.

A sophomore said the President's policy is, "After midnight, Aug. 27, if you're married you can still get drafted."

Of course these were only 20 students out of 925 in the school. But is this an example of the indifference of some of our teenagers? Are they more interested in avoiding the draft than fighting for the cause of freedom?

Only they themselves can remedy the situation — by reading, studying, listening and thinking.

But will they?

YOU are invited to express your opinion to EXCALIBUR. Do you agree with Cpl. Derieg or Kathy Truxall?

Arlington Swimmers Reach For Bear's Share Of League Laurels In High School Tank Meeting

By DEBBIE CLARK
Arlington High School

(Honorable Mention, Sports Writing)

DEBBIE CLARK

The Golden Bear tankers remain on top of the Central Ohio High School Swimming League, despite strong challenges by Columbus Academy and Worthington.

Academy's Vikings' only loss was by the Cardinals, and Worthington's one defeat was handed out by the Golden Bears.

Arlington hosts Academy Feb. 22 in a meet that promises to be one that either declares the Bears league victor, or makes the crown a three-way tie between Worthington, Academy, and Arlington — if the Bears lose.

Next week the Bears host Bexley at 5:15 in the last scheduled meet. The Fairview Park swimmers are coming from Cleveland for a non-league meet on Saturday, Feb. 19. The District meet will be Mar. 4 and 5, followed by the State competition, Mar. 11 and 12.

Arlington is undefeated in non-league action, as well as the COSL. This is remarkably good, as Arlington started water practice a full month behind other area teams. This was a result of the construction of the natatorium.

Todd Wise, Roger Jones, Tom Hales, and Dave Ezell have set a new pool record of 1:48.8 for the 200 yard medley relay. Todd also holds the team 400 yard freestyle record with a time of 4:17.9.

High Schools Are Widening Their Educational Perspectives

There are two sides to the high school picture that stand out in high relief as the new term approaches this year, challenging the educational system to provide a wider diversity of instruction and guidance for the sharply increasing number of students.

On the one hand is the mounting pressure on preparation of teen agers for admission to college which is sending approximately one half of this year's high school graduates to campuses this fall.

That both the high schools and the ambitious, serious minded teenagers have been doing a good job at this level is indicated by the fact that many institutions of higher learning, hard pressed to make place for all the freshmen, are stepping up their admission requirement to cope with the situation.

On the other hand with vocational training the key to plenty of good job opportunities awaiting teen agers who are not headed for college, measures to provide the necessary training for them must be and are being emphasized.

In fact, some educators feel that the time has come when more thoughtful counsel for students, plus the necessary amplification of facilities for vocational treatment, would work more fruitfully in their interest and that of the nation as well.

In many instances business and industry are coming to the aid of high schools as well as colleges, in this area of specialized and technical training.

Of great significance here —as well as to elementary education — are the provisions for financial assistance in the historic education bill passed by Congress and signed by the President.

Increasing attention to this phase of high school education is considered important to solving the "drop out" problem. The potentials of more than 700,000 teen agers a year, it is estimated, are lost because that many leave high school for lack of interest, or for financial reasons.

Programs including part time on-the-job training, put in effect with cooperation of business, have proven very effective here.

Meanwhile, as in all other areas of education, the secondary schools are beset by a shortage of qualified teachers and also by a shortage of class rooms.

Spreading use of electric devices such as closed circuit television, educational TV, movies, projectors and tape recorders will no doubt be noticeable everywhere in high schools as devices for carrying the skills of master teachers to more students.

SPEED, GRACE CAPTURED IN THIS PHOTO

THE BEAUTY of track has, for many years, attracted photographers who have tried to capture those qualities on film. The Spectator's first-place photography winner William Rosser of Academy does an excellent job here. "I noticed the start of this runner in a previous event and was determined to capture his gracefulness and determination," Rosser said. He used Tri-X film, 1/500, f/8.

'Bobcat' Editor Gives Her Views Of Paper

(Editor's Note: Jane Henry, editor of the Grandview "Bobcat," won first place in the human interest category this year. She takes a minute here to explain her views on editing a high school newspaper):

As editor of the Grandview "Bobcat," I have made it my personal responsibility to inject readability into our newspaper by spicing the routine staff-written news with my own articles emphasizing the too-often ignored wholesome activities of my schoolmates.

Often, we high school journalists tend to harp constantly on the faults of teenagers, overlooking the wealth of good they do for the benefit of our community, as well as for the enrichment of their own lives.

Some of the admirable traits I have attempted to forward in the BOBCAT are:

(1) Personal initiative.

(2) Participation in overlooked activities.

(3) Unusual, overlooked talents.

I have also attempted to project the personality of the teen newsmakers and therefore giving readability (humor interest) to the "Bobcat."

Dance-O-Rama Is 'In' Program For Young

It seems "DANCE-O-RAMA," in color on TV-4 Saturday at 11 a.m., is fast becoming the "in" program for the younger set to view in the Columbus area.

The appearance of The Outsiders, an up-and-coming young group from Cleveland, Ohio, on the Feb. 12 colorcast offers a prime indication of the popularity of the local program.

One-and-a-half hours after the four had presented their new hit disc, "Time Won't Let Me," on the show, all of the local record shops had sold out of the recording, and are still having a difficult time keeping up with the orders.

The easy good humor and honest interest of host Jerry Rasor and his attractive gal Friday, Becky Alkire, put both studio audience and home viewers immediately at ease.

The added attraction of good music, featuring current top recordings, guest artists, and interesting contests has a great deal to do with the success of the colorcast.

A pantomime contest, open to all teenagers in the TV-4 viewing area, is the newest "DANCE-O-RAMA" feature.

Contestants are asked to submit their names, addresses and phone numbers, with the name of the song they plan to pantomime.

Eight finalists will be selected from the entries judged on the basis of originality, stage presence and performance.

The deadline for entering the contest will be midnight, Feb. 23.

One finalist a week will be scheduled for a "DANCE-O-RAMA" appearance, beginning Saturday, Mar. 5.

The act receiving the most votes from the viewing audience will be declared the winner.

Midnight, Apr. 26, will be the deadline for voting.

In case of a tie, the contestants will be asked to return for a second appearance, and a final vote from viewers will be tabulated to determine the winner.

About 270 to 280 ticket requests per week pour into the "DANCE-O-RAMA" office.

Only 70 of these requests can be honored each week, so those desiring tickets are asked to select an alternate date for their studio appearance.

Ready Advisor Says 'Thanks' For Contest

Sister Anthony Marie, the journalism instructor at Bishop Ready High School, sent in this note:

"Your contest for high school journalism students is good news, indeed! Ready High and its paper, 'Excalibur,' are happy to participate.

"We look forward to the results and especially to the special section "Tales Out of Schools" in the Feb. 24 Spectator. We thank you sincerely for your interest in the future of your profession and for inviting us to participate."

Don't Say It . . .

Spirit, spirit, spirit—don't say that word again. Ready is pounding it into the ground.

Rest assured; we've got it. You saw it in the Halloween dance, the Senior Class Play, the Christmas ball; the skating party; Freshman, Sophomore, Junior and Senior Nights. You'll see it in the Prom preparations. You see it at every game in the "Battle Cry" cheer.

Notice anything? Each class goes all out to support its OWN activities. There's nothing wrong with class-competition. But the problem is not competition, it is indifference to the interests of another class.

There were fewer than 20 seniors at the Freshman-sponsored skating party. Yet the seniors were disappointed at their class play turnout.

The Mardi Gras is coming up. This provides one of the school's largest incomes. It will benefit each class, and classes to come.

How about some SCHOOL cooperation for a change? —Reprinted from the Ready High School "Excalibur."

Today's Teens Are Not 'Spineless' . . .

Who is the shaggy-haired boy with the tight pants? And who is that straight-haired girl with the short skirt? Are these tomorrow's leaders? Will they strengthen America? Many adults ask themselves this question each day. They wonder what will happen to this great United States once they leave this earth.

The young people of this time are not the spineless, unimaginative freaks that many fear they are. They have courage and strength to stand and fight for the country in which they were reared.

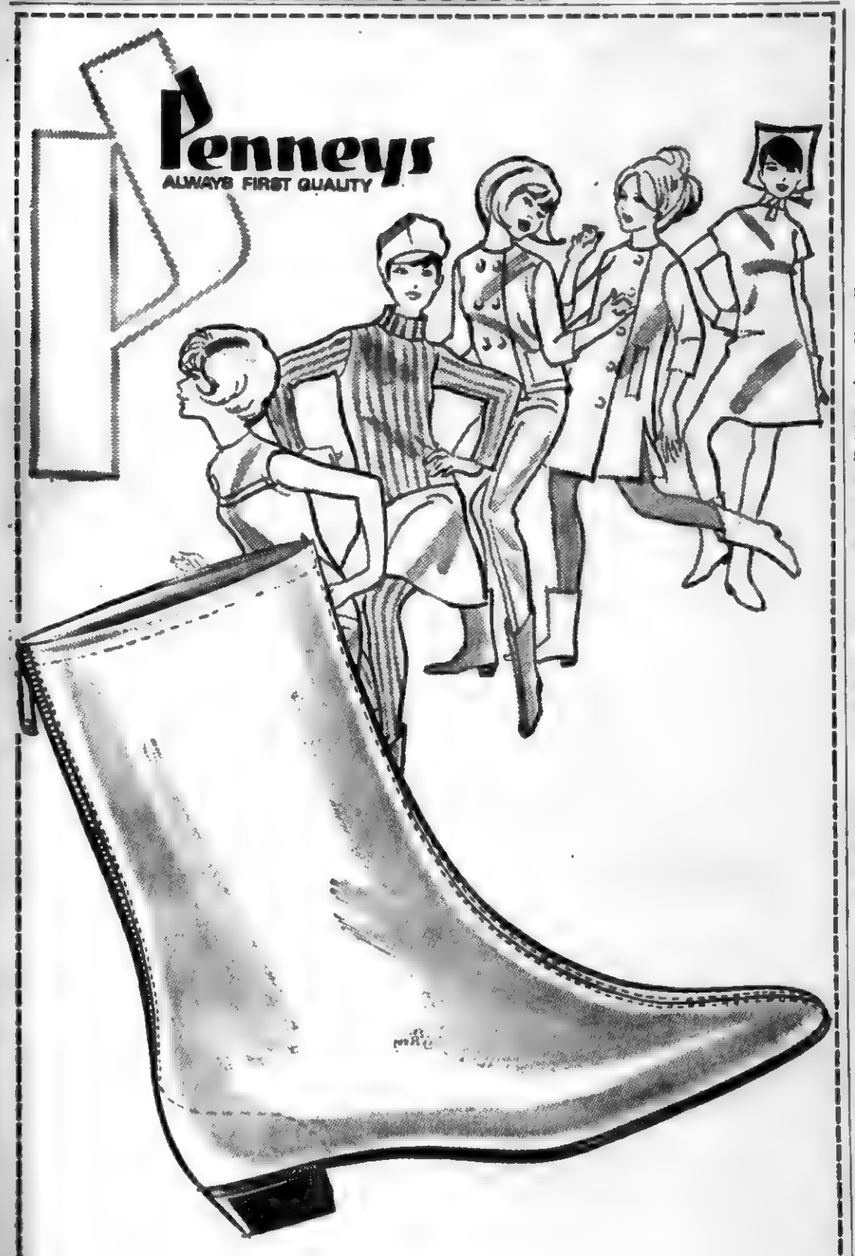
The people of this generation have goals and ambitions like their fathers before them. They, too, wish to prosper and retain their family heritage in this free land. Yes, these young people must be given great consideration before one may make a derogatory remark about them.

These people will some day grow to be the leaders of the nation. And when they lead our country to further improvement and prosperity, they will truly have been the wronged generation. — Mike Tharp, Upper Arlington High School.

Teens Must Pick Role

If all the world's a stage, and people merely players, teenagers must now decide what part to assume in life, an active or passive role.

Too often, however, teenagers go to extremes and lose sight of the goals of being individualistic. Rebellion, not individualism, is the goal of the more extreme nonconformists. Moreover, it seems that non-conformity has now become conformity.



To assume an active role in life requires individualism. Individualism, however does not imply radicalism. Rather, intelligence and rational thinking should be the foundation of being individualistic. Prudence and respect are today non-conformity!

Individualism is a fine thing, extremism is not.

Teenagers, realize the difference.—Lance Lisle, Bexley High School.

Whetstone Wrestlers May Be Dark Horses

(JUDGES' CRITIQUE: Ken, a reporter for the Whetstone "Scout," specializes in sports stories. His recap of the recent Brookhaven Invitational wrestling meet is a fine example of his work. In writing this article, he was faced with a difficult task familiar to high school sports scribes. That is, he was covering an event in which his school did not fair well. He handled the assignment with a high-degree of prowess and resisted the urge to use slang words so often familiar in the writings of fledgling sports reporters.)

The Whetstone Braves' wrestling team invaded the Brookhaven Invitational Wrestling Tournament recently, only to be beaten back by seven of the area's top wrestling teams.

KEN MARSHALL

The honors in the tournament were sought by more than 80 participating wrestlers representing DeSales, East, Ohio State School for the Blind, Brookhaven, Walnut Ridge, Groveport, Westerville and Whetstone.

The strong East Tigers wrested team honors with 79 points, swamping all competitors. Second place Groveport accumulated 55 points.

Although the Braves' action at Brookhaven seemed anything but spectacular, Whetstone will reach its peak performance in time for the City Wrestling Tournament and the Sectional Tournament, later this month.

Whetstone's sophomore wrestlers, most with little wrestling experience, are now gaining the confidence they need to make a bid for the City League crown. Their performances at Brookhaven show they are gaining stride and momentum.

Three sophomores and two juniors drew first blood for Whetstone with early wins. During further tournament action, two of these early winners were eliminated, only to be replaced by teammates who came back from the losers' brackets.

Captain Sam Graham, after registering a loss in the opening round, fought back to place third for Whetstone in the 106 lb. weight class.

Sophomore Doug Johnson, 115 lbs., garnered an early win only to narrowly lose to National Blind School champion Charles Bartee of OSSB. Johnson also managed to place third for Whetstone, registering three wins to a single loss.

Bartee was to be voted the meet's outstanding wrestler by 37 of the participating coaches.

Junior Mart MacLaughlin worked his way to capture fourth place, losing to a strong wrestler from the Blind School in overtime (2-0). He will seek the city championship at 123 lbs.

Another junior, Jeff Hill, captured fourth place at the 142 lb. weight class, losing 10-9 to an East Tiger.

Sophomore Kester Rinehart bulled his way past Brookhaven's heavyweight wrestler, 10-8 in overtime, for Whetstone's first win at heavyweight in two years.

Rinehart lost to East's heavyweight, 9-7, in overtime, but pulled down fourth place for Whetstone, narrowly losing to Walnut Ridge in the consolation round.

Other Braves registering wins at Brookhaven were Jim Hersey (141 lbs.) and Greg Wright at 178 lbs.

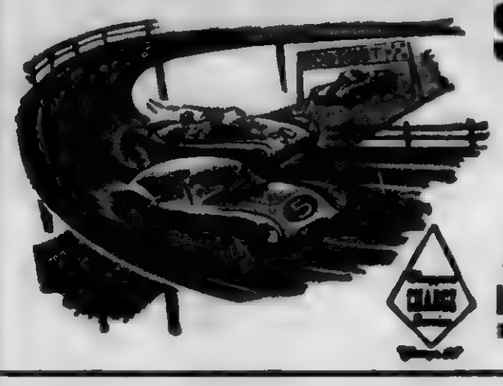
The Brave grapplers travel to South High, Feb. 18 and 19, to launch their assault on the City League crown.

Alcohol: Poor Social Medicine

By SILVANA CAMBONI
Whetstone High School
(Honorable Mention: Editorial Class)

An ounce or two of alcohol can certainly make you feel at ease at a party. It's amazing how a drink can relieve your shyness and make things seem easier for you.

Suddenly, a dull party may seem like a "blast." Has alcohol eliminated your self-[illegible]? Has the party become gayer, or has drinking caused your standards of what is fun to drop sharply?



Look at yourself. A drink hasn't turned you into a fluent speaker; it merely makes you believe that your silly remarks, which you wouldn't normally make, are brilliant.

Your friends, however, aren't likely to share your opinion. They may see a silly person who thinks he's cute because he's had too much to drink. You laugh too easily, your hair is sticking, your eyes are glassy, and all in all, you're a pretty unattractive sight.

Alcohol has helped you to make a complete fool out of yourself, although you hoped it would make you suave. Drinking certainly isn't a tonic for social uneasiness.

Self-consciousness is only a normal part of growing up. Only by facing social maturity without artificial aid can a person positively learn the kind of behavior people call "poised."

Will City National loan a high school senior $425 to buy the rest of a car?

Yep—that's why we're the LOANINGest Bank in Town.

A set of wheels in high school is almost as important as owning a guitar and amplifier. As the Loaningest Bank in Town, we've helped buy lots of them. And you don't have to be a senior. We have nothing against being a junior.
Actually, by law, we can make a loan to minors only when an adult signs with them.
But, it's done. Frequently.
That $425 "set of wheels" loan can be paid off for about $15 a month. Some parents find it a great way to teach economics.
So if you're looking at the rest of a car, see the Loaningest Bank in Town. Might help in getting some extra things done around the house.

Promotion Announced

Bexley Police Chief Homer A. Snoots announced that Thomas W. Tobin, 2720 Columbus-av, has attained the rank of sergeant.

Tobin's promotion became effective Feb. 23. Two patrolmen vacancies on the Bexley police force are now open. Applications may be obtained at the Bexley City Hall. Deadline for filing applications is Mar. 7.

School Enters Finals

Members of the Whitehall DECA classes will participate in the State Leadership Conference which will be held Mar. 11-13 at the Neil House. Students eligible for participation in the state contest categories are these district winners: Mike Schleppi, Dan Thompson, Terri Hardin, Mark Lee, Vicki Chvatal, Jim Stacy and John Kunz. Elected to represent their class as DECA sweethearts at the finals are Mary Mangia and Jeanette Dickerson.

Happy Days For Kids

Schools will be closed today and tomorrow in Whitehall so that approximately 250 teachers can participate in the 10th annual teachers' workshop. Teachers are visiting Columbus area schools today. Ohio State University teachers are expected to address the group at an all-day session in the Ohio Union tomorrow.

Bexley Hearing Set

A public meeting will be held at Bexley City Hall Tuesday, Mar. 8, at 7 p.m., to discuss the possibility of rezoning property north of Bryden-rd from single residential status to apartment construction. Officials representing the Drexal Village Condominium are seeking approval for construction of apartments at 405 Westland-av. Similar units have been constructed in Worthington. Council is expected to make the final decision the night of the special hearing.

'Comments' Available

Capital University's Office of Public Relations has released its spring edition of "Capital Comments." The publication is sent to residents of Bexley and the surrounding area to help keep them abreast of the developments of the university and give them a closer contact with Capital. This edition includes a listing of campus activities, March through August, which are open to the public. Editor of the publication is Willard G. Books, director of public relations.

Haft Joins Realtor

Sports promoter and businessman Al Haft, Jr., has accepted a position with realtor Tyge A. Irskens, 7110 E. Main-st. Haft will specialize in commercial and industrial real estate sales in Reynoldsburg and Columbus.

Jaycees Have Film

A film on the problems of child molesting and the proper methods of educating children to be aware of the problem is now available in the Columbus area. The Columbus Jaycees are sponsoring the movie and also have available Capt. Phillip Mombury and Sgt. Richard Griffith of the Juvenile Bureau of the Columbus Police Department to answer questions at the showing. Any group or organization wishing to obtain the film can call the Columbus Jaycee Office, 228-2773.

Art Gallery Proposed

A new art gallery proposed for German Village, has already received the blessings of the German Village Commission. Whether it will become a reality depends upon the outcome of a hearing Friday before the Board of Zoning Adjustment. D. L. and W. B. Dodrill, 2085 Cheshire-rd, are seeking a special permit to allow the Gallery to be established at 805 Mohawk-st, which is now zoned apartment-residential. The property is now vacant. If the request for non-conforming usage is granted, Helen Winnemore who now has a gift shop at E. Broad and Parsons will operate the gallery.

GOT CHARTER IN 1850

Capital University Marks 116th Year

By The Spectator's
BARBARA VILLALOBOZ

Nostalgia should be pervading the ivy-covered stone walls this week on the 36-acre campus at Capital University, and for two very good reasons.

Capital is celebrating its 116th birthday this week (its charter was given by the Legislature of the State of Ohio on Mar. 2) and 90 years ago the university moved bag, baggage, and books by buggy from its location at Goodale and High to the present site on E. Main-st.

Much has happened since then. Capital, which is the oldest institution of higher learning owned and operated by the American Lutheran Church, recently approved an ambitious expansion program which is unequalled in its 116-year history.

Plans call for $5,300.00 in new buildings and additions to existing buildings and two new land acquisitions. Currently under construction is a $2-million campus center and a $500,000 women's residence hall. The center, which is described as the "biggest construction-project ever undertaken at Capital," will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1967.

Featured in the center will be a dining hall large enough to seat over 1000 people. "This is what we need more than anything", said Willard G. Books director of public relations. "Right now we start serving lunch at 10:30 a.m. because of the crowded quarters."

When Capital was chartered in 1850 provision was made for a law school. This will become a reality soon. The joint boards of Capital and Franklin Universities approved the affiliation of the Franklin Law College with Capital University.

The former Lex Mayer's property across from the campus will be converted into a law library containing over 20,000 volumes. Completion is planned for the fall of 1966.

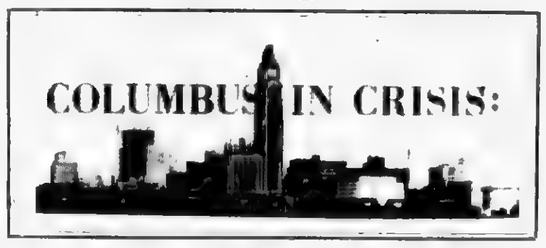
Capital University is outstanding in many respects. Its musical organizations have gained recognition all over the world. Particularly noteworthy is its chapel choir.

Among the colleges of the American Lutheran Church, Capital has the largest number of pre-seminary students enrolled.

The church-oriented university has a very strong teacher education program, second only to Ohio State in providing teachers for Franklin County.

Basically, Capital is a Liberal Arts College but, as director Books put it, "we pride ourselves in being Christian-oriented, otherwise, we'd have no reason to exist." He added "this is important, this is why we survive."

Dr. Harold L. Yochum, the university's ninth president, joined the college in 1946. Discussing current expansion, Dr. Yochum expressed concern over "rising construction costs."



He pointed to Lehmann Hall and said, "If we dupli-

Bishop Says Religion Is Lacking

EIGHTH IN A SERIES

COLUMBUS IN CRISIS:

A Columbus religious leader claims that this city has the greatest need for missionary work of any place in the world- and he says it's about time somebody told the people that so they can wake up.

Protestant Bishop Herman Hartwell, 82, 282 S. Princeton-av, says that Columbus residents are "bad . . . very bad" about going to church. "Most of the people here," he continued, "neglect God entirely."

Bishop Hartwell said he heard the same opinion voiced by church leaders ten years ago at an Ohio Pastors' Convention, but nothing has ever been done to correct the situation.

The Bishop is doing something about it. He's taking his ministry to the people on the streets of Columbus. He's setting up a sort of mobile pulpit down town and in city prison to "bring God to the people."

He hopes to eventually get the display in a grocery cart so that he can move it up and down N. High-st. He usually asks people on the street if they've prayed today and then invites them to do so.

"There are too many Sunday morning church-goers in this city who forget religion the rest of the week," the Bishop commented.

A pastor at the Family Altar League Missionary Church, 842 Sullivant-av, the Bishop received his title in 1923. He's lived in Columbus some 78 years and is an active member of the West Side Ministerial Association.

Being a former member of the Ohio Probation and Parole Association and having done ministry work at the Columbus Workhouse, the Bishop naturally feels that prisons are the best places to spread his messages.

He tries to set up his dis-

Michael V. DiSalle Joins Washington Law Firm

Former Ohio Governor Michael V. DiSalle will become a partner in the Washington, D.C., law firm with which he has been associated, it was learned this week.

The firm, formerly Chapman and Friedman, will be known as Chapman, DiSalle and Friedman.

Other partners are Oscar Chapman, former Secretary of the Interior under President Harry S. Truman, and Martin L. Friedman, another close associate of the former president. Chapman also served as chairman of President Johnson's Citizens Committee before the 1960 National Democratic Convention.

DiSalle, who maintains his home on McNaughten-rd, here, will continue his association with the local firm of DiSalle, Adams and Williams. The former governor will no longer be a regular editorial page columnist for The Spectator Newspapers, but is expected to contribute an occasional "guest" column when his time permits.

DiSalle is chairman of the board of Ohio Radio Corp. which owns The Spectator Printing and Publishing Co. in addition to a number of radio stations and cable television operations.

Besides these and other business ventures, DiSalle is author of a current book on capital punishment, "The Power of Life and Death," and another book to be published this spring titled "Second Choice," dealing with American vice-presidents.

Spectator Joins Dynamic Duo In Fight Against 'Bleacher'

GOTHAM CITY (Special) — There was a great sigh of relief here last night when Batman and Robin received word that the Columbus, O., Spectator would join the dynamic duo in their fight against crime.

Batman immediately designated The Spectator the official Batman newspaper and urged the citizens of greater Columbus to rally in the cause of freedom.

Target of the current campaign is a criminal called the "Bleacher" who drained all of the color out of the suits of Batman and the Boy Wonder.

A picture of the fearless pair appears inside this issue. Children of all ages are urged to color in the uniforms. There's be a new contest each of the five weeks in March.

Everyone entering must submit a subscription coupon which automatically entitles him to a 45 rpm record of the "Batman Theme" which will be delivered — in person — by a Batman representative dressed in authentic costume.

The winner of each week's contest will get a long-playing album featuring the "Batman Theme" and other great Bat tunes.

Names of all entries will be printed each week in the special Batman Honor Roll so that crime-fighters throughout the world will see the support the dynamic duo is getting in the greater Columbus area.

Further details are inside. Hurry . . . before the "Bleacher" strikes another blow for injustice!

Study May Determine Best City Representational Method

By The Spectator's
BETTY DAFT

Are seven councilmen sufficient for an on-the-grow city of nearly 600,000, going for a million? And is the present system of electing all on an at-large basis the best?

Direct representation is the basis of government on the state and federal level, would it not be a good idea to elect city legislators on a district basis?

Many believe it is imperative, in the interest of good, sound municipal government, to look with an inquiring eye at Columbus' council structure.

Councilman Donald Woodland is particularly concerned, and is currently enlisting support for a proposal to form a commission to study the effectiveness of Columbus' council setup.

DON WOODLAND

"I would like to see," Woodland explained, "a commission formed within the ranks of council, with advisors from such interested community groups as the League of Women Voters, Chamber of Commerce, labor groups, and others.

"There should also be a judge involved," he continued, "and legal direction from the city attorney's office."

Fifteen years ago, when Columbus numbered 350,000, each councilman theoretically was responsible for 50,000 citizens.

But Columbus' tremendous growth in the last 15 years has stretched the city to more than 107 square miles; the population is now nearly 600,000 and is expected to approach one million in the foreseeable future.

This is the factor that prompts need for a close study, not only of Columbus Council but of the system in use in other large cities as a basis for comparison.

"Cleveland," Woodland said, "with a population of 750,000, has 33 councilmen, all from districts—I don't know if this is better or even as good as our council structure, but we should take a look.

"And let's look," he continued, "and see if it would be feasible to have part of the councilmen serving on a full-time basis—maybe a combination of councilmen by district and at-large would be best."

A review of the effectiveness of the legislative branches of other comparably-sized cities and a comparison with Columbus Council, Woodland believes, is the sound approach to assessing the value of our legislative system.

"And committees," Woodland continued, "should be examined — we have eight, are these too many or too few? Maybe there is dual service that could be eliminated by combining the committees into one, with subcommittees.

"And finally," Woodland continued, "we might find that our system is truly the best — but how can we be sure if we don't search?"

Woodland, serving his first term as a councilman, was born on the Hilltop, went to school in the community and, before his election, was a coach and teacher in South-Western City Schools for eight years.

He and his wife and their two small children, live at 1060 Parma-av.

COLUMBUS IN CRISIS–

play in the mornings at city prison and then he moves out on the streets in the afternoons when the offices let out.

"You see the need for religion here every day," he adds. "I sincerely feel that for every missionary we send overseas, we ought to have ten here in Columbus."

Bishop Hartwell was emphatic when he said he was not condemning ministers in this city for the lack of religious interest. But, he went on, "very few ministers here take their message out in the streets.

"They preach for 20-25 minutes 52 times a year. I know what you can do in that amount of time. You surely can't get the gospel to the people the way you should."

The response to the pastor's "on-the-street-church" has been favorable. He says there's only been one woman that laughed at him and when he gave her the book to John to read she stopped laughing and started reading.

And now Bishop Hartwell is facing his biggest challenge. He's making a desperate attempt to get Columbus School Superintendent Harold Eibling to take the Bible to the classroom.

"The average boy or girl in this city doesn't have the opportunity to study the word of God in his home," he says. "We've got to give him that opportunity in our schools."

Will the Columbus School Board accept the proposal?

"I don't know," Bishop Hartwell says. "But, if they don't they'll hear from me. And I can make a lot of noise when I want to . . . even at 82."

cated that building it would cost us five times as much."

Dr. Yochum admitted rising tuition costs reflect this "inflationary trend" but added, "our scholarship and grant programs have risen accordingly; and needy student can still get help."

Because the small, independent college uses no federal funds, financial support must come from "church and friends." For example, a student's tuition, room, and board would cost approximately $2000 a year. This amount would cover only 60 percent of their education; the 40 percent would have to be absorbed by other sources.

Capital's alumni are extremely loyal and very active, particularly the 1700-member Franklin County group. But, as public relations director Books put it, "they will go half-way across the world to attend an alumni meeting but we have a heck of a time getting them to show up for a local function."

Kicking off the Charter Day celebration was a banquet Tuesday night at the Student Union. Attending were members of the Franklin County Alumni association. Columnist Henry J. Taylor was guest speaker.

Following a Charter Day Convocation ceremony and luncheon Wednesday at Troutman Hall, Taylor addressed the student body at Capital.

THEIR DAY IN COURT

These photographs depict the tense courtroom drama played out recently in Columbus City Council chambers when students from Columbus Business University took over for a day.

The students, largely political science majors of Leo Savage, chose sides and debated the issue of Capital Punishment in a mock Ohio Supreme Court hearing.

In all, 77 students took part in this first-ever endeavor of the business university. Instructor Savage says that the students spent four weeks preparing for the event.

Many times the arguments were heated. They all parted friends, however, after each had his day in court.

Probe Generates Varied Reactions

Recently The Spectator investigated the problem of classroom violence in Franklin County. Teachers and top administrators reacted with opposing views. Administrators termed the problem "isolated."

Several teachers disagreed.

Last week, The Spectator received comments.

Richard C. Sensenbrenner, executive assistant to the mayor, said, "Classroom violence needs immediate attention . . . we are making our pledge of cooperation known to school administrators, educators, the PTA and teacher groups, who might act now through their various responsibilities to cope with a serious situation."

He said efforts in this direction are not to indicate that his position is to be a political platform. Rather, he said The Spectator report "forecloses the need to debate the EXISTENCE of school violence; and safety in the school . . ."

Mrs. H. S. Hill, 1361 Francisco-rd, posed several questions on the "other side of the coin." Students have ceased to be individuals, she said. Schools have become educational machines, grinding out students on the assembly line. "Can we expect courtesy and respect from the ones who are denied this common, decent quality day after day?"

"Originality, imaginative creations and questions are not encouraged but conformity is stressed," she said.

H. M. Shawen, a retired engraver, living at 503 Southwood-av, plans to approach the local teachers' association to get permission for "teachers in the classroom to be the bosses." He calls for the Board of Education, the courts and parents of students to "give elders the power to rule the kids and not allow the kids to rule the elders — the way it is now."

He said several persons have expressed interest in forming a group to promote these ideas. "Soon I'm going to go to neighborhood PTA's and see what cooperation I get," he said. "There has to be jurisdiction over the kids in the classrooms."

NOW THERE'S SOMETHING TO PANIC ABOUT!

Good Neighbors

There have been numerous reports about alarm being raised in Columbus neighborhoods because a property owner is about to sell his home to a Negro family.

Fearful of declining property values, many neighbors protest and a completely unnecessary unpleasantness develops.

We recall one incident some years ago in which a Negro family moved in and almost instant alarm resulted. But calmer heads prevailed.

A little investigation proved the family concerned was a fine couple and when they moved into their own quarters they were welcomed like anyone else. They have since proved good neighbors. Property values did not go down. No one panicked and the situation has remained as before.

It's easy to understand the concern of a family whose home investment represents a substantial portion of their total wealth.

But the fact remains it is the panic of white residents and not that of the occasional non-white neighbor who moves in which causes trouble.

Rule one in such a situation should be that everyone involved remain calm and the new neighbors welcomed as any other neighbor would be.

The Handwriting

Civic leaders in this city are working diligently to rebuild downtown Columbus . . . to centralize major Franklin County activity around Broad and High . . . to form a heart of a kind.

The idea is certainly commendable but recent events in New York City could prompt second thoughts on the idea.

Remember that old Bible story about the handwriting on the wall?

Maybe there was a little handwriting on the wall when in the eastern states the lights went ka-fluey and no one could figure out why.

Then along comes the subway strike in New York City and traffic jammed the streets. Maybe that handwriting on the wall is saying "Decentralize, decentralize."

Wonder what would happen if the filling station operators got together and struck at the same time the subway workers struck?

It's some food for thought during this period of Columbus' rebirth.

One Of Those Songs

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

Ever have a tune bug you? Ever had one rolling around inside so that you catch yourself humming it when you're busy doing something else?

There's one out now that goes: Eng-a-land swing like a pendulum do. Bobbies on bicycles two by two. Westminster Abbey, The Tower, Big Ben . . . the rosy red cheeks of the little chil-dren.

That simple lyric and its accompanying tune have been haunting me for days. In the morning during the first cup of coffee, I find myself singing it.

And for the life of me, I can't figure out why I like it. Eng-a-land don't swing like a pendulum do. Eng-a-land is a nation that is noted more for its contribution to colonialism than for "swing." I've never thought of it "swinging" . . . much less like a pendulum. And then how do pendulums really swing? They go back and forth in a little arc . . . they don't really do much. They just go back and forth. Sort of dull.

So if Eng-a-land swing like a pendulum do, is the assumption then that Eng-a-land is a swinging country in the sense of "jumping" or in a sense of just kind of staid and dull?

It's a puzzle. And then there is the bit about the Bobbies on bicycles two by two. I've always thought of Bobbies as being foot patrolmen . . . but then, never having been to Eng-a-land, who knows? The two by two gig sort of makes it sound like an outing on a tandem.

Westminster Abbey, The Tower, Big Ben are landmarks. All these dusty historical places call to mind anything but a swinger. And what in heaven's name do the rosy red cheeks of the little children have to do with anything?

So here we have a conglomeration of words strung together with a catchy tune and what happens? Like an idiot, a grown man goes around humming and singing it.

It's downright humiliating not to be able to shake it. Reminds me of a poem once that got me the same way.

It starts, 'Twas brillig . . .

"To Begin, Students, The Ruling Party Is Divided Into The Viet-Dems And The Viet-Damns"

One Man's Opinion

By The Spectator's
JACK WITTENMEIER

It's often easy for us 1966 adults to shake our heads when we hear of or encounter another teenage transgression.

How often have you said, "Kids weren't like that when I was younger?"

It's easy to condemn—especially from that fortified, impregnable castle we call adulthood.

But are the "kids" really guilty?

A teacher bemoans passive parents who ignore notes warning Johnny or Mary will flunk if an immediate about face isn't started.

A policeman working at a large downtown department store questions the justice and example that sends a shabbily - clothed youngster off to Juvenile Court for swiping a pair of gloves and releases a well-to-do woman who has "accidentally" charged $500 worth of merchandise on someone else's charge-a-plate on the written promise "never to do it again."

It was Christ who charged those eager to punish to let fly with the first stone — if they were sinless.

There's a popular TV mother who throws her hands up in frustration and queries, "What's a mother to do?"

Those Moms who have clamped down on more teeth-brushing have more than slightly missed the boat.

Sometimes we fear this generation will become most famous not only for getting to the Moon — but for colonizing it with psychotics.

Let's be honest now. Don't blame the kids. God bless 'em —they're all this fumbling old world has left of tomorrow.

What's A Mom To Do?

Action Speaks Louder

Action has replaced acrimony in recent sessions of Columbus city council.

It is to the credit not only of the three newly-elected Democratic councilmen, but to the holdovers as well, that the important business of the public is now being attended to with dignity, instead of the loud-mouthed political brawling which typified last year's council.

In two months, the now Democratic-controlled council has delivered on several major campaign promises, something noteworthy in itself.

The vital sewer capital improvements program has been assured of adequate financing, a matter which the previous council booted into a political football.

The routing of the Olentangy Freeway has been resolved, as far as council itself is concerned. Opponents of the route have forced a referendum in May, but council acted as a responsible legislative body should.

Council sessions are not only quieter and more productive now, but they are better organized and shorter, much of the credit for which goes to City Clerk John T. Gordon and his staff.

Columbus is a growing city. It's encouraging to see its city council growing up with it.

Girl Scout Week

Some of the innumerable "Days" and "Weeks" which we are supposed to celebrate each year in this country are without any notable significance and importance.

Some are unconsciously silly. Some are highly specialized and are of interest only to a few.

But, there are some which have earned and which deserve the recognition and support of us all. One of these is Girl Scout Week which is to be observed this year Mar. 6-12.

The Week's stated purpose is: "To celebrate the birthday of Girl Scouting in the United States." That birthday took place on Mar. 12, 1912, in Savannah, Ga.

The most vital lesson learned by Girl Scouts today is character building.

This is the enemy of delinquency and the firm friend of the moral standards which are the real strength of any nation and its citizens.

Let all salute them during the forthcoming Week—and, let all help their cause in any way he can.

Letters To The Editor

Slams Medicare

To The Spectator:

A Civil Service Release dated Monday, Jan. 17, 1966, says that civil service employes who retired prior to July 1, 1960, and those collecting Social Security are eligible for both parts of Medicare.

But those who retired after that date, or who do not receive either Social Security or Railroad Retirement benefits, are not eligible for part one (hospitalization). They (may be) eligible for part two (supplementary medical) for $3 per person.

This is rank discrimination for many persons 65 and over who have never worked under Social Security and do not qualify for its benefits. There are thousands who did work for a time under Social Security who have been denied all Social Security benefits and have been denied a refund plus compound interest from date of payments.

Checks The Record

To The Spectator:

Does a review of his official record entitle Governor Rhodes to re-election? As mayor of Columbus, he imposed the city income tax without revealing his intention to the voters before his election.

As state auditor his tenure was the most expensive due to record-breaking high salaries for officials which he continues and encourages as Governor while the rank and file state employes were given a mere pittance of an increase.

As Governor, with the help of deluded taxpayers and a rubber-stamp legislature, he has burdened taxpayers with $1,500,000,000 in bonded indebtedness at the high rate of interest of 50 cents on the dollar.

Profit was never a dirty word in Ohio. Likewise, deception is not a dirty word as most of the communications media assist the Governor's vast publicity staff to lull taxpayers into false security while they are being overwhelmed by debt.

Likes Sun Vali

To The Spectator:

I, for one, was very unhappy with your "Columbus in Crisis" article which pin-pointed Sun Vali (Spectator, Feb. 3-10). I don't feel you should have named any one housing development as you will find dissatisfaction and vacant houses in any division.

I live in Sun Vali and like it. True, I'm not happy with the high water rates and half-day sessions at school . . . nor do I appreciate the people who keep their yards and houses looking like junkyards. But, you show me a place in any town and I'll show you the "bad apples" living there.

I think something ought to be said for the people in Sun Vali who are really trying, instead of having everyone believe that nothing but "irresponsible young couples" live out here.

She Pleads For Unity

To The Spectator:

I believe that God's ultimate goal is for all races, countries, states, religions, classes and parties to work for one cause, that being the betterment of all mankind . . . to make a more relaxing and pleasurable life for all men.

I believe the two parties should combine to make one great party, picking the most qualified men to run and then vote for the man . . . not the party.

Since I don't want people to think I have selfish motives for writing this, don't print my name.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON: Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — Confounding the prophets and making hash of some of their tidiest theories is the revolution in Asia's third largest country. What has happened in Indonesia casts a long shadow of doubt on the domino theory that is a mainstay of the Rusk doctrine.

CHILDS

Six months ago the professional China watchers had written off Indonesia. The Chinese Reds had all but consolidated their power over this nation of 105,000,000 people. But a coup meant to eliminate the army generals, the last obstacle, brought a violent reaction.

Even in an era marked by one hideous barbarism after another, what followed must be some sort of record. In the space of a few weeks after the Oct. 1 attack on the generals an estimated 100,000 to 150,000 Communists or suspected Communists were hunted down and shot in cold blood. Probably no one will ever know the exact number, particularly since Indonesia is today closed to virtually all outsiders.

Now Radio Jakarta reports the power struggle continuing, with Sukarno firing Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution as Minister of Defense. But whoever wins faces a bankrupt country on the brink of ruin with wild inflation running unchecked. This is the end result of Sukarno's foreign adventurism and the insane arms race that has swamped a desperately poor nation.

What is not realized is the role the Soviet Union played in this arms race. During the past 10 years Moscow has sold Indonesia on credit an estimated $1-billion in arms. That includes complex modern weapons such as MIG-21 planes.

The Russians are reported to have sold India four times as much in arms as the United States, and India faces an economic crisis nearly as grave as that in Indonesia.

Indonesia's external debt is $2.5-billion of which $1-billion is owed to Moscow for arms. The annual value of the country's exports is roughly the amount of the interest due on this debt. That is a measure of the bankruptcy that the dubious victor in the current struggle confronts.

Sukarno, with his posturing and his wild statements, never came to grips with the troubles besetting his country. As has so often been said, it is a rich land but to exploit those riches means disciplined effort directed from the top. That has not been forthcoming.

China's influence has been weakened or eliminated not only in Asia but in several new African nations where Peking by investing men and money thought to gain control. Nationalism is an overriding force working against the domino theory which assumes that Peking or Moscow must take over in neighboring nations if one nation falls.

So, too, are the economic forces that produce runaway inflation, hunger and unrest. These forces are stronger than ideology, and as we are now seeing they can topple the cleverest demagogues.

Poolside Paradise Hosts One-Man Band

Steve Burns, the "One Man Band," is now entertaining nightly at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge East, 5000 E. Main-st, in their famous Poolside Paradise. A long time favorite of mid-Ohioans, he's making his first appearance at the popular east side Motor Lodge after many engagements throughout the country. Steve has played in Las Vegas, Reno and throughout Florida. A graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, Burns was featured pianist with Vaughn Monroe Orchestra for five years.

Steve bears the title of "One-Man Band" because of his versatility in music, performing on the piano, organ and his own "Magic Percussion Box." Customers are amazed at the full orchestral sounds they hear when Steve plays. His ability to fit his entertainment to the mood of the guests and his vast musical knowledge make Steve a real crowd-pleaser. You can hear Steve every night, except Sunday, from 9 p.m. until 2 a.m. There is no cover or minimum charge.

Mighty Oak Beautifies Downtown Scene

I recently spent an enjoyable evening at the Oak Room. This is a major addition to Kuenning's Downtown Restaurant, which opened at 19 N. High-st. It is part of a $250,000 modernization program for this famous dining institution. The Oak Room has a warm, cozy decor, is richly carpeted and features oak paneling and a 45-foot oak bar, one of the longest in the Midwest. A coat of arms behind the bar portrays the British lion, the Scottish unicorn and the Irish harp as well as mottoes and inscriptions dating back to the House of Stuart in 1605.

Another feature is the Oak Room's Beefeater Buffet, from which sandwiches, snacks and short order delicacies are served. The Kuenning's mixologists bring nearly a half century of experience to the Oak Room. There is a very novel approach to entertainment in the Oak Room. Stop in and see for yourself. Proprietor Ralph H. Kuenning, Sr., announced that patrons are offered unlimited parking at no cost during their visit. A uniformed doorman will park and deliver your car, or guests may park themselves at Tower Parking Garage.

Comedy At Red Checker Room

Pat Malone, the smiling Irishman of the Old Tavern Red Checker Room, recently announced the booking of hilarious comedian, Clem Paducah. Doing a Johnny Carson type show, he establishes quite a rapport with his audience. Much of the comedy is achieved by Paducah's conducting humorous interviews. With audience participation, it's a sure bet everybody gets in the act. On the same bill is a real yummy singer, Pauline Paul. She is talented and beautiful. Don't miss her.

Victor Borge At Vets'

Victor Borge, the celebrated concert pianist-comedian, will appear in "Comedy In Music" at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Mar. 12, at Veterans Memorial. The show also boasts the presence of concert pianist Leonid Hambro, formerly official pianist with the New York Philharmonic, who accompanies Borge in what the press has aptly dubbed "hilarious piano duels." Tickets for the performance are on sale at Central Ticket Office (Richman's), 37 N. High, Sears Northland and Town and Country, and Discount Records, Inc., 1956 N. High-st.

Muggsie's Books Player Piano

Muggsie's, the fun spot on the West Side, just five minutes from Broad and High, has added another new feature. Now, anyone can be a professional pianist when he sits down to the player piano with all of the old favorite songs on the rolls. You'll be surprised how much fun and gaiety abounds when you gather around and join in som good old-fashioned singing.

Johnny Wright, the friendly host of Muggsie's, proclaims the player piano has advantages too. Besides good music and laughter, the player piano serves as a reducing machine. So Johnny invites all of his friends in for song and exercises.

There's A Jinks At The Golden Horseshoe

JUDY JINKS

Dynamite—110 pounds of it — is planted at the Golden Horseshoe. In a shapely package, about 5'2", considered highly explosive only when moving, this material is labeled Judy Jinks, go-go girl supreme. The discotheque dancer is seen nightly at the Golden Horseshoe, beginning at 9 p.m. Having studied dancing, ballet and modern jazz since the age of five, Judy is considered one of the best in the business. She likes being a go-go girl and her dancing proves it. Host Ron Uhl invites everyone to drop by for a real good time. Open from 11 a.m. to 2:30 a.m., the Golden Horseshoe is a guaranteed fun spot.

British Honduras has a population of only 95,000, but resources are so limited one-third of the people must depend on CARE food aid. Contributions to the CARE Food Crusade, Columbus, O., 43215, help make this assistance possible.

What Makes Go-Go Go?

What is a Go-Go Girl and why the Go-Go fad? This question has been asked of me many times the last few weeks due to the growing trend of this type of entertainment. To describe them in a few words: a Go-Go Girl is one who performs to fast, rhythmic music, gyrating much like a striptease dancer without removing any wearing apparel. The normal costume consists of boots, net hose, with a skin tight outfit that leaves little to the imagination. Go-Go Girls are often referred to as "discotheque" dancers. Discotheque is a French word meaning "record library." As used in our present day language, Discotheque means a night club where one dances to records. Many of the performers dance in cages. Most do not. The reason for the cage is sometimes the dance gets so frenzied, the girls become dizzy and fall off the stage. Hence the cage serves as a protection.

More and more clubs and lounges are booking go-go girls purely because of economics. They draw good crowds, everywhere. Many entertainment spots which previously were dying on the vine with singers and combos now have a shot in the arm with discotheque. Also, a club pays a lot less for go-go entertainers than for musicians. An average piano player appearing in a lounge earns $150 a week. Whereas a discotheque dancer receives $75-85 a week and probably draws more business. Go-go dancers have become popular in Columbus within the past year and a half. However, East and West Coast cities began this type of entertainment two and a half to three years ago. In some of the larger towns, a girl can earn up to $150 a week.

There is no special training needed to break into the business. Most of the girls love to dance and just apply for a job on their own. Seldom are threatrical agents involved. The girls are not required to join a theatrical union as are most professional show people.

How long discotheque dancing will remain a top drawing card is anyone's guess. When rock and roll music first came to our attention via the airways, I personally gave the "fad" one year of success. That was ten years ago. Who knows, discotheque entertainment may become just as great a part of Americana as apple pie and ice cream . . .

LEAGUE TO MEET

Youth Art Study Planned At OSU

The OSU School of Art will conduct an art course for children starting Apr. 9 and ending June 4.

Classes—in two sessions—will be held on consecutive Saturdays from 9-10:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Any child aged six through 15 can attend, but classes will be grouped according to age.

The registration fee is $6, and applications can be obtained now at the School of Art, 128 N. Oval-dr, on the campus.

Have Comedy Plus Personality

The Colleagues, currently appearing at the Bowery, have a fresh appearance with a fresh approach to music and entertainment. This is an extremely versatile group with a sound somewhere between Ramsey Lewis and Peter Nero. Vocally, they are comparable to the Four Freshmen.

The leader, Jack Smith, has worked with many well-known artists. Their music ranges from commercial jazz to the "old standards." An added attraction of this outfit is their comedy. It is not slapstick, but very funny and often sophisticated material. There is just enough humor included to cause one to "sit on the edge of the seat."

The Colleagues are a talented group that do one thing . . . entertain!

But It's Usually An 'Angelic Affair'

By MARGARET DONALDSON

It was fun! In fact it was a lot of fun! It was spring hats and Florida suntans—is was beautifully dressed women — and lively chatter among old friends. And it was a lovely sunshiny mild day.

In other words it was the Angel Luncheon.

This year, as in other years — things had gone wrong (perhaps just a little) before the curtain rose—but in the end the Angels were assembled, the guest speaker was charming and the room was alive with laughter and excitement.

Some women had paid $10 to attend. Others more. But proceeds are always put to good use by the sponsoring Columbus Section, National Council of Jewish Women.

This year's luncheon, the eighth annual, in the Neil House, had had its own special problems. Jeane Dixon, famous Washington seress, had been unable to fulfill the invitation as guest speaker. She had the flu as many Washingtonians had that week.

But her best friend, Miss Eleanor Bumgardner, came in her stead.

The publicity chairman, Mrs. Hubert Flomenhoft, had her share of grief (but it turned out fine in the end).

Looking back members remember other Angel Luncheons and all the sad, tragic and funny things that happen in planning an event that brings more than 350 women together at one time.

There was the year, when, on arriving at the banquet hall to decorate, the committee found the room littered with displays from a plumbing show held there the previous day. The room abounded in bathtubs and bathroom accessories.

It was a mad scramble but eventually when the women were led into the room a few hours later, the lights dimmed, the fountain sprayed joyfully in a garden setting.

News Commentator Dickie Chapelle, 1964's speaker, is now a casualty of the war in Viet Nam. She spoke on "Peace and the United Nations."

One year the committee in charge decided that "skirts of gold" would be beautiful decorating each table. They were — except the gold decorated the skirts of the guests too — and all that beautiful gold cloth is carefully stored for future use. Some of it, however, still decorates the head table.

Another year the guest speaker couldn't be heard for workmen pounding in an upper region of the building. Some of the women finally climbed to the building's roof and asked them to stop.

Still another memory is of the "Fallen Angel."

Angels are selected by a committee of past-presidents, (members contributing the names of "possible angels") and chosen eventually by work through the years on the Council's behalf. Angels must not be former or present officers—but come from the ranks.

On this particular day the "Angel," known only to the committee, didn't arrive. She was ill. And so Mrs. Joseph Horchow was presented the honored token of appreciation — in her home after the luncheon.

The stork once interfered with the duties of the luncheon chairman — and caused near panic.

"Our program is so dynamic that it goes on anyway," says Mrs. David Gerstenfeld, public relations chairman. It was during the first of her two terms as president that the "Angel Luncheon" here was conceived.

Angel parties are a national idea with the Council of Jewish Women. There are Angel Luncheons, Balls and Teas held throughout the nation — and proceeds raised help the many projects of the council — both in their local community and their national and international commitments.

MRS. MARVIN MENTSER

Adelaide's Job "Shines"

"Why it's the 'natural' thing to choose!"

"Nothing breathes like it, shines like it or flexes like it."

Adelaide (Mrs. Marvin Mentser) was talking about leather — "naturally." She's been talking "leather" all over Columbus for the past several months since she took over her new job as Columbus representative for the Leather Industry of America.

In fact Lazarus Downtown is sponsoring "Leather Week," Mar. 13 through 19 when leathers — primarily in shoes and accessories — will be featured.

Mrs. Mentser, a graduate of the Laboratory Institute of Merchandising, New York, formerly modeled in the Tall Girl Fashion shows. She also was a comparison shopper in New York City before her marriage.

Returning to Columbus, to marriage and mothering identical twins, Barry and Garry, aged six-and-one-half years, the lure of the fashion industry was too much to keep her at home full-time.

So it's back to work for Adelaide—at least part-time. Her new job may take her out of the leather business, too once in awhile . . . for it also includes accounts with other fashion industries.

But one thing is sure. She's sold on leather. Other materials, she believes, won't wear as long, shine as well "and besides, they're hot," she exclaimed.

She should know. Her job takes a lot of "shoe leather."

REYNOLDSBURG JR. HI

Reynoldsburg Junior High PTA meets in the school cafeteria Monday, Mar. 7, at 8 p.m. The Executive Board meets in the school library from 7 to 8 p.m.

The regular program has been cancelled and in its place will be a panel made up of school board members to discuss the proposed levy for the schools to be voted on in May. They will answer questions pertaining to the financial situation of the Reynoldsburg school system.

Anyone having questions that require official data or references, should submit them to the school's office in advance.

It is hoped parents and citizens will get the facts on the "cutbacks", curtailment of bus survice, and curriculum problems facing the school board and parents if the levy is not passed in May.

New Minister Assigned To Morgan Memorial

The Rev. Virgil Versteeg, became the new minister of Morgan Memorial Methodist Church, 1725 E. Main-st, Mar. 1, Bishop F. Gerald Ensley announced today.

He succeeds the Rev. Samuel Beaty who is on special assignment by Bishop Ensley to Roser Memorial Community Church, Anna Maria, Fla., as of Feb. 1.

Mr. Versteeg is the son of the Rev. Dr. John M. Versteeg, Lakeside, O., a Methodist minister in Ohio for more than 40 years—until his retirement in 1957 — and a church historian of note.

A brother, the Rev. Robert J. Versteeg, is a teacher in Louisburg, N.C., Junior College, a Methodist school. Another brother, Sherwood, is director of public relations for Lima Memorial Hospital. A sister, Mrs. Rudolph Allrich, lives in St. Louis, Mo., where her husband, a minister, is director of Emanus Home, a Methodist institution.

Virgil Versteeg was born in Cincinnati, lived in Lima in the 1940s when his father was superintendent of the church's Lima District; was graduated from Athens, O., High School and Ohio University. He prepared for the ministry at the Methodist Theological School in Ohio.

He was ordained an elder in 1964 while serving churches in Sugar Grove, Fairview and Pleasant Hill. He also served churches at The Plains and Guysville.

He and his wife, the former Mary Talbert of The Plains, have a son, Mel Marinus, 3. In his new assignment on the Columbus District he will serve a congregation of almost 800.

Convention To Start March 17

"Oh Come, Let Us Sing Unto the Lord" is the theme of the 50th Anniversary Convention of the Ohio Federation of Music Clubs which convenes at the Neil House Thursday to Saturday, Mar. 17-19. Miss Mary G. Heininger of Marion is president. Mrs. Harry A. Combs is general chairman of the convention, and Mrs. Elmer Keller is program chairman.

Official hostesses are the Women's Music Club and the Saturday Music Club of Columbus.

The convention will feature a gala birthday luncheon Thursday, Mar. 17, with Mrs. Clifton J. Muir, president of the National Federation as speaker. There will be workshops, panel discussions, concerts by local artists as well as groups from Otterbein College, OSU, Capital, Dennison, Wittenberg and Ohio Wesleyan Universities; performances of compositions by composers who have won state and national awards in composition from the Federation; and a Choral Festival with a massed choir under the direction of the eminent composer and conductor, Dr. Noble Cain.

Dr. Cain will also be the main speaker at the Golden Melody Banquet on Friday evening. His subject will be "Let Not Your Song End." Following this Mr. Joseph Fennimore will give the principal concert of the convention. He is the 1965 Young Artist Auditions winner of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Saturday the second annual State Junior Convention will be held with a panel on Careers in Music; a Junior Honors program honoring Junior Festival, Composition and Scholarship winners; an organ demonstration by Dr. Wilbur Held and a Crusade for Strings demonstration featuring a massed orchestra of junior musicians from around the state under the direction of Dr. N. L. Burkhalter.

Friends Honor Schumachers

Friends honored Mr. and Mrs. David Schumacher and sons, Scotty and Brent, and daughter, Lisa, Saturday, Feb. 19 at a party in the social hall of the Ohio Federal and Savings Bank, Reynoldsburg.

Mr. Schumacher recently accepted an offer for Martin Marietta in Orlando, Fla.

The family are charter members of the Reynoldsburg Seventh Day Adventist Church established in 1959. Mr Schumacher served as first elder, home missionary, leader and treasurer of the church. His wife served as dorcas leader. Both were Sunday School teachers.

Pastor Joseph Spicer thanked them for their work on the church's behalf.

EASTERN SERTOMA 'SPEAKS UP' FOR FREEDOM

The Eastern Sertoma Club practices what it preaches. Its slogan for Freedom Week was "Speak Up for Freedom." And what better time to convey this message than on George Washington's birthday?

The club, which is composed of about 50 business and professional men on the East Side, celebrated the occasion in a big way.

For a starter, Bexley mayor, William Schneider, was presented a framed, bronze copy of the Declaration of Independence to hang in city hall.

The Mayor, in turn, proclaimed Freedom Week in Bexley, under the sponsorship of the Sertoma Club. Two local Eagle Scouts witnessed the signing and were later guests at a special luncheon honoring our first president's birthday.

For the luncheon, the dining room of the Aunt Jemima's Kitchen Restaurant on the East Side presented a July 4 exhibition with its colorful patriotic theme. Flags and copies of the Declaration of Independence were everywhere. A 24-foot red, white and blue flag draped the speakers' table.

Guest speaker for the noon luncheon was Ohio Supreme Court Judge Paul M. Herbert whose speech compared the lives of Washington and Lincoln. "Despite the difference in backgrounds — the wealth of Washington and the poverty of Lincoln — the two were among the most influential leaders of our country."

Herbert reminded the assembled members and guests the sacrifices Washington made for freedom and independence. "According to English law, he could have been hanged as a traitor." He suggested we "look back and see where we came from" to better understand and appreciate the kind of life we enjoy today.

Other guests seated at the speaker's table were Judge Leonard Stern, Thomas Herbert, Arch Warren and Stelios M. Steson.

One of the current projects of the International Sertoma clubs is the sponsorship of a joint senate resolution number 110 naming the week of Washington's birthday as "Freedom Week" all over the United States. Sertoma president Jim Woodyard urged members to write their congressman supporting the measure.

Further implementing their "Freedom Week" activities, club members presented over 2000 copies of the Declaration of Independence to school children on the East Side. Schools selected this year were Montrose, Columbus Boys' Academy and Columbus School for Girls. This is an annual feature inaugurated by the East Side Sertoma Club.

Through the auspices of the Columbus Outdoor Advertising Company, the group has initiated "patriotic" messages on billboards in several East Side location.

The club also contributes to the Columbus Psychiatric Hospital and Peck O' Wee Ones home for retarded infants.

The Sertoma motto is "Service to Mankind." The members serve it well.

ACCEPTING A BRONZE copy of the Declaration of Independence is Judge Paul M. Herbert, right. Bob Stokes, program chairman of Eastern Sertoma, presents the award with auditor Arch Warren looking on below.

THE STUDENT PRINTS

Speak Up!

The Spectator invites you to contribute to "The Student Prints." It's a kind of forum in which we encourage high school or college students up to age 21 to write a letter on any subject.

You will have the satisfaction of expressing an opinion for the benefit of some 150,000 readers.

And, that opinion may lead to community or school betterment.

Don't satisfitd with just one letter, either. Write as many on as many subjects as you like during the year.

Include with your signature your school and home address.

Address your letters to: The Student Prints, Spectator Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, O.

The Mom And Dad Machine

To The Spectator:

The alarm goes off at seven o'clock and dear old mom and dad climb out and get ready for work. As I listen from under my covers, I hear the rustle as they prepare to leave. Before they leave one of us four is awakened so the others can get 10 minutes extra sleep.

In the distance the door closes to shut mom and dad out of the world of warmth and easy way of life. They leave on such mornings to make our house what it is.

How parents can be so understanding and patient, I'll never know. I've caught myself many times causing a racket or saying something dumb. Mom and dad always seem to understand and are patient. I find it hard to be patient with them when they make mistakes, though. They never talk under their breath. How can they stay so controlled? Is it because they are older and more mature? Will I be like them? These are a few questions I cannot answer.

It's four o'clock now and mom and dad are home. Mom starts supper and dad runs errands which may take him north, south, west or east. Finally they stop for a bite to eat.

Then it's up again. Mom goes to iron or wash; and dad watches what he can of the news before he does some undone chores. The end of the day wraps up our house into a package of joy, accomplishment, and love which has been there the seventeen years of my life.

What Is Eternity?

All human beings live in the Age of Time. Time, the dreaded enemy of all mortal men. Within the confines of time dwell the past, the present, and the time yet to come, yet to be lived.

Man is aware and always will be aware of the future. For the future holds his amount of time, his limit of time, his end of time. He will live and wait. Wait for what he knows will come. Wait for what he cannot avoid or escape.

But beyond the reach of time lies eternity, and eternity has no limit. Eternity is timelessness, and within it is peace, tranquility, or fear. Eternity, the absence of all time.

For some, eternity is the last achievement to be obtained, the ultimate victory. For others, it is a hell with no limit; no end.

All men know that time exists, and all men know that eternity exists. Some men seek refuge in eternity, and some men fear it, but none will escape it.

ED WAGNER
Ready High School.

Lost Without A Name

I wonder if people ever really think of what their names stand for.

A name is more than a word which someone calls you. It's something which separates you from everybody else.

It makes you stand out among the crowd. Your name is a precious thing that nobody can take away, and one of the most priceless, too.

Just stop to think sometime how it would be without a name. You'd probably feel like something's missing, that there is an empty feeling in your life.

As man would travel all over the world just to find out his name, and when he does, he will be proud of it, live for it, and even die for it.

LET'S KNIT ... A RAGLAN SWEATER

By The Spectator's URSULA duBOIS

Here is the sweater that many knitters have been waiting for.

This raglan sweater is knitted on one needle and started at the neck.

It can be fashioned at little cost.

Finishing is practically eliminated as there are no sideseams to sew and no sleeves to set in since the garment is knitted in one piece.

URSULA

The front facing is worked in a seed stitch which gives the garment a novelty look.

With the exception of the facing, entire sweater is knitted in a stockinette stitch which is knit one row, purl one row.

Also included in the pattern are more than 20 illustrated embroidery stitches in case you wish to further embellish this easy to knit sweater.

We used a worsted yarn, but of course there are many unusual yarns which will lend themselves beautifully to this one needle garment.

Instructions come in sizes 12 through 22. All sizes are included on one pattern.

This sweater is pattern No. 73. If you wish to obtain it, send 50 cents in coin, check or money order to:

Ursula duBois, Spectator Pattern Dept., Box 3307, Van Nuys, Calif. 91407.

Send 15 cents extra for first-class mail and special handling.

DAHLIA CLUB

The second meeting of the Greater Columbus Dahlia Society was held on Friday, Feb. 25, 8 p.m., in the meeting room at the Lex Mayers Chevrolet Agency, 5055 E. Broad-st.

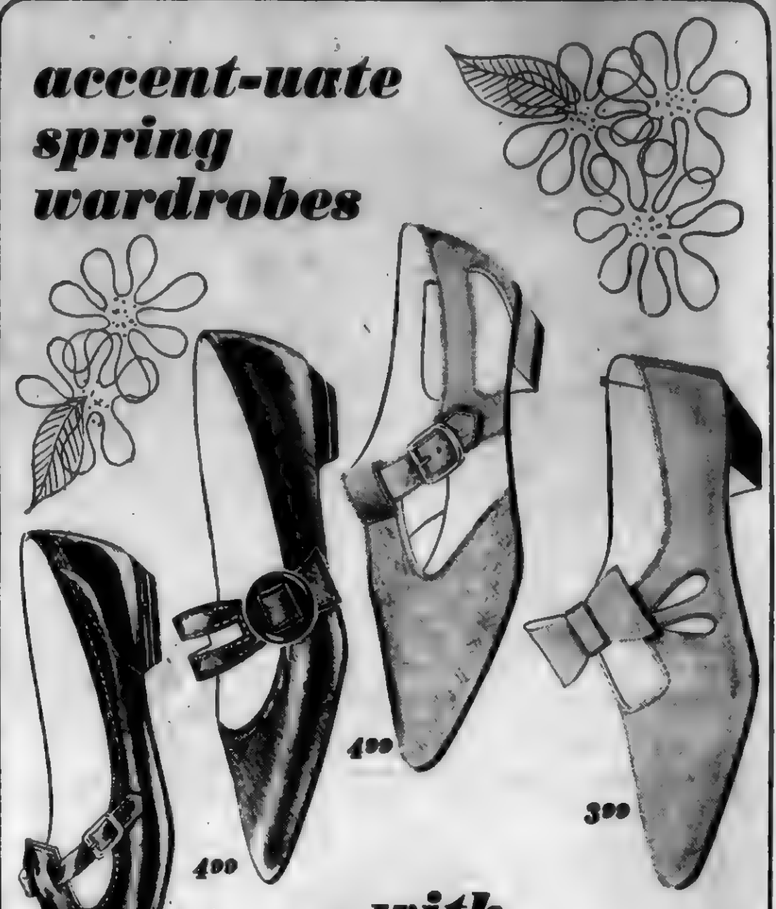
Cars are to be parked on Manfeld-av, just east of the agency, on the east side of the street — not on the agency property.

William Xander will show slides and talk on Dahlias.

Future meetings will be held the first Sundays of February, April, June, August, October and December.

Discuss Tangled World

The women of Christ Church, Drexel and Main-st, met on Monday, Feb. 28, at 8 p.m., in the chapel and lounge.



The program's theme, "Tangled World," was directed by Miss Edith Dornbirer. Members of Circle 4 participated.

Members of Circles 1 and 5 were hostesses.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

The amazing increase of Ohio's people taking to the woods to eat and sleep under the skies is quite natural. Many of today's adults have pleasant memories of 'back home on the farm' or at least recollections of visits to the homestead of a farm relative.

With the curb-bound, high-pressure living of our space age, the natural release is Ohio's great outdoors.

TO GO TO sleep with a pouch full of beans from a bean-hole and boiled coffee, as the crickets furnish a lullabye and waken with the first calls of a raunchy jay is so darned relaxing, it's almost narcotic.

To sit the morning out, watching a May apple unfurl or trying to count the shiners in a bubbling stream is indeed a noble goal to contemplate.

The preparation for such a vacation is as little or great as you wish to make it. You may spend the entire winter shopping for just the right camp trailer or you may, in half an hour's time, throw your duffle in the trunk of your car and be gone.

THE DEGREE of communion with nature you wish to attain is up to you. No matter what you decide to buy for comfort, you may get solace and solitude as you wish.

The barest necessities at certain times get you closer to nature than the elaborate diggims of the gadget-happy. A sleeping bag, change of clothes and a thermos of soup and coffee are the essentials for a single night out in the forests.

On the other end of the scale are the complete self-contained travel trailers that can put you in touch with any part of the world, self-sufficient from all outside influences.

BETWEEN these two extremes, there are two-man pup tents — back-packable and erected in minutes, larger, more exotic tents, fold-out trailer-tents, pick-up campers that are complete with stove, refrigerator and sanitary fixin's or self-propelled bus-like mobile homes.

To be quite frank, most families start out with the simple tents and portable stoves, coolers and cots. Families with children seldom start out with less than those meager trappings.

Youngsters need the comfort of a warm meal and protected sleeping quarters. Men on a summer fishing jaunt or early fall hunting trip find lesser accommodations will fill the bill.

WHERE YOU put down also has a lot to do with the equipment needed. I have left camp before dawn with only a sandwich and a thermos of coffee to maintain me until I got back that night, never missing what I didn't take along.

I believe the joy and suspense of the hunt or fishing took my mind clear off my stomach whereas, at home I can't leave a constant snack alone.

In this enlightened day of alert camping dealers, you need not invest in a rig before you buy, they are quite willing to rent you the trailer or tent of your choice. After a trip or two, you will come to understand what your own personal needs are and invest more or less accordingly.

WHATEVER means you use to get into the outdoors, you couldn't have picked a better hobby. It gives a dad a special-warm feeling to show his kids their first bluebird or salamander, explain the hiding spot of the wondrous morchello mushroom or the value of a circling buzzard.

Many, many young folks are growing up without ever seeing for themselves the beauty of this land God designed for us.

Please make sure your offspring have firsthand knowledge of the wonders of this world they find themselves surrounded by.

Kegler's Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

It seems 279 is a popular score! Nita Ditrick has now tied this woman's high—as a sub for Amherst Florists in the Clintonville League at Olentangy.

The Secretaries Tournament has now been announced for Apr. 23-24, 30-May 1. Men will bowl at Holiday, women at CCC, May 9-13 at Olentangy and May 16-21 at Hillcrest.

THEN ON May 23-29 the Champ of Champs will see men at Northern Lights and gals at Rainbow.

Have you joined and enjoyed the Saturday "Date Night" bowling at Grove City's Stardust? Walt Buchanan, free lance artist and consistent bowler, says Stardust is one of the friendliest in the area.

Remember—a bowler may not roll the ball both right-handed and lefthanded in the same game or series.

ALSO REMEMBER—you have to bowl to learn to bowl. This shows up when you see lane managers who also bowl well. Remember former Hillcrester Chris Bucci—who rolls consistent 600's?

This keeps popping up—some bowler who does a James Bond — rolls a non-strike and says, "oh, oh, seven!"

There are those who feel the extra exercise at a health club helps their bowling. For instance — we ran into Lee Harlow and Sarah Westlake using the exercycles and "smart belles"—wouldn't call them "dumb" bells for anything!

PROFILE — Columbus' only pro-bowler:

Joe Kistof, age 44, born in Toledo, O., six foot, 173 pounds Pro-shop owner, married to June, three children, started bowling in 1934, has two sanctioned 300 games, bowled in three PBA Tournaments in 1965 with an average of 197.167, earned $250.00 in 1965 PBA Tournaments.

Two ways to look at:

The Stance: A proper stance is essential to effective display of a chic new bowling ensemble. Since bowling centers have been recognized as the showcase for sportswear, nothing must be left to chance, especially the stance.

The Stance: A proper stance is a must in bowling because it incorporates several factors which help the bowler in his approach to the foul line.

For example, the feet. The left foot should be slightly forward and bear most of the weight. Knees slightly bent — the right knee, the left knee, or both.

The ball is held about waist high, and in line with the right shoulder, enabling the bowler to have a straight swing.

Adult League

Anchor Lighting (5-1) defeated King's Far East Restaurant (4-2), 65-61, to take the first place position after the first game in the second round.

Bob Grad led the charge for Anchor Lighting, scoring 23 points, helped by Frank Kass who hit for 11.

A trio of players formed by Al Kass, Preston Gurwin and Ron Dolinger scored 57 points for the losers, as Kass hit for 27, followed by Gurwin and Delinger with 15 and 14 respectively.

STAN ROBINS' team beat Bud Susil's quintet 64-54.

Steve Tackerman led the charge for the winners, scoring 28 points as Irv Flox added 12. Mark Topy scored 21 points in a losing cause.

Elsewhere, Burger Boy defeated Raybo Vending, 43-41, in the last second of the game.

SANDY SOLOMAN'S hook shot gave Burger Booy the victory, although teammates Sandy Pollock (15) and Mark Levine paced scoring. Jerry Goodman scored 13 for the losers.

Pony League

Hoffman Containers (15-2) the winner of the Pony League's first round, lost its first game in the second round at the hands of a determined Harris ball club, 42-39.

Mike Klein led the winners, scoring 18 points, while Jerry Office collected 11 for the losers (-3).

IN OTHER games, Art Lithograph (1-6) downed Leopold Construction (4-3), 32-52, and Richfield Construction (4-3) edged Jetcoat (4-3) in overtime, 30-28.

Teen A League

A determined Capital team almost pulled off the upset of the year as it gave the Epsilons Eagles the fight of their lives before succumbing 79-55.

Leading the Capital caper were both Joe and Beryl Oser with 10 and 18 respectively plus Joe Engelman's season-high 13.

STEVE BAIER led the Epsilons' attack with 33 points.

Elsewhere the Independent team exhibited a well balanced attack and proved far too strong on the boards, downing Pops Dworkin, 54-30.

Schedule for Monday is: Capital vs. Pops Dworkin and Pegasus vs. Independents.

POOL PATTER

THE FIRST annual Central Ohio A.A.U. Age Group and Open Swimming Meet was held at Denison University, recently.

Fifteen Jewish Center swimmers entered the meet against such teams as Marion, Dayton, Upper Arlington, Worthington and Swimland.

Josh Greenberg placed first in the butterfly stroke (19.6), second in the back stroke and sixth in the free-style.

New Sports Deadline

Since your Spectator will be delivered on Wednesday instead of Thursday beginning next week, new sports deadlines will come into effect with next week's edition.

All copy must be received by the sports department no later than Monday noon to be included in that Wednesday's newspaper.

Late information (by telephone) will be accepted up to 5 p.m. Monday.

To Join Ohio All-Star Loop

The Bubba Club, highly successful area slo-pitch team, will rub shoulders with stemmer competition this summer by joining the Ohio Traveling All-Star League, club spokesman John Meinhardt announced this week.

The traveling loop, recognized as one of the top leagues in the Midwest, will include both the defending Ohio and Kentucky state champs this coming season.

In order to raise money to support themselves independently this season, the Bubba Club will print a program, containing information on the league to be sold when Bubba hosts the other six member teams for one weekend of play this summer.

Any businessman wishing to advertise in the program (ads start at $10) is asked to contact Meinhardt any evening at 279-1047.

EASTMOOR'S 1965-66 VARSITY BASKETBALL SQUAD

Village Store Is Selected Fish Awards Station

Sports Afield magazine has announced the selection of The Village Bait Store, 188 E. Whittier-st, as an official state fishing awards station.

Qualifying anglers who record their catches at the store receive a parchment certificate and a special pin should their catch be found to be "best in Ohio" in its species.

Eligible species and their qualifying weights will be posted in the store. Fishermen may qualify by recording their fish within 30 days of the catch.

There is no charge for registering but fish must be caught on sporting tackle in the state's public waters.

Din Of Union Station Now No More Than An Echo

THE DIMLY-LIT UNION STATION
. . . Cavernous In Size, But Usually Empty

PLATFORMS ONCE BUSTLED WITH PEOPLE
. . . Freight Is Big Item Now

A Part Of America Is Slipping Away

"The plain fact is" an old timer at Union Station said, "that people aren't riding trains anymore. It's sad but people want to go places faster these days."

He talked and his voice echoed in the cavernous train station. An elementary school class on a tour made the only noise and even they were lost in one corner of the huge and ancient building off N. High-st.

A conductor standing nearby joined in: "Freight's the thing for trains now. That's where the trains make their money."

The conductor's face reflected years past when everyone rode trains. They rode trains and they wrote songs about trains. "Dinner on the diner, nothing could be finer."

But times change.

Facts Show Columbus Growth Is 'Phenomenal'

In case you haven't noticed, the growth of Columbus and surrounding areas this past year has been phenomenal. Armed with facts and figures to back this spiraling expansion were those in a position to know . . . James Foley, director of Nationwide Development Co., Larry Chambers, executive vice president of Columbus Board of Realtors, Mrs. Rosemary Martin, director of Development, Columbus Chamber of Commerce, William Moore, director of Development Committee of Columbus, and Bud Savage of John W. Galbreath and Co.

They spoke to a group of real estate brokers at Lincoln Lodge recently on the availability of commercial and industrial sites in Columbus and surrounding areas.

The speakers all but beamed as they ticked off recent figures and statistics with all the efficency of a well-oiled computer. The businessmen and other officials were told the "future is a place, not a time." Emphasis was stressed on "planning ahead" for maximum execution of money, ideas and projects.

Experts Agree: One Bad Spot Shows

Bill Moore explained his position as development director this way: "We try to take a long view of the problem. We serve as a sort of 'troubleshooter' for brokers. Seeing that a potential development has adequate parks, utilities, transportation facilities, water supply etc. is our main concern." The committee is sponsored by a non-profit civic organization composed of over 200 businessmen.

Further elaborating on the building boom was Jim Foley, who predicted a potent "shot in the arm" for the North End. "Soon you'll see a whole new dimension North," he said. Partly responsible for this is a nine-acre lake and 350 acres of residential housing in the $25,000 - $37,000 bracket blueprinted for the Westerville area. Easy access to the outerbelt and freeway will ease any transportation bottlenecks.

Plans for a shopping center "larger than Northland" with frontage on Georgesville-rd, will make a "Broad and High" of the West Side, Foley revealed. He further emphasized that "this growth affects not only your pride but your pocketbook."

Bud Savage, spokesman for the Galbreath Co., said several new commercial businesses are planned for Town-st. He discussed the Urban-Renewal program generally and the Market - Mohawk area specifically. Savage asked: "What do you do with the people when the buildings are gone? We can take the man out of the slums but it's not so easy to take the slums out of the man." A shining example of what can be done in areas where slums are razed is the Thurber Village project. This area, once known as "Flytown," has created a bright market for businessmen.

Larry Chambers, associated with the Columbus Board of Realtors, revealed some startling facts about the escalation. New figures reveal that 69.5 persons per day are moving into Columbus (total population is now 828,826); our unemployment rate is the lowest ever with six tenths of one percent out of work; Columbus' average individual income is $8,214 per year (Ohio's average is $7,628, and the national, $7,542); five to six thousand new single residences are being constructed each year; apartment vacancies are on the decrease (this was met with less than enthusiasm from the housing-conscious brokers).

However, the picture is not entirely rosy. Chambers reported a "serious" shortage of industrial sites in and around Franklin County but the overall business climate is "very healthy."

Attention, Citizens Of Columbus!

This is Batman speaking . . .

The dreadful and dastardly "Bleacher" has washed all of the color out of the suits of Batman and Robin, the Boy Wonder.

Won't you, fighters of crime everywhere, help us?

Zap! Pow! Biff! Bam!

Luckily for us, the official Batman newspaper — the dynamic Spectator — is marching this entire month of March against the evil forces of crime.

Here's how you can help.

A plan has been set-up with the dynamic Spectator to get the color back in our uniforms! Take your crayons, children of all ages, and color the famous Batman and Robin suits! Submit your entry with the subscription coupon below.

Each week, during March, we'll award a big, long-playing album featuring the "Batman Theme" plus many other Bat-tunes to the winner each of the five weeks in March.

Now, hear this!!!

Everyone entering the contest and submitting the official Batman subscription blank printed below will receive — as a thank-you to you fine, freedom-loving citizens — a 45 rpm record of the "Batman Theme" delivered — IN PERSON — by Batman's official crime fighter in the greater Columbus area!

He'll roar up to your house, complete with the official Batman uniform, and deliver your copy of the "Batman Theme" in person!

Hurry, be the first one on your block to get a visit from Batman!

Plus, everyone entering the Batman contest will get his or her name printed in the special Batman honor roll each week so that the entire world will know that fighters of crime live everywhere!

Don't delay. Get your subscription (or renewal) to the official Batman newspaper right now and color our uniforms so that we can triumph over crime.

This week's contest ends at midnight, Mar. 9. Mail the subscription blank and your coloring entry to: The Batman Spectator, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, O.

Zap! Pow! Biff! Bam!

Mustangs Cop F-R Laurels

The Mustangs sewed with the French Run sectional championship of the Reynoldsburg Youth Basketball League last week, gaining the right to meet the Junior Raiders—Herbert Mills titlist — Saturday, Mar. 12 for a divisional playoff.

The Mustangs downed the Roadrunners, 28-5, to finish 7-0.

In other French Run scores, the Jags edged the Gzorps, 12-11, in overtime, the Stingrays slipped past the Rams, 16-15, and the Devils bombed the Falcons, 14-3.

Next Youth League play will be Mar. 12 (championship game plus All-Star game) although participating teams for the Mar. 12 twin-bill will practice this Saturday.

Spectator Balloting Begins For All-Star Mat Squad

Area wrestling coaches will be contacted next week for nominations for the third annual Spectator All-Star Wrestling Team, to be announced later this month.

The Spectator annually pays tribute to area grapplers by naming both a first and second team and announcing a "Coach of the Year" as selected by his fellow mat mentors.

Selection to the team is based on coaches' nominations and a point system which grants a designated amount of points for State and District advancement plus regular season achievement.

Only four first-team repeaters will be possible this year since seven 1965 All-Star wrestlers have since graduated.

First and second team members will receive certificates from The Spectator heralding their selection to the 1966 All-Star squad.

Shadywood Registration Is Scheduled For March 9, 16

The Shadywood Park Boosters Association, which provided baseball for some 700 youngsters last year, will inaugurate its eighth season Wednesday with registration.

Signup for the 1966 season will be conducted Mar. 9 (6-9 p.m.) and Saturday, Mar. 12 (noon till 5 p.m.) at Walnut Ridge High School.

ANYBODY (eight through 14 years old) who attends Woodcrest, Willis Park, Shady Lane, Leawood, Pinecrest, St. Phillips, Walnut Ridge Junior High or Johnson Park Junior High (boys living east of Courtright-rd and NYC crossing) may register on one of the two dates.

A $5 registration fee must be paid at time of signup and a parent must accompany boys who are registering.

Boys who do not register on one of the two above dates will not be allowed to play baseball in the S-W program.

THE SHADYWOOD Boosters sponsor four leagues: Bantam (eight year-olds), Mosquito (nine and 10-year-olds), Little (11 and 12-year-olds) and Pony (13 and 14-year-olds).

Skyhawks TAC Champ

Crafty Harry Gilmore bagged 32 points to spearhead the Lockbourne AFB Skyhawks to the Tactical Air Command cage championship recently at Seymour-Johnson AFB, Goldsboro, N.C.

The Skyhawks whipped McConnell AFB, Wichita, Kan., 70-63, in the championship contest.

Deer hunters sometimes use relecto mystic tape to mark clothes for safety or identification purposes. Each member of the party puts two bands on arm or a single band down front and back, etc. Even at a distance you can easily recognize one of your own party.

AT 'AA' TOURNEY:

Gong Sounds For Round 2

By BOB WHITMAN

The Central District Class AA Basketball Tournament moves into the second round tonight with Walnut Ridge (3-14) meeting Watterson (9-8) at 9 o'clock.

Third seeded Columbus East gets its second tourney bout tomorrow at 8 against unheralded Groveport (2-15) with Eastmoor (8-8) tackling city partner Marion Franklin (10-7) in the 7:30 game.

THE BEXLEY-LONDON winner meets the Arlington-North victor Saturday at 5 and the Bishop Hartley-Reynoldsburg survivor has a 9:30 date Saturday with the Circleville - Whetstone victor.

East rode a 32 of 69 shooting hand to its opening tourney win over spunky Buckeye Valley. Gil Mathews tossed in 12 of 28 shots from the floor and three perfect free throws for game high scoring honors with 27.

Jackie Moore got his first tourney win in six years at the Walnut Ridge helm Saturday night as the Scotties clipped Marysville 63-51. Pat Beveridge's 23 point tune in the pivot, Rick Houchen's sweet playmaking and Lynn Stoner's dandy defensive job on Monarch ace Jack Mackan (allowed only three baskets) were the highlights of the first Scot triumph.

"Our big rebounding edge was a terrific help," Moore said, "and Stoner's defensive job was outstanding."

PAT MANNION also figures that Beveridge and rebounding went together.

"We are going to have to block out Beveridge," Mannion said, "and get our share of the rebounds."

Mannion's Watterson crew failed to get the bounds from the bigger Gahanna squad (39-28 Lions' favor) but did hang on for a 51-48 victory that was secured with 21 foul shots. The Lions' outscored Watterson from the floor 36-30.

EASTMOOR GETS a rematch game with Marion Franklin Friday night. The Warriors won the first engagement 65-62 earlier this season.

Gary Cochran's 17 point showing paced the Warriors over Lakewood in opening round tourney firing last Friday night. Eastmoor rode Lakewood to the sidelines, 85-46.

Friday's card has a distinctive City League flavor to it with five of the six teams participating belonging to the city fraternity. East-Groveport opens the show followed by Marion-Franklin-Eastmoor, and capped by a rugged West-South tussle.

SEXTET PACES ACADEMY SWIMMERS

1966 District Wrestling Champion To Be Crowned Saturday At W-R

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Chuck Deyo's City League champion East Tigers and Bob McMahan's Worthington Cardinals climbed into co-favorite roles for tomorrow's District wrestling meet last weekend by qualifying seven individuals each in Sectional competition.

Defending District champ DeSales, West, Franklin Heights, Eastmoor and Arlington followed by gaining five berths apiece.

THE DISTRICT battle—a prelim to next weekend's big State Meet at St. John Arena — is scheduled for Walnut Ridge tomorrow evening (7 p.m.) and Saturday afternoon (1 p.m.)

Whitehall, Groveport and Walnut Ridge will carry four qualifiers into the fray tomorrow while Central, Whetstone, Hartley, Watterson and Jonathan Alder have three entries each.

Nine other schools have two candidates and four more qualified one each. Eleven Central District schools failed to qualify.

HARDEST HIT by a flurry of surprises in Sectional activity were Hilliard, West and Central.

The Wildcats' Pete Miller, Bruce Adams and Larry Bryant (latter two unbeaten during season) didn't qualify.

Also hit were West (Darnell Thomas 17-1-1, and Benny King, City League champ at 154) and Central (Tom Terry, Leonard Smith and Dave Sherman, latter failed to make weight).

HERE ARE the 88 District qualifiers (asterisks indicate unbeaten record:

AMPUTATION ENDS CAREER BUT . . .

'God Has Reason'–Cap's Click

It's difficult to get into Room 879, University Hospital, because of the many floral arrangements, letters, candy, and fruit arranged around the room.

But once a person gets to the far bed by the window and wades through the visitors surrounding it, he hears and sees a young man with a happy-go-lucky tone of voice and a beaming smile sitting up in bed.

THE YOUNG man is Jerry Click, Capital University freshman quarterback, who recently had his leg amputated after a series of tests revealed that the 19-year-old gridder had a cancerous growth on his leg.

Thus ended the promising football career for the former All-Ohio Class A player from Millersport.

Hundreds of letters and gifts have poured in from well-wishers throughout the state, but the latest morale booster for Click is the "Jerry Click Fund" which has been started by members of the Chimes, Capital's campus newspaper, and Varsity "C" Athletic Honorary.

THE MONEY raised by the fund drive will be given to Click to help meet medical expenses and the expenses involved in buying an artificial leg.

Says Click in referring to the Fund and all of the letters he has received, "I can't express how grateful I am, and how wonderful it is to have so many people behind me. I have received letters from people everywhere—people I don't even know. It really restores a person's faith in humanity."

In expressing his feelings toward the operation, Click said, "This whole thing has made a better man of me, for being in the hospital has made me see that there are persons a lot worse off than I am.

"I KNOW that God has a reason for this even if I can't see it now or may never see it, but there 'is', a reason."

Click is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul Click, Millersport, and makes his home with his grandmother, Mrs. Guy Miller, Rt. 1, Hebron.

Any persons willing to donate to the fund are invited to do so by sending a check in care of Jerry Click, To The Chimes, Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, 43209.

RAY BORISH HONORED FOR '300' GAME

200 Guests Flee In Nationwide Inn Fire

By The Spectator's
JOHN AUBLE, JR.

"He saved my life," Mae Taylor was saying. She talked in short, clipped sentences and ran a shaking hand through her gray hair as she looked up at Karl Appel, who's a big man in the novelty business on New York City's Park-av.

And there was Karl Appel with an ice cube wrapped in a handkerchief and he dabbed it periodically to his forehead trying to keep down the swelling. A fire estimated at $30,000 forced them and some 200 other guests from their Nationwide Inn rooms late Monday night.

Mae Taylor is Appel's assistant and they were in their first floor room getting a display ready for the annual Ohio Gift Show. And at 9:20 p.m. Mae noticed a whisper of smoke and said, "Look at that, Karl."

"Get your coat," Karl Appel told her. "Get your coat fast and don't panic." But Mae isn't the type that doesn't panic and she blurted out with "What will we do?" and she started pacing around the room. She felt the walls closing in on her and her eyes stared.

"Get down, Mae. Get down on the floor." Appel threw his coat over Mae's head and Mae was scared. She lay there on the floor and she was frozen. Karl grabbed her arm and pulled her and they were both on the floor now, crawling out the door.

That whisper of smoke burst. It was now thick. It choked them but Karl kept crawling, pulling Mae Taylor by the arm out into the corridor.

Karl Appel lunged at a fire door . . . a door he thought for sure was open but it was closed. His head cracked against it. He lay there on the floor for a moment and his head reeled and he thought for sure they were locked in.

He felt the heat of the fire and fumbled for the door knob. It turned. He crawled through, pulling Mae Taylor by the arm and saying, "it's all right now, Mae. It's all right now."

And as Karl Appel and Mae Taylor were crawling to safety, exhibitor Murray Robison from Detroit was emptying fire extinguishers into room 131 where the fire apparently started. The room was occupied by a man named Gunther Flagenheimer who is from Cleveland and his room was full of candles and paper napkins.

Flames were shooting out of Flagenheimer's window. He was out to dinner and Robison felt glad because he knew no one could have lived in that room with the speed that the blaze started. The fire was so intense now that Robison gave up after emptying five fire extinguishers that did nothing to beat back the flames.

A Worthington man, L. "Lucky" Nagich, was asleep in the room directly above 131. People were running up and down the halls pounding on the doors and Lucky Nagich grabbed for his coat and fled.

And an old man named Christy who's 70 and who has already had a heart attack was sitting in an emergency squad getting oxygen because the smoke chocked his breathing.

A Franklin Township firefighter, Lt. James Decker, strained his back and had to be carried from the scene.

All of the guests, some with displays in their rooms totaling $3000, paced aimlessly in front of the motel's ballroom. They paced and talked in a tense, nervous chatter and all you could hear were voices saying "my hair looks terrible" from a woman in her night clothes and "Novak says we can sue" from a man from Brooklyn they called Artie.

Around midnight, as Franklin and Prairie Township firefighters were cleaning up the mess, the motel's cocktail lounge did one of its biggest Monday night businesses ever and the Go-Go girl danced and a waitress looked at one of the customers and smiled and said maybe they should have a fire every night.

Citizenship Project Date Is Mar. 10

The YMCA Citizenship program which started the first week in February will continue until Mar. 10, when the elected student officers will participate in helping to run the government of the county for a day.

The project is planned to develop an interest in the processes of local government and to study the county as a functional unit in the governmental structure.

It is being sponsored by the Citizenship Committee of the Franklin County Branch YMCA. The Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y Clubs of the county will have a major responsibility in carrying on this program as a service project in 14 high schools in cooperation with school administrators.

Registration Now Under Way

Columbus Public Schools began Mar. 1 the annual registration of pupils who will be entering school next fall. Registration will continue during the spring months.

Children born between Jan. 1, 1960, and Oct. 31, 1961, may be registered for kindergarten. Those born between Nov. 30, 1960, and Oct. 31, 1961, should be registered for the first grade. No registration is required if the child has been attending a Columbus public school kindergarten or pre-kindergarten program.

Parents who have children to register for school should contact the school nearest their home and arrange an appointment for registration and a conference with the school nurse.

Pupils registering for school must have: (1) a birth certificate; (2) a record of immunizations, and (3) an examination by the family physician and dentist.

If parents have doubts as to what school they should call to register, telephone the Board of Education (228-3821) and ask for "public information office."

SS, Medicare To Be Discussed

On Friday, Mar. 4, at 2:30 p.m., the Senior Citizens Recreation Center, 275 McDowell-st, will present a program on "Social Security Benefits and Medicare Provisions." This meeting is open to all senior citizens, especially those having questions about Medicare. Program personalities include Rose Forquer, field representative, Social Security Administration; James Dorn, director of Hospital Service, Blue Cross; Mable Grover, director, Columbus Public Health Nursing Service, and F. J. Eckfeld, administrator, Riverside Methodist Hospital.

Following the presentation, a question and answer period will be held. For further information, call the center, 469-6168.

SPEAKER SLATED

Prof. Keith Tyler from the School of Education at Ohio State University will be the guest speaker for advisors' night-OSU Dames. The meeting will be held Tuesday, Mar. 8, at 8 p.m., at Industrial Nucleonics Corp., 940 Ackerman-rd.

From Spectator Area News Sources

Shamansky Hits ONA

A 12th district Democratic congressional candidate has asked the Fair Campaign Practices Committee, Inc., of New York, to investigate what he terms "peddling" political endorsements. The candidate, Robert N. Shamansky, wrote a five-page letter to Charles P. Taft, Jr., committee chairman, complaining of a "nationality pitch" being made by Frank S. Kuboski. Kuboski says he is chairman of the Ohio Nationality Association (ONA). His group has already endorsed Reynoldsburg Mayor George Twyford in the 12th district. Shamansky told Taft he contacted Democratic state headquarters prior to an interview with Kuboski and was told the national association was "insubstantial, if it existed at all." Kuboski claims his association is "a non-profit organization which has operated for quite a number of years." He added that Shamansky is "probably just a sore loser."

Goldwater's Coming

Beginning next week (Mar. 16), The Spectator Newspapers will publish a weekly column by Barry M. Goldwater. The Spectator has negotiated with the Los Angeles Times syndicate for exclusive rights to the Goldwater column in the Columbus area. Publication of the writings of the conservative Republican spokesman is another in the continuing efforts by The Spectator to bring to its readers opinions from the full range of the political spectrum, from which they can form their own conclusions. The 1965 Presidential contender and former U.S. Senator from Arizona will join such other nationally-syndicated weekly contributors to the Spectator as Herblock, Marquis Childs and former Democratic Ohio Governor Michael V. DiSalle (who will contribute an occasional guest column). "It is hoped that the Goldwater column will be well-received by his many supporters in Franklin County area and that it will stimulate readership in The Spectator," Publisher Robert Burdock commented in making the announcement. "Senator Goldwater's views are, of course, his own."

Batman Overwhelmed

GOTHAM CITY (Special) — Batman here has notified the official Bat Newspaper, The Spectator of Columbus, O., that he is really overwhelmed at the response to the appeal printed in last week's edition. "Columbus is showing great willingness to help combat the 'Bleacher'," Batman said. And to keep the bats flying, The Spectator is starting its second week of a "March Against Crime." Once again the "Bleacher" has washed out all the color of the suits of Batman and Robin. Color them in and enter this week's contest which ends Mar. 16. Find the subscription blank printed inside. Win a 45-rpm record of "Batman Theme" delivered—in person—by Batman's official crime-fighter in the greater Columbus area.

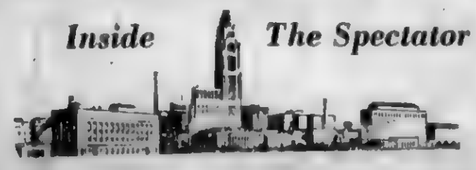
Mike's Doing Fine



Former Ohio Governor Michael V. DiSalle, 58, who collapsed last Friday in a downtown barber shop, was to have been discharged from Grant Hospital today, a spokesman there said. DiSalle reportedly suffered a mild case of internal bleeding, according to his personal physician Dr. Perry Ayers. His condition was originally diagnosed as "serious" but, the hospital says, "he improved rapidly." The Columbus attorney recently announced his plans to join the Washington, D.C. law firm of Chapman and Friedman.

Garrison In Race

James E. Garrison, 291 Hamilton-rd, Gahanna, has announced his candidacy for District Nine vice-presidency for the Ohio Jaycees. This district covers the 15 local Jaycee chapters in Central Ohio. Garrison, a charter member of the Gahanna Jaycees is a life insurance production manager with The Hutchinson Agency, Inc. The election will be held Apr. 2 in the Moose Hall at Worthington. Garrison's activities in Jaycees over the past six and a half years have been many and varied. In addition to being named Key Man in the Wheeling Jaycees, he was given the same honor in the Moundsville Jaycees. He is the holder of two Speak Up Jaycee Awards and was chosen as Jaycee of the Month three times and Jaycee of the Year Once.

Liquor Department officials, school administrators and police officers are concerned over the growing rate of teen-age arrests for intoxication. No one, however, seems to know where the answer lies.

Teen Age Drinking: Arrest Rate Rising

NINTH IN A SERIES

SPECIAL REPORT

The number of Franklin County youth arrested for purchasing intoxicating beverages has more than doubled in the last five years, despite the fact that liquor control agents have tightened restrictions for minors.

A spokesman for the Ohio Department of Liquor Control says that a mere 19 minors were arrested in this county in 1960, compared with a record 40 arrests in 1965.

Edward Churchill, chairman of the Governor's Committee on teen-age drinking, tells The Spectator he is "very much alarmed" at the rise in arrests of minors.

Liquor department officials feel certain that derelicts (who'll buy a kid a bottle for a small fee) and neighborhood grocery stores are the two primary sources of liquor for teenagers. Other sources are older friends and raids on the family liquor cabinet.

The law is specific on minors drinking. No Columbus minor (a person under 21) may drink intoxicating liquor or have it in his possession or handle it and no adult may provide it for a minor.

Persons between the ages of 18 and 21 may purchase "low - power" beer (3.2 percent alcohol content). These persons are not, however, considered juveniles and are taken to City Prison if found intoxicated.

A lieutenant in the Columbus Police's Juvenile Bureau says that juveniles (under the age of 18) found intoxicated are taken to the juvenile detention home for a court hearing.

The lieutenant emphasized that there seems to be no trend toward heavy drinking among persons under 18 years of age, although he did indicate that such cases are not unusual.

Despite the fact that a teenager will face a judge for his drinking, minors continue to violate state liquor laws in this county.

For instance, there were 33 arrests last year of minors consuming alcohol. There were no arrests in 1960.

Eleven minors were arrested

'Sometimes It's Easier To Conform Than Not To Drink'

Many teens today drink because, they feel, "it's just easier to conform," The Spectator learned.

"Some kids can make the ones who don't smoke or drink pretty miserable," a 16-year-old blonde said. "The only reason a teenager drinks is because he wants to feel 'in.' Most of them don't even like the taste of alcohol but they have to put on a show."

This matter of conformity showed up mostly in the suburbs. As one high schooler put it, "There's a lot of pressure living in a suburb like this where parents do a lot of social drinking."

A 15-year-old Columbus boy, dressed casually in a sweat shirt, opined that he doesn't feel that teenagers want to drink in moderation.

"Teenagers drink to get drunk," he said. "Not just to have a drink. They want to feel good, or see what it's like, or to do something they're not supposed to do."

Most of the youths interviewed said their parents do not know they drink and would not approve if they did.

"Some parents do know, though, and don't care," one boy said. "I know a kid in school whose mother gave him a six-pack of beer and a package of cigarettes as

ARREST RECORD

These figures of arrests for liquor violations involving minors shows an alarming increase. Compared with five years ago, the arrest record has nearly doubled in many cases in Franklin County, according to the Ohio Department of Liquor Control:

	1960	1965
Minors Purchasing Liquor	24	40
Minors Handling Liquor	6	5
Minors Consuming Liquor	0	33
Using False Identification	0	11
Furnishing Minors Liquor	14	24

S. Stelson, ECCO Effort In Contest

An East Side group and an area resident have been nominated by Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner as Columbus entries for the Lane Bryant Award, national competition for community organizations and individuals.

Selected were ECCO (East Central Citizens Association) for its work in conducting an anti-poverty program within its area, and Stellios E. Stelson, who collects books for children around the world.

First prize in the national competition is $1000 each, for the winning organization and individual. Honorable mention citations are also awarded.

Also entered in the competition was the Heart Of The Hilltop Association, selection on the basis of being the first in city history to merge residential and business interests for the betterment of an entire community, and Mrs. Richard Hahn, president of United Church Women of Columbus and Franklin County.

ECCO, awarded an $185,000 federal grant to conduct

2-B? MAYBE; UP TO VOTERS

2-B or not to be. . .

The issue, conceived along lines of simplicity—orderly engineering rules of good planning and development—has wound through a two-year maze of perplexity and misunderstanding to a point of confusion.

A referendum petition, filed by residents concerned that the council-approved "2-B" plan routing the Olentangy Freeway along the river would mar the valley's scenic beauty, has forced the issue to a public vote.

SEE RELATED EDITORIAL INSIDE

The cost of delay on the project—of added engineering studies undertaken at the request of the group last year, coupled with the estimated $11,400 a day motorists would collectively save by using the shorter route—makes a clear public understanding of the controversy imperative.

The public should also be aware of the recommended plan's position in the overall transportation pattern forming to serve the area.

A facility in the Olentangy River Valley is of major importance in the system that includes extending W. North Broadway to Kenny-rd, relocation and upgrading Henderson-rd, extending Morse-rd to Bethel, and construction of the Outerbelt.

The route recommended by both the original study and the one completed this year is from the vicinity of the Kinnear-Olentangy River-rd intersection, following the C&O Railroad to a point south of W. North Broadway, crossing over the existing Olentangy River-rd and the W. North Broadway intersection, and then continuing in proximity to the Olentangy River to an interchange with

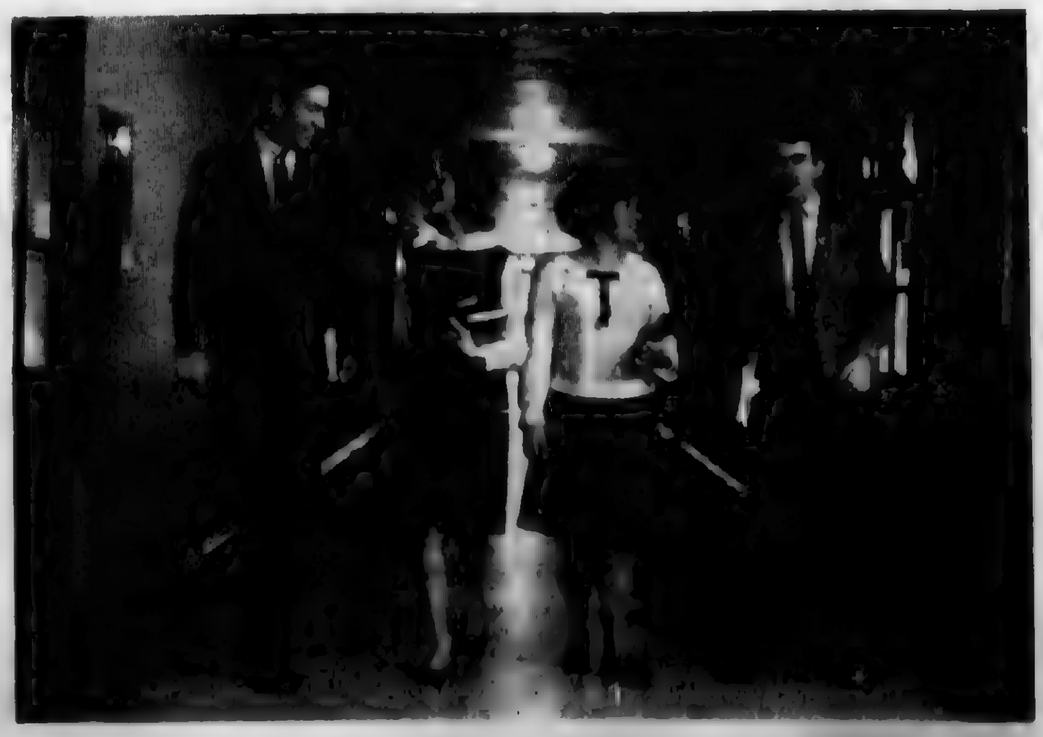
St. Mary's Co-Ed Concept Blossoms

By The Spectator's
BARBARA VILLALOBOZ

There's more than dogwood blossoming on the campus at the College of St. Mary of the Springs. Considering the fact that it's spring, and the former all-girl school is now "where the boys are," this has somehow changed the staid image of the 98-year-old institution considerably.

We don't mean to imply that boy-girl relations are now the main topic or pastime on the rolling grounds, it's just that the sight of boys on the walks and in the halls is still relatively new (they were admitted two years ago) to the female-dominated school.



There hasn't been too much difficulty adjusting to the change. Apparently the girls and faculty have managed to bear up under the situation remarkably well.

What prompted the college to allow boys to enroll? Probably the main reason was just a "sign of the times." Several Catholic schools, open to boys or girls only, have closed their doors. St. Mary Academy will close its doors permanently this spring.

However, one of the determining factors was that there just wasn't any co-educational Catholic college in Columbus. The closest one is in Dayton. Bishop Issenmann gave final approval on the decision two and one-half years ago.

Enrollment of males has risen from four

Key Clubs Aid Drive

For the first time in its 26th year history, the Franklin County Chapter, National Foundation of March of Dimes, has a continuing women's organization, named Golden Key Clubs. The first Golden Key Club here was started last summer. Golden Key Club No. 1 is active in the south end of Columbus. Golden Key Club No. 2 is now starting in Gahanna and the northeast end of Columbus area.

The clubs assist the local chapter of the March of Dimes in the fight against birth defects through fund raising activities. Anyone is eligible.

A meeting will be held Wednesday, Mar. 9, at 8 p.m. in the Gahanna Lincoln High School cafeteria, 140 N. Hamilton. A guest speaker will be present and refreshments served.

For information call 486-5243, National Foundation of March of Dimes, or Mrs. Jackie Bloch, 471-3364.

Milton Friedman and Mrs. Alvin E. Schottenstein.

ORT DAY IS TODAY

Recruit New Members

Today, Mar. 9, is ORT DAY in Columbus.

Not only is today ORT DAY, but today Columbus City Hall has been renamed ORT HALL.

Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner signed the proclamation before the city's ORT Chapter-at-Large President Mrs. Marvin Frank and Vice-Presidents Mrs. Jerome Nakrin and Mrs. Herbert Weiner. Mrs. Alan Weiler, another vice-president, was unable to attend.

The local chapter thus joins with other chapters throughout the nation in a national drive for new members to aid in its work—that of rehabilitation through training.

World-wide in scope, the organization sets up vocational schools designed to help build and rebuild human lives by teaching national skills.

Speaking of ORT, President Johnson states "Yours is a laudable mission and you have performed it with distinction. Your program to aid refugees, displaced persons and victims of other misfortunes has benefited not only the individuals for whom you have provided training, but have aided immeasurably in bringing about general social progress.

"You are further to be commended for the broad scope of your activities as reflected in the network of vocational schools you have established in 22 countries and on five continents."

Schools set up for the government's War on Poverty have been patterned after ORT schools, it was noted.

Established here four and one-half years ago the chapter now has 365 members. It has set up a resale clothing shop, Act II, 524 S. Third-av, in German Village, manned by volunteers four days a week, and last year forwarded approximately $2,000 to the national organization.

National board members here include the chapter's first president, Mrs. Elliott Grayson, Mrs. Frank and Mrs. Weiner.

Mrs. Weiner also serves as a member of the southern expansion team of the national organization.

Members may join by contacting any member, or calling Financial Secretary Mrs. Robert Aronson, 237-8509.

PLAN 'FUN FROLIC'

BRETT McVICKER, five, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell McVicker, 2934 Berwick-blvd, is delighted with some of the prizes to be awarded Friday, Mar. 11 during Berwick School PTA's Fun Frolic from 5 to 9 p.m. Highlights of the event will be the Town and Country Shop, Spin-a-Wheel, Live Goldfish Throw, dining-room and bake shop. Proceeds aid the school for furnishings and equipment. (Foto by Firestone).

To Hostess Joint Meeting

Ahavas Sholom Sisterhood members will be hostesses at the Annual Joint Sisterhood meeting Tuesday, Mar. 8, at 12:30 p.m. in the social hall of Ahavas Sholom Congregation, 2568 E. Broad-st.

The following sisterhoods will participate: Agudas Achim, Beth Jacob, Beth Tikvah, Temple Israel, Temple Tifereth Israel and the hostess group.

A dessert tea will be served, followed by a musical program by Mrs. Abe Green and Mrs. Harold Edelstein.

Guest speaker is Dr. Marvin Fox, professor of philosophy, OSU, and Rabbi Edward Kiner, assistant rabbi, Temple Israel.

Representatives of the Serve-a-Hospital Committee will take up a silver collection for Jewish veterans at the Chillicothe Hospital, and the Jewish Welfare Board. This money is also used for Passover food packages for servicemen in remote places, where it is difficult to observe a Seder.

HERE MAR. 10

EVANGELIST Paul Hild, Minneapolis, will conduct a Special All-Family Victory Crusade, in the Fairmoor Assembly of God auditorium, 972 Beechwood-rd, Thursday, Mar. 10, at 7:30 p.m. through Sunday, Mar. 13. Saturday evening Mr. Hild will conduct the Special Youth-Arama for the Junior and senior high school students and university students. The film, "Contrary Winds," will be shown. Mr. Hild has conducted 8,000 rallies in 565 cities since he was 17 years old.

Support New Freeway

It's only natural for people to tend to act in what they consider their own best interests.

And this is apparently the case with those citizens who have succeeded in placing on the May primary ballot a referendum on the routing of the proposed Olentangy Freeway.

However, there are larger and overriding principles involved in this test before the voters.

First of all, it is folly to spend thousands of dollars to get the best engineering advice possible and then ignore it.

Secondly, the Olentangy Freeway will serve far more people than those few who may be adversely affected by its location.

Thirdly, tactics such as the referendum delay improvements already long overdue.

Fourthly, should the voters, through confusion or lethargy, allow the official route to be disapproved, financing of the project would be in jeopardy.

Finally, if governmental actions are constantly to be subjected to referendum such practice will erode the very basis of representational government as we know it. Displeasure or pleasure with the acts of elected officials can easily be demonstrated when they seek re-election.

The Spectator Newspapers urge responsible voters to vote "For" the ordinance, upholding council's action in approving the new route for the freeway. Don't be confused. A vote "For" is in support of the new freeway.

Bob And The Barbs

There is definite reason for concern at the sudden unfavorable shift of opinion in Congress on Defense Secretary Robert McNamara.

Even 12th district Congressman Samuel L. Devine has jumped on the bandwagon, saying, "Unfortunately, the Johnson-McNamara team has a badly confused, if not a complete absence of, foreign policy."

Another congressman has been quoted as saying "Bob McNamara used to come up to the Hill and give us a razzle-dazzle about his 'economies' and his 'business approach' to the problems of defense. This time we're not buying it."

Newspaper reports here tell of the defense secretary finally getting fed up with overbearing critics. He blasted one columnist a few days ago.

All this is bad news for Secretary McNamara, but we argue that the effect of the probing questions he will have to face—and will face capably—can only benefit the country.

Let's remember that Robert McNamara left a lucrative job to serve his country. He wanted to serve and he's capable of serving.

He believes in our form of government. It's the best form of government under God's shining sun. If you want freedom, you must fight to keep it . . . it is a precious thing that must be earned every day.

McNamara realizes this. He doesn't need spear-throwing antagonists at a time like this. He has enough problems with the defense of this country without having to defend himself every few steps along the way.

The Waiting Room

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

The steel door swung open to reveal a long corridor with a terrazzo floor.

Off the corridor were elongated arches which led into rooms. Beds were in the rooms. Bars were in the windows.

One man was sitting on a chair. His eyes were so vacant one might assume he had stopped thinking.

It is Columbus. It is a state hospital. Someone I know stays there.

"How do they treat you?"

"All right, I guess."

A vicious looking young man came up to where we were sitting and stared menacingly at us.

"He wants a cigarette," my friend informed me.

I gave him a cigarette. He didn't thank me. He just walked away.

"How's the food?" I asked.

"All right, I guess."

"Do they treat you all right?"

"When I'm good."

"And if you're bad?"

"They lock me up . . . alone."

"Do you see a doctor very often?"

"No."

"Do you have recreational activities?"

"Seldom."

"Do you make wallets and rugs?"

"Never."

"What do you do? Do you read?"

"No, I just wait."

"What are you waiting for?"

"For them to tell me I can go home."

After two weeks I managed to talk to the man's doctor. He said my friend was doing all right but that progress was slow.

I asked him about the recreational activities. He shrugged. It was out of his department.

I asked him about the occupational activities. He shrugged there too.

My friend waits. He's been there for months.

The doctor talked like he'll be there for years . . . waiting.

They Said It

"Regardless of our party affiliations, our loyalties and our apprehensions, government is a major concern of the people. We are the people. Therefore, government is our concern. We must be involved to have a truly good governmental organization. Otherwise, government will be above us or remote to us. Under ruling such as this, we, the people, would be reduced to utter socialism . . . We must not only show that we are interested, we must produce an extra measure of care, or it will be too late to salvage any type of government that really belongs to the people." — Star City (Ark.) Lincoln Ledger.

"I Want To Have Everything Put In My Wife's Name"

Ohio And Its Pocketbook

The executive manager of the Ohio Bankers Association, headquartered in Columbus, says that this state ranks second among all states in personal bankruptcies and things don't look much better for future pocketbooks.

The executive manager, O. E. Anderson, tells The Spectator that "the attempt by the Ohio General Assembly in 1965 to regulate and control a vicious second mortgage lending racket is backfiring into an even greater problem for Ohioans, thanks to a 'loophole' in the law being used by some representatives of the small loan industry."

Anderson claims that the result may well be so much high cost over-lending to persons already overburdened with debt as to bring on an "unparalleled wave of personal bankruptcies" in Ohio.

Anderson's remarks followed the issuance of an opinion by Attorney General William Saxbe that admits that the new law appears to go beyond the intent of the legislature.

The law seemingly now permits corporations affiliated with small loan companies to make loans on personal property for periods of up to five years, at total interest and service charges and in amounts well above those permitted under the small loan law itself.

Bankruptcy Rate Soars

"This interpretation has permitted many affiliates of small loan companies to obtain certificates to operate under the so-called second mortgage act," Anderson added. These certificates have been issued by a new division in the State Department of Commerce.

The Spectator has learned that instead of only 25 or 30 so-called second mortgage lenders operating in Ohio prior to 1965, now hundreds of "new" lenders, in practically all instances operating out of the same offices and with the same employes as their affiliated small loan companies, are making loans far in excess of the legal limit set for small loan companies themselves. Yet, both are frequently using the same kind of collateral.

"Hundreds of persons already overburdened with debt are now being encouraged to take out larger, longer term loans at much higher rates, a fact that could lead many of them into bankruptcy," Anderson concluded.

Gold In Them Thar Stills

Denouncers of the "demon rum" would do well to scan a report recently issued by Norman Parr, executive secretary of the Buckeye Retail Licensed Beverage and Food Dealers Association of Columbus.

Parr's paragraphs say that contributions of the alcoholic beverage industry to the public treasuries in the form of taxes on its products is now equivalent to $30 a year for every American citizen.

A total of nearly $5.5 billion was paid into Federal, state and local treasuries during the past year. Of this amount, $111.2 million went to the State of Ohio.

These contributions, the report says, assisted the state government in meeting expenses incurred in education, public welfare programs, parks and conservation, law enforcement and other vital public services.

The report points out that there is not a single resident of Ohio who did not benefit from the taxes received from the sale of distilled spirits.

Besides this, employes of the alcoholic beverage industry (there are about 120,739 in Ohio alone) spent $3,405,000 for private education and research and donated $3,706,000 to religious and charitable organizations.

Letters To The Editor

Let George Do It?

To The Spectator:

Former Governor of Ohio Michael V. DiSalle began his weekly column, "Calling Ohioans," in last week's Spectator (Feb. 24) with the following remark: "The threat of a world controlled by a Communist atheistic philosophy is real and growing each day."

While the entire article was very meaningful and accurate, this opening statement caught my attention as one which I have heard many times in the past.

In almost every instance, however, these words of alarm over the Communist advance are effectively washed away by attributing them to an alleged "right wing extremist," "fanatic," "Bircher," or "fearmonger." I do not believe that any of these identities fit Mr. DiSalle. His remark therefore means to me that our Government's program (?) to stem the tide of Communism during the past 20 years has failed and, as of today, "the threat of a world controlled by a Communist atheistic philosophy is real and growing each day."

Oh, well. Perhaps if we continue to concentrate on our golfing, bowling, boating, square dancing, comic and sports page reading and other similar tried and true anti-Communist tactics, this "threat" will be overcome.

And in the event that these old reliables don't get the job done, let's just "let George do it."

Eliminate The Negative

To The Spectator:

How happy all of us were to read the Feb. 24 Spectator. This issue contained many words of praise for some of our fine young people (Special "Tales Out of Schools" section).

It has been my experience over more than a quarter of a century as a school principal that the overwhelming majority of children are fine, worthwhile citizens. They contribute many vital ingredients to the present and offer hope for the future. When we lack the energy, they supply it.

Hats off to The Spectator for "accentuating the positive."

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Believes In Hard Work

To The Spectator:

I thought your viewpoint in the article "The Value of Exile" (Feb. 24 Spectator) well taken. If offenders were required to pay for their misdeeds by working, it might indeed be of great benefit to them and to the community. Responsibility would be established.

Praises Editorial

To The Spectator:

I live in a neighborhood where a Negro family moved in and everyone around me started to panic. I wish I had had your editorial, "Good Neighbor," Mar. 3 Spectator) to show them then.

It's disgraceful to think that human relations can break down to such low levels.

Agrees With Bishop

To The Spectator:

It's about time somebody in this city has the guts to stand up and tell the people here that they are not going to church and that they should go to church ("Columbus in Crisis," Mar. 3 Spectator).

There's an over abundance of Easter morning church-goers in Columbus who forget about God the other six days of the week.

I thank The Spectator for having the courage to print Bishop Herman Hartwell's views.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON: Marquis Childs

(ED. NOTE: Marquis Childs is on special assignment this week in Chicago, Ill.)

CHICAGO — Something new has been added to the yeasty mixture of races and creeds, kinds and conditions that is the second city. The Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., has established a Northern base for his Southern Christian Leadership Conference in one of Chicago's Negro slums and a procession of visitors is finding the way up three flights to the flat that is his office and temporary home.

CHILDS

What King can accomplish in this Northern city with its complex rivalries in uncertain balance is far from clear. The powers that be fear he will increase tensions to no constructive purpose. They see his nonviolent tactic — sit-ins, picketing — as merely aggravating the problem of the slums, which, if you take their word, is moving as rapidly as can be expected toward solution.

But as King talks in his soft, persistent voice, you hear the crusader who cannot stand still. He is convinced the methods he initiated in Birmingham will work here. He speaks with fervor of the need to resist any cutbacks in the war on poverty since, with hopes raised in the Negro ghettos of the North by the Johnson programs, any failure now to carry through will breed disillusion erupting in hatred and violence.

King and his organization are not so militant on the Viet Nam War as the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. But he is a member of the Steering Committee of the Clergymen's Emergency Committee to try to end the war. And the spreading conflict as it cuts across domestic programs and the civil rights movement is a deep concern.

Mayor Richard J. Daley is much too shrewd a politician to give away any worry he may feel over the King invasion. The mayor has felt the sting of Negro anger.

One thing almost everyone agrees on — the task King has set himself here is far more difficult than anything undertaken in the South. In Alabama the goals of voting rights and lunch counters were comparatively simple and the Negro community could be united behind them. In the Northern ghettos the conflict cuts a dozen different ways with the rising tide of black nationalism — alienation, rejection of anything and everything related to the white power structure — a perilous element.

In his opening statement in Chicago, King spoke of the need to organize unemployed Negroes between the ages of 16 and 25. "Many of these," he said, "are in gangs or are drifting idly from corner to corner."

The violent uprising in Watts, King is frank to say, had not a little to do with his coming to Chicago.

In his handsome office as devoid of clutter as that of any big business executive, Mayor Daley talks of how Chicago has organized at $30,000,000 anti-poverty program with the personnel in the paying jobs all selected through a private management consultant firm. Why, he says in effect, doesn't King come and help us with this program? But given the stresses and strains of race relations, life is not that simple.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

Opening Wednesday night at Cinema-East is a super spy movie, "The Spy Who Came In From The Cold." It stars Richard Burton as a cynical British intelligence agent and Claire Bloom, a London working girl who is involved in a deadly espionage plot.

This is no ordinary run-of-the mill spy thriller. "The Spy Who Came In From The Cold" is well done. In fact, I think it is one of the best movies to open in Columbus this year. It has the feeling of absolute realism. The whole story of the East-West cold war, with its espionage and counter-espionage tactics, is vividly told.

Richard Burton does an excellent job. It's the first time he plays an anti-hero and he revels in the taut dialogue and economy of mood. An admirable job is turned in by the rest of the cast.

"The Spy" is not a slow-starter. Your attention is drawn to the screen immediately. This is partially due to the photography. Some of the shots, to steal an old Hollywood cliche, are absolutely breath-taking.

There is hard-hitting excitement, intrigue and suspense. You'll watch every minute of this one.

Virginia Graham Visits 'Family'

Virginia Graham, star of "Girl Talk," seen locally on channel 10, was in town for a few hours last week to meet her many local "relatives" of the family of "Girl Talk." She feels that by the nature of the program her audience becomes related to one another and to the members of the show, to form one big happy family.

VIRGINIA

Having had a serious bout with cancer, and being told she had only six months to live, Miss Graham was completely cured by a successful operation. She feels being given a new lease on life has made her a better person and much more aware of the meaning of life. Miss Graham believes being in the broadcasting business "has made the last 15 years the most wonderful years of my life." Her TV show, "Girl Talk," has been on the air four years. She feels the secret of the show is due to the methods used in selecting the guests and having people with varied backgrounds on the same program. Guests are chosen after many months of screening, including lengthy questionnaires and personal interviews.

For her work, Virginia Graham has received countless honors, including the 1964-65 TV-Radio Mirror award for outstanding programing. She has written a book, "There Goes What's-Her-Name?," a moving, true story about her life.

Lincoln Lodge Has Chanteuse

A ravishing chanteuse, Desiree, with sophistication and continental charm, is offering a stimulating experience in song, this week in the cocktail lounge at Lincoln Lodge. She has a beautiful blend of musical moods, highlighted by clever, dynamic styling and phrasing. This gal knows how to sell a song. Desiree is a rare presentation of talent and stunning glamour. Heart and soul are in her music. —not true of many singers. The lyrics in every song tell some kind of story, and in order to convey the message set down to music, a good singer sings every word and phrase with deep, profound feeling. This is a Desiree forte.

DESIREE

Singing in six languages, Desiree has fun performing. She enjoys her work and you will, too.

Born in Switzerland, of French-Swiss parents, Desiree easily learned several languages. Her real name is Desiree, which in French means "desired." When you see and hear her, you will agree her name is appropriate.

She is ably backed on piano by George Sterney, who is a talented man in his own right. He does the arranging for the act, which adds to the entire effect.

'This Was Burlesque'

A bit of Americana will open at the Hartman Mar. 14 for one week. Ann Corio stars in the hilarious musical revue, "This Was Burlesque."

To some, burlesque may cause raised eyebrows. To others, it is the mother of many of the great comedians of our time — men like Milton Berle, Danny Thomas and Red Skelton.

I saw the show in New York, where it played for several years, and it's a riot. There are many comedy sketches with traditional baggy-pants funny men. It's just plain, humorous, knee-slapping material that sets off a bomb of laughing gas.

Is there a story line? You bet there is. The show tells of the evolution of entertainment in America. This is not the cheap burlesque show one might see in theatres today. Classic comedy and sophisticated pulchritude are used to illustrate the good ole days when "This Was Burlesque."

YOUR HOST

GEORGE ROBERTS is host of the newly re-decorated and carpeted Explorers. Located at 1080 Dublin rd, the Explorers is known as one of Ohio's finest family restaurants. It's open seven days a week, with a special menu for children.

Civic Ballet Program Sunday

The Columbus Civic Ballet is currently in rehearsal for a spring performance scheduled for Sunday, Mar. 20, 3 p.m. at Cowan Hall auditorium, Otterbein College.

The program will feature a classical treatment of the Tschaikovsky score of "The Sleeping Beauty Ballet" including the variations and the well-known "Sleeping Beauty Waltz," "Night Soliloquy," an expressionistic pas de deux to the music of Bernard Rogers and "Looking at Ballet," a lecture-demonstration presenting the rudiments of classical ballet with their relationship to music as utilized by the choreographer.

The all-ballet program has been choreographed and directed by David McClain, artistic director for the company this season. McClain will also serve as commentator for the lecture-demonstration. Costumes have been designed by Jon Rodriques of Dayton and executed by Velma Brenizer.

PLAN VAUD-VILLITIES

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals will be received by the Clerk of the Board of Education of the Reynoldsburg Local School District at his office until 12:00 Noon (EST), April 6, 1966, for the furnishing of all labor, equipment and materials necessary to fully execute the plans and specifications for the construction of Reynoldsburg Senior High School Additions and Remodeling as prepared by Joseph Baker and Associates, Architects, 180 Hudson Avenue, Newark, Ohio, which documents will be on file at the office of the Architect, at the plan rooms of the F. W. Dodge Corporation and Builders Exchange, Columbus, Ohio, and at the office of the Clerk. They are open to public inspection during all reasonable office hours until the time fixed for the closing of bids. At that time the bids will be publicly opened, read and tabulated.

A copy of plans and specifications for individual use may be secured at the office of the Architect upon the deposit of $30 cash. All plans and specifications must be returned to the Architect within seven days after the Bid Date and, if they are in good order, a full refund of the deposit, minus any shipping costs, will be made to all who submit a Bonded Bid. For all others, and for extra sets a refund of $30 will be made. Selected sheets are available at cost of $2 each, not refundable.

Separate proposals will be received for the General, the Electrical, the Plumbing, and the Heating and Ventilating Contracts, although combined bids will be considered. Any contractor submitting a proposal combining bids for more than one contract in one bid shall also enter his bid for each of the contracts in the space provided on the proposal form.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid bond or a certified check payable to the Board of Education in the amount not less than ten percent (10%) of the amount of all items bid upon. Bidders agree that the check or bond shall become the absolute property of the said Board of Education in lieu of damages if the bidder refuses, fails or neglects to enter into a contract and furnish the required one hundred percent (100%) Contract Bond within ten days after notice of acceptance of his proposal. A satisfactory Performance and Payment Bond will be required, guaranteeing the performance of the work and payment of all bills. No bid may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids for at least thirty (30) days. The Owner reserves the right to waive informalities in the bidding. Time of completion shall be a valid consideration in determining lowest and best bid.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Published by the order of the Board of Education.

GREAT LADIES OF THE PAST

We want all the way back to Venus de Milo to consider the various hair styles that pleased women at one time or another - to find the source of the inspiration for today's styles. I'm sure it's no surprise to you to learn that we modern stylists can't claim originality. After all there are just so many directions that hair can be arranged and hairdressers have been experimenting for more than 6,000 years.

Our current styles most closely resemble the soft arrangement worn flatly and brushed back to a knot as we found it on the statue of Venus de Milo, and the Empire styles of the early 1800's. These combine elaborate arrangements with caplike neatness. The "Lion Mane" which also many teens enjoy can be seen in a famous portrait of the Duchess of Devonshire painted in 1780.

There is one noticeable difference however, and that is that women today tend not to stick to one hairdo like a skin. At least most of our patrons like to change from time to time to express different facets of their personality.

ATTENTION SIEGFIELD GIRLS

There is an organization of the former Siegfield beauties and they have recently been putting on an intensified search to find more of their numbers wherever they may be.

If any of you are in this vicinity and read this column please get in touch with them. The address is 55 W. 42nd street in New York City. Address your letter to the Siegfield Club.

HEARD UNDER THE DRYER

There are lots of arguments going on regarding capital punishment. One old duffer spoke up, "Well, I'm for capital punishment provided it doesn't go to extremes."

CAC Hears Mayor Ask For County-Wide Cooperation

By The Spectator's BETTY DAFT

"A single health department . . . school district . . . and police force."

These are the goals Columbus Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner set for Ohio's capital city at the recent annual meeting of the Citizens Advisory Council for Community Improvement, as he asked for cooperative services and government among the municipalities in Franklin County.

The mayor, discussing ways to eliminate duplication of services, said:

"We should have the best health department, schools and police force, and make it applicable to all," as an important facet of progress.

The Citizens Advisory Council, distinguishing itself in its first two years of operation for its advisory and force work with neighborhood improvement organizations, was also charged with a new responsibility.

The group will be a clearing house for all worthwhile community action projects instituted by the city, including urban renewal, planning, housing, parks, recreation, capital improvements, riverfront development, and many others in areas of city progress.

The mayor will appoint subcommittees from CAC to work with such established commissions as urban renewal, parks and recreation.

The council won national recognition for its work last year, with an honorable mention in competition among community betterment organizations.

In discussing the move towards establishing county-wide systems of services and government, as a means of removing glaring obstacles to progress, the mayor pointed to inequities in tax support of schools.

Under the proposal, to establish one, county-wide school district, the entire tax base would be equally apportioned among all students.

As it is now, property tax from rich industrial sites annexed to Columbus, sometimes remains in the original school districts.

For example, property tax from the recently annexed 2300-acre site of Anheuser-Busch and surrounding land will go to Worthington Schools, nearly doubling their tax support, while Columbus' tax per pupil is steadily decreasing.

PANCAKE FESTIVAL PLANNED

THE DOWNTOWN SERTOMA CLUB of Columbus is sponsoring its Fifth Annual Aunt Jemima Pancake Day Festival from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, Mar. 19, at the Arts and Crafts Center, Ohio State Fairgrounds. Proceeds of the festival will be to help in various activities of the Sertoma Foundation. The main effort of the local group is the support of the Hearing and Speech Center of Columbus and Central Ohio located at the Children's Hospital, 17th-st at Livingston-pk. Seen at one of the therapeutic classes are standing, from left, Sertoma Club members George Smith, Floyd Mason, Jerry Dover and Marvin Ross. Seated are students Jerry Moore, Maria Rowe, Michael Blind and Linda Bass. The teacher is Mrs. Elizabeth Couture.

Wants New Narcotics Legislation

"A strong state law . . . to strengthen the hands of parents, enforcement officials, school authorities and druggists in protecting the health of Ohio families," is declared necessary by Richard C. Sensenbrenner, Ohio House candidate from the new 61st District.

Sensenbrenner expressed his concern over the system that permits persons of any age to obtain exempt narcotics simply by signing a name and address on the druggist's registrar, and added Ohio has no minimum age requirement for purchasing the drugs.

The state, he noted, must help stop illegal purchase of exempt narcotics through name falsification and must plug the gap permitting a person, regardless of age, to purchase exempt drugs.

"I would propose legislation setting an age limit on purchasers of these exempt drugs such as Ohio has for buying cigarettes, if elected," Sensenbrenner said.

"The statute should include a requirement that the purchaser show identification to verify the name signed in the drug book, and his age and address," he concluded.

Drinking—

ed for showing false identification to purchase liquor last year. There were no arrests in 1960.

The number of adult contributors to the teenage drinking problem is rising, too. There were 46 arrests last year for selling liquor to minors compared with 24 five years ago.

Educators in Franklin County are taking a closer look at the growing problem. They claim that "teenagers take special risks when they drink."

One school administrator claims that alcohol has a stronger effect on the younger, less developed person. "Inexperience and the 'rob psychology' of group drinking can increase the hazards," he said.

School officials close to the problem theorize that teenage boys start drinking sooner that the girls. Usually, by age 14 to 15, boys are drinking beer in their cars on Friday and Saturday nights in groups of five or six.

The sad fact is, as one pretty 16-year-old put it, "About age 16 or 17, if a girl wants a date, she is often pressured to stop being 'simple' and start drinking."

And, as a school principal said, "how do you fight logic like that?"

Conform—

Christmas presents this year."

How do teens get liquor? Different ways, of course. But one of the most frequent is robbing the home liquor cabinet.

"We used to be able to sneak some out of the liquor cabinet at one kid's house. But his Dad started missing it and set a whole bunch of booby traps — toothpick bridges between the bottles — to try to catch us."

Columbus teens estimate that from 50 to 60 percent of their high school friends drink.

the first year to 65 enrolled this semester. Since then the boys have formed their own basketball team (won six out of nine) and plans are being made to promote other male sports such as football and track.

How does it feel to be one of 65 males to 423 females? "It's great, especially at the dance mixers" said junior John Bailey. "The first year we had to wear ties and jackets, but now we dress like anybody else. Any drawbacks? "Well, yes," John drawled, "there was only one men's room on the whole 54-acre campus."

Next year, boys will live on campus. The college has purchased homes nearby. Another male innovation includes a service and social club called, 'Mu Tau,' which is similar to most college fraternities. Sister Natalie, public relations spokeswoman, winked and said, "they thought they were pulling the wool over our eyes but we knew what they were up to." The college frowns on forming social clubs. A Dean of Men was appointed to confer with the new male students.

The boys participate in all school functions but they as do the girls, do not have to attend mass if they are not Catholic. "We do like them to go somewhere on Sunday though," Sister Natalie affirmed.

Do the girls like the new set-up? "I didn't at first" said senior Anita Schussler, "but now things have really perked up around here."

One of the two married men, Robert Motlet, at St. Mary, explained his reason for changing from Ohio State: "I thought since I am going to live the rest of my life as a Catholic I should learn what it means to be one."

Judging from the devoted looks and rapt attention the boys receive from the girls, it seems that what they lack in quantity they more than make up for in quality.

Interstate Route 270 (Outerbelt).

Charges that the route would spoil the scenic beauty of the Olentangy Valley are disputed by the planners, who say that beautification of the area was a consideration in their planning.

Their recommendations included establishing park areas in land-locked areas between the freeway and the river—land that is now privately owned and is largely unavailable for public enjoyment.

The Plan 2-B direction of the Olentangy Freeway, first recommended in the 1963 study, was still felt the most logical in the last engineering survey.

Only changes were expansions based upon projecting needs to 1986, beyond the 1980 point used in the earlier study.

2-B has the advantage of interfering with only 83 residential properties, the least number of any plan considered. Total cost is also the lowest of all schemes studied.

These advantages, strengthened by routing nearest the heavy population density, and the maximum relief that will be given to Interstate North Freeway, are sound points in support of the 2-B recommendation.

Batman's Ready To Visit Your House!

This is Batman speaking . . .

Holy Jumpin' Spectator . . . we knew there were a lot of right-thinking people in the Columbus, O., area and you proved it! The official Batman newspaper was flooded with entries in the first week of the five-week March Against Crime In March contest.

As you know, without the color in our powerful Bat uniforms, enemies of justice can run amuck. Look at that picture above. I'm facing a death worse than fate. The fiendish Falseface has glued me to the subway tracks in the path of a speeding downtown express.

What a super rat the Falseface is. Robin (the Boy Wonder) and myself have enough trouble combating the dreaded Bleacher who drained the color from our suits.

Quick, get your crayons and color my suit (Psst! Color the fiendish Falseface with an evil black crayon!)

Then send in your entry to this second big contest along with the subscription blank below to the official Bat Spectator.

Your entry automatically entitles you to a visit from my official Batman representative who'll roar up to your front door in his Batmobile complete with the Batman costume and present you with a 45 rpm record of the "Batman Theme."

The winner of this week's contest gets a long-playing record album delivered by Batman to your door. The album features the "Batman Theme" and other great Bat-tunes.

This second contest ends at midnight, Mar. 15, so hurry.

Mail all entries to: The Batman Spectator, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, O.

Again . . . thank you, good people of Columbus. And Robin, the Boy Wonder, thanks you, too.

Names of all entries will be printed in Apr. 6 issue so that everyone will know the many friends that Batman has in his fight against evil.

OFFICIAL BATMAN CRIME-FIGHTING SPECTATOR SUBSCRIPTION

Please enter my entry in the Batman coloring contest and begin a one-year subscription to the official Batman newspaper, the dynamic Spectator. This entry blank entitles me to a 45 rpm "Batman Theme" record delivered, in person, by Batman's official representative.

TIGERS BATTLE NEWARK

By BOB WHITMAN

The Central District Class AA upper bracket semi-final round is on tap Thursday night with a pair of rugged tourney powers. . .Columbus East (14-5) and Newark (14-6) matching baskets at 7. . . and a couple of dark horses . . . defending king Columbus South (12-7) and Catholic Leaguer DeSales (13-7) meeting in the 8:30 nightcap.

The winners come back Saturday at 2 to vie for the Upper Bracket championship and a "trip" to the Columbus Regional.

The Lower Bracket championship will be played at the Coliseum at 8 between Tuesday night's Hartley-Linden winner and Arlington-Pleasant View survivor for a Columbus Regional berth.

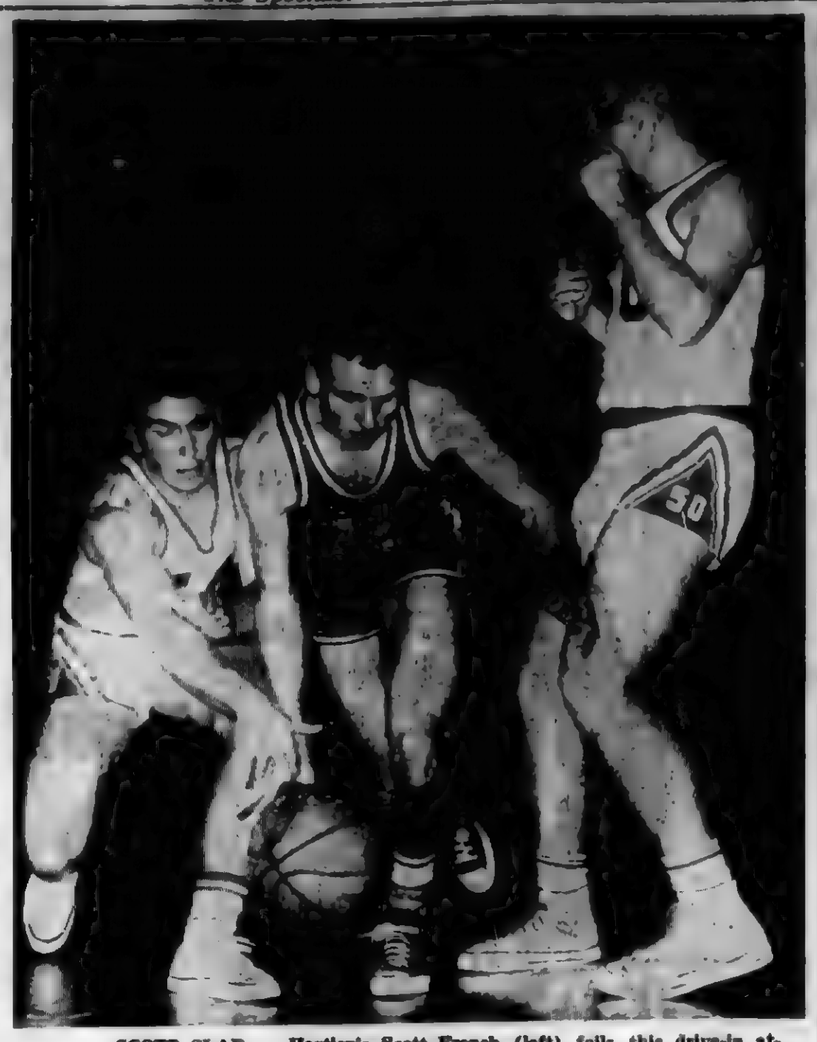
THE EAST - NEWARK rumble will be the second meeting between the two this season. East dropped the Wildcats at Newark, 66-57 on January 15.

But Newark will toss a slightly different lineup the Tigers way with the addition of 6-5 forward Larry Barch (51-5.1) and hot shot guard Mike Foote (123-6.8). Barch has started the last four Cat games while Foote has been a Newark regular since the East game.

"The change had to improve them," East coach Bob Hart said, "but the added height hurt their speed somewhat."

The height does give Newark a board boost and the rebounding factor has been tabbed by both coaches as a 'must' in advancing to the final round.

NEWARK COACH Dick Schenk also hailed East's team speed and sticky press as items to overcome in order to guide his Newark team to their 11th District title.



Rematch mus. be the key word as the combatants in the 8:30 game also faced each other during their regular season. South took a four point advantage over Jerry Connor's DeSalcs outfit on Feb. 19.

Everytime Connor thinks of South, he thinks of Joe Hayes, the nifty all-league performer who was the "sixth man" on the State Championship squad last season.

HAYES HAS been having some help during the tournament from hot shot guard Howard Wilson and a pair of alternating centers in Harold Russell and James Adams.

Bulldog coach John Colmery credited Russell with a good job "in the clutch" against West and gave Wilson the same praise after the Eastmoor game.

Not to be overlooked was John Cordell's defensive job on West's star Jerry Francis. Cordell stapled himself to Francis as he limited the 6-2 all-stater to 15 points (11 below his average).

East District Wrestling King; Beery, DeAscentis Repeaters

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Pre-meet favorite East played its role superbly Saturday at Walnut Ridge as Chuck Deyo's Tigers replaced DeSales at the top of the District wrestling heap.

The Bengal matmen compiled 55 points to outdistance the runnerup Stallions (43). Completing the top five were Worthington (34), Upper Arlington (32) and West (22).

THERE WERE only two repeaters from the '65 squad —Whitehall's unbeaten 120-pound junior Steve Beery and DeSales' Mike DeAscentis, winner at 165.

Two other defending champs — Arlington's Mike Saunders and Franklin Heights' undefeated Dick Grambo — lost out in finals verdicts to Worthington's John Chrystal and the Ohio Blind School's Charles Bartee respectively.

Moving up from runnerup spots last year were East's Jake Holloway (127) and Worthington's Frank Lowery (175).

EAST, WHO sent four qualifiers into the finals, got three big wins — Ralph Cox at 103, Holloway at 127 and Willie Jackson at heavyweight. The Tigers also added consolation points at 145 (Bob Taylor).

Other schools scoring in the top ten included: Eastmoor (sixth with 21 pts.), Franklin Heights (20), Watterson (13), Whitehall and Ohio Blind School (12) and Walnut Ridge, Westerville and Jonathan Alder (tied for tenth, 11 pts. each).

The District champs and runnerups—22 in all—now advance to the state meet, scheduled Friday and Saturday at St. John Arena.

PRELIMS ARE clocked for 1 and 7 p.m. Friday with semi-finals set Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Finals get under way that evening at 7:30.

Here are the qualifiers (District champs listed first): 103—Cox (East) and Roger Branham (F-H); 112—Bartee (OSB) and Grambo (F-H); 120—Beery (Whitehall) and Steve Arnold (DeSales); 127—Holloway (East) and Paul Clymer (Westerville); 133—John Holley (West) and Bill Hartman (UA); 138—Mike Mahoney (DeSales) and Clarence Bennett (East); 145—Terry Barnhill (UA) and Bill Nelle (Groveport); 154—Chrystal (Worthington) and Saunders (UA); 165—DeAscentis (DeSales) and Lee Rogers (West); 175—Lowery (Worthington) and Ron Thomas (Jonathan Alder); HWT—Jackson (East) and Steve Gutridge (Eastmoor).

Rohr To Be Speaker At Gahanna Cage Fete

Bill Rohr, Ohio U. athletic director and former Northwestern cage coach, will be the guest speaker a week from tomorrow (Mar. 17) at the Gahanna-Lincoln basketball banquet.

The program, scheduled for the school cafeteria, opens with dinner at 6:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the high school athletic office.

HERE'S 'HAZEL'S' LYNN BORDEN . . . Wearing Elegant Three-Piece Suit

LET'S KNIT: A THREE-PIECE SUIT

By The Spectator's URSULA duBOIS

This three-piece outfit with the unmistakable look of elegance is made by using three patterns.

Large needles and bulky yarn were used for this 5/8 coat jacket which features raglan sleeves. It is pattern No. 113. The garment may be knitted in a stockinette stitch technique although the pattern also includes an interesting pattern stitch.

URSULA

Illustrated instructions are written in sizes eight through 22. All sizes are written on one pattern.

The skirt was matched by using the same type of yarn and also large needles. It is straight skirt pattern No. 90. The skirt pattern features instructions not only in sizes matching this garment but many more. The pattern is also adaptable for many other types of yarns.

A silhouette look is achieved with this sleeveless shell, which is pattern No. 114. The shell features an unusual long ribbed waistband. The upper part is adorned with an extremely simple lace stitch.

Illustrated instructions for the shell are written in sizes eight through 22. All sizes are included in one pattern.

To obtain pattern 113, 90 or 114, send 50 cents for EACH pattern in coin, check or money order to:

Ursula duBois, Spectator Patterns Department, Box 3307, Van Nuys, Calif., 91407. Send 15 cents extra for first class mail and special handling. Please print plainly your name, address, zip code and pattern number.

Scioto View Memory Gardens Preliminary Planning Done

Preliminary planning is complete and construction work will soon begin on Scioto View Memory Gardens — the first new cemetery in northern Franklin County in the last 100 years.

It is located on a 100-acre plot between Riverside-dr and Sawmill-rd, approximately two miles north of Dublin.

Jack Claxton, 44-year-old president of Scioto View Memory Gardens, said an additional 37 acres on the southern edge of the new Gardens will be held for possible residential development.

The first phase of construction on the Gardens will involve the expenditure of approximately $60,000 for landscaping, access roads and other developments.

Claxton lives at 4484 Willowbrook-rd with his wife and one child

Offices for the new cemetery have been set up at 1480 W. Lane-av.

A nation's welfare depends on its ability to master the world; that on its power of work; and that on its power of thought.—Theodore Parker.

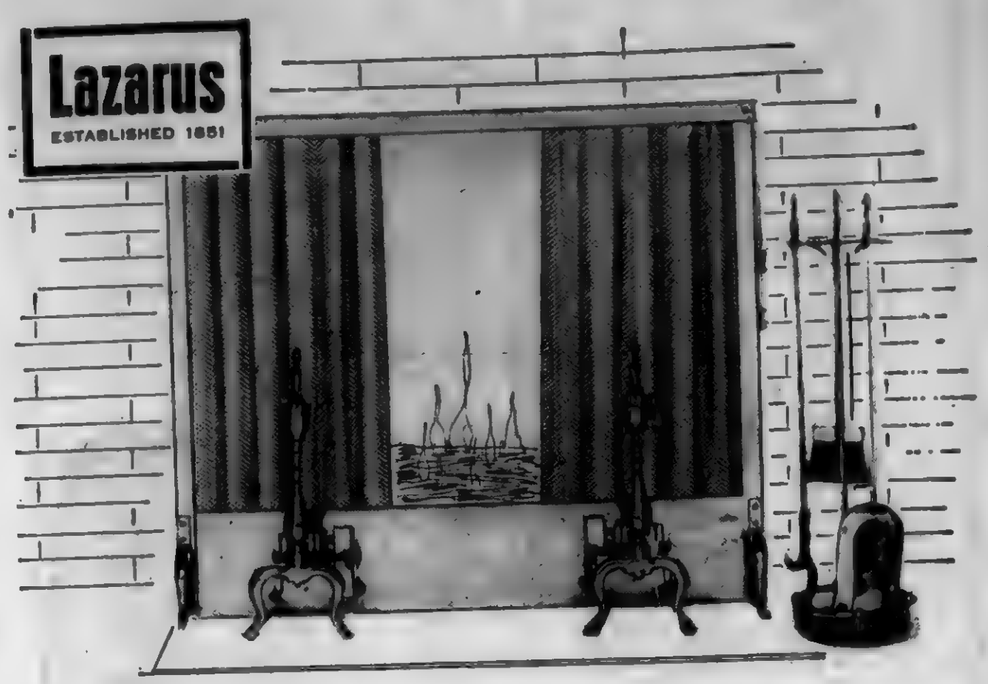
BEN FRANKLIN WAS A SMART MAN, BUT VERY FOOLHARDY



Flying a kite during an electrical storm is deadly business. Kids and kites and March winds and fun all go together. Make your kite a safety kite. Here are the six rules for flying your kite safely.

1. Always use dry string, wood and paper in your kite . . . not wire or metal.
2. Always fly your kite on days when there is no rain.
3. Always avoid busy streets and highways while flying your kite.
4. Always fly your kite away from TV and radio aerials, electric or power lines.
5. Always keep away from fallen wires.
6. Always call your ELECTRIC company if your kite gets snagged in a power line. Do not pull the string or climb power poles.

New Refuse Plan Proposed

MAYOR HAYTCHER TALKS ABOUT PROJECT
. . . makes sense, not scents

By The Spectator's
BARBARA VILLALOBOZ

The problem of refuse and garbage disposal in the burgeoning East Side communities is becoming an ever-increasing burden to these city officials.

In an attempt to seek answers and solutions to the complex situation, Whitehall Mayor Paul J. Haytcher traveled to Detroit last week accompanied by five councilmen to see something unique in refuse removal.

They observed first hand a comparatively new concept in a disposal system now being used in suburban Wyandotte and Lincoln Park, Mich., just outside of Detroit. The proximity to a large city presented problems similar to those faced by communities surrounding Columbus.

"We went there to see if the operation was obnoxious," Mayor Haytcher said. "To me, it made sense, not scents." Councilman Clarence Lecson even went on a "door to door" campaign to determine if residents liked the new system. "Everyone was very enthused about it," he commented.

This new concept is called a "centralized disposal system." The basic idea is this: Instead of each community having its own garbage trucks travel to different land fills, each participating city would load refuse into a giant tractor-trailer which, when filled, would unload in the same land fill.

But in order for the plan

Eibling's Plan Branded 'Presumptuous'

By The Spectator's
JANE ROBINSON

"Legislation without joint consideration of school standards, district reorganization and annexation can only bring confusion. These factors cannot be divorced."

"It can only be termed 'presumptuous' to inject the question of annexation while, by direction of the State Legislature, an overall school study is under way."

The first statement was made by William Grizzell, and the second by D'Alan Huff, superintendents of Washington and Hamilton Local School Districts.

Their comments are typical of the reaction to recent remarks by Supt. Harold Eibling of the Columbus Public Schools.

Eibling is objecting to the State Board of Education's action, more often than not, denying the transfer of outlying school districts to Columbus when the area involved is annexed to the city.

He has stated that he will take the matter to the Legislature in January, asking that school district and municipal boundaries be made one and the same.

This would revive the "sudden death" policy followed before 1955 when the law was modified to put the question of annexation of school districts up to the discretion of the State Board of Education.

The general rule followed is that an existing school district shall not be deprived of tax-producing property unless it is relieved of the responsibility of educating a compensating number of students.

Local superintendents are already girding to fight a change in this law. They fore-

East Area Annexation Attempt Reported

Reports reached The Spectator early this week that a group of residents of Jefferson Township was seeking annexation to the City of Columbus.

The area in question includes some 1,000 acres to the east of the Gahanna line, bounded on the south by the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks and on the north by Havens Corners-rd.

The move reportedly was intended as a means of securing adequate fire, police, sewage and water services for the area.

One Gahanna resident told The Spectator that the group had been promised by a spokesman for the City of Columbus that these municipal services would be made available within the next five years. The resident commented, "It seems unrealistic that the group would contemplate this, in view of the fact that the Gahanna Master Plan is scheduled to provide complete water, sewage and fire protection services within the next THREE years."

Reports came from the area to the effect that petitions were in circulation as early as last week.

But persons known to be proponents of annexation either denied knowledge of the move or refused comment.

Gahanna Village Council has announced that a meeting will be held in the cafeteria of Lincoln High School at 7:30 Monday night, Mar. 21. The meeting will be open to all residents of Jefferson Township, and will seek to clarify the current problems concerning municipal services to the area.

BR. 4-1155

You hear a lot of people say that a war will decrease our unemployment problem. Well, we're in a war now and is our unemployment decreasing? — Sally, Franklin Park, S.

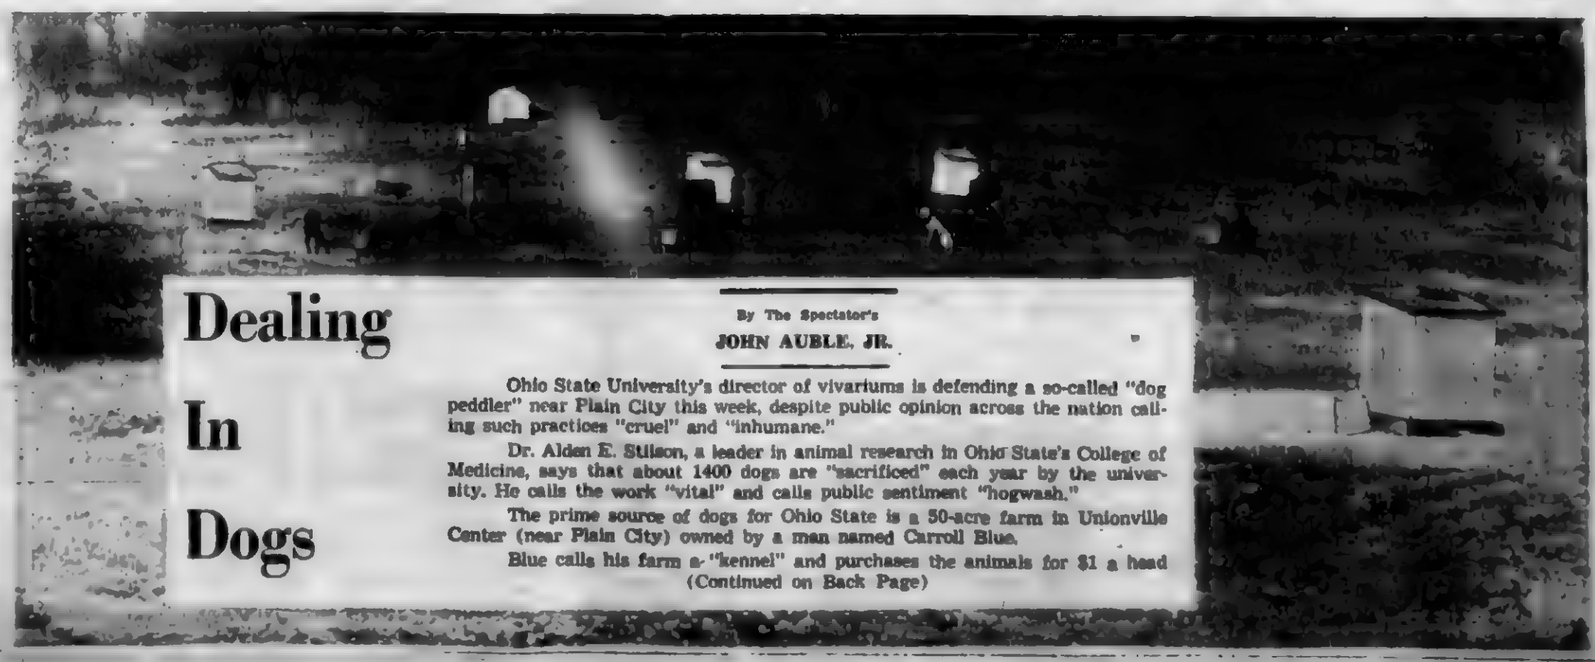
The United States unemployment rate dropped sharply in February, according to the LIVE WIRE figures from the Labor Department. Only 3.7 percent of the labor force was unemployed. This was the first time in almost nine years that the figure had dropped below 4 percent.

It seems that all you read anymore is fires striking homes. I'm sure the problem is a national one. How does Columbus stack up in fire prevention? — Just Curious, Nelson-rd.

A LIVE WIRE check with the Columbus Fire Department says that this city ranked first in all cities in the state for fire prevention activities. Of all the cities in the nation in the 500,000 population class, Columbus was ranked seventh.

I think I've heard everything now! Someone told me that they now have birth control shots for dogs! Is it true, or are these "planned puppyhood" friends of mine just barking up the wrong tree? — Dog's Best Friend, Grove City.

Your friends are right. East side veterinarian Dr. H. Platt confirms that dogs are being given injections of Promone. The serum works for Fido — er, Lassie — much like the present birth control methods now being used by human females.



There's a boy in my class whom I like very much but he doesn't even know I'm alive. What should I do? — Miss R. S., Whitehall.

Stop calling LIVE WIRE and get on his telephone line. Carry his books home from school. Maybe that would help.

There is talk about a new Franklin County court house. What's the history of the old one?—Interested, Grandview.

The South High-st courthouse was completed in 1887 at a cost of $400,000. Henry Howe described the structure as "one of the most magnificent buildings of its kind in the state," according to a LIVE WIRE call to the Ohio Historical Society.

Dealing In Dogs

By The Spectator's
JOHN AUBLE, JR.

Ohio State University's director of vivariums is defending a so-called "dog peddler" near Plain City this week, despite public opinion across the nation calling such practices "cruel" and "inhumane."

Dr. Alden E. Stilson, a leader in animal research in Ohio State's College of Medicine, says that about 1400 dogs are "sacrificed" each year by the university. He calls the work "vital" and calls public sentiment "hogwash."

The prime source of dogs for Ohio State is a 50-acre farm in Unionville Center (near Plain City) owned by a man named Carroll Blue.

Blue calls his farm a "kennel" and purchases the animals for $1 a head

IN THE NEWS THIS WEEK...

From Spectator Area News Sources

White Joins Staff

Noted newspaperman, war correspondent, political correspondent and author William S. White debuts this week on the Editorial Page along with Barry Goldwater. White served as chief Congressional correspondent for the New York Times and won a Pulitzer Prize for his biography "The Taft Story" in 1955. He authored the best-selling "The Professional: Lyndon B. Johnson" and has been termed "the ablest member" of the Washington press corps. He joins The Spectator on an exclusive basis in this area. Look for his clear, concise column, reporting and analyzing the important news developments, direct from Washington each week in The Spectator.

Ordinance Passes

Glue sniffing by minors (anyone under 21) is now illegal in Whitehall and is subject to fines ranging from $50 for the first offense to $500 for a second violation and/or imprisonment of 90 days. The unanimous decision was passed by the seven-member Whitehall Council Mar. 1 and approved by the mayor the following day. The ordinance was introduced by Robert Strickling, director of Public Safety, and James M. Tooney, city solicitor. A similar ordinance passed recently in Reynoldsburg. Copies of the ordinance—No. 23-66, may be picked up at the Whitehall Police Department, which is open 24 hours a day. Following on the heels of this action is a similar ordinance (pending) which involves the purchase of and sale to minors of cough syrup containing narcotics. Some Whitehall youths recently figured in stories relating to the drinking of habit-forming narcotic medicines.

New Director Chosen

B. Neil Davis has been appointed to the staff of the Jewish Center as director of choral music, beginning Mar. 24. Davis is currently in pursuit of a doctorate degree in musical education at the Ohio State University. He has been a bass soloist with the Kent State Choir, the Akron Symphony, and OSU Chorus. He has been a choir director and soloist for 15 years in Northeastern Ohio, in the Cleveland and Akron areas. Besides being a vocal teacher at Kent State for two years he taught for 12 years in public schools in Springfield and Akron. For the past two years he has been teaching at Eastmoor High School in Columbus. Group choral rehearsals will be held every Thursday evening, beginning Mar. 24. All individuals interested in participating may contact the Cultural Arts department of The Jewish Center, 231-2731.

Whitehall Wins Again

For the second straight year, Whitehall High School DECA has been proclaimed "Outstanding Chapter of the Year" by contest judges. The winning chapter was selected out of 130 entrants in the state-wide conference held last weekend at the Neil House. Other first place categories won by Whitehall were Dan Thompson, selected "Outstanding Male DECA Student," Larry Snyder who took first place in marketing, and Rob Hoffman, first place winner in advertising study.

Nazi Auction Is Hoax

Dr. Morton J. Sobel, assistant national executive director of the Jewish War Veterans of the USA, recently advised the local chapter of JWV not to bid on an auction of properties belonging to George Lincoln Rockwell of the American Nazi Party. The Internal Revenue Service seized a quantity of Rockwell's goods (in lieu of a $3000 tax debt. The veterans group was particularly interested interested in Rockwell's addressograph mailing plates and papers in the filing cabinets. The JWV, after telling local chapters of their plans, attended the auction, only to find the filing cabinets empty and the addressograph plates blank.

New Classes Begin

The Whitehall Recreation Department has announced a new program for all ages which will feature card games and tournaments for ping pong and shuffleboard. The activities will be held in the recreation department at the Municipal Building. The new sessions will begin Monday, Mar. 21, at 7 p.m.

Election Board Ready

The Franklin County Board of Elections, 410 S. High-st, will be open daily from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and each Saturday from 8:30 until 12 noon. The board office will maintain extra hours Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Mar. 21, 22 and 23, until 9 p.m. Transfers (change of address within Franklin County) may be made in person or by mailing the information by postal card. Voters must be registered from the address where they reside Mar. 23 in order to be eligible to vote on May 3. The last day to register or record a change of address prior to the 1966 primary election is Mar. 23.

FOUR AREA CAGERS MAKE ALL-CITY

FOUR AREA cagers broke into the 1966 All-City cage lineup of eight first-team members last week. From left are Eastmoor's Gary Cochran, East's Luther Curry and Gil Mathews and Walnut Ridge's Pat Beveridge. East (Vance Carr) and Eastmoor (Rick Walz) added second-team members while East's John Frazer was named to the honorable mention list.

Surprise! W-R Thins Look Tough Again In Distance Dept.

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Foes of Walnut Ridge had one consolation in the distance relay events last year.

They knew that Ken Schwartz and Rick Mettle would be hanging up the spikes after the '65 season, taking with them a good chunk of the Scotties' almost unbeatable mile and two-mile relay quartet (later sped to an 8:13.2 last spring).

BUT W-R track mentor Harry McKnight, who has less returning lettermen (four) than departed top performers (five), has some bad news for cindermen adhering to that school of thought.

"We should again field two of the toughest mile and two-mile relay teams in the district," McKnight claims.

Senior letterman Jim Wallar is still around and so is Mike Feyh, another quarter of that fine '65 distance foursome.

ADD SWIFT 880 specialist Rick Defourney to that pair and McKnight has only one slot to fill as of today.

As far as the team outlook goes, McKnight sees little change from the '65 format: "strong down the middle (880 and mile), weak in sprints and fair in the hurdles and field events."

No letter winners are available for the sprints but McKnight does have senior hurdler Eddie Chin back in that department with senior discus flinger John Cruse and junior shot man Steve Norris back for field duties.

THAT'S IT for veterans but McKnight hopes to get some good mileage out of a trio of sophomores — all three exhibiting ability in the pole vault area.

Don King and Lynn Stoner will also see duty in the relays while the third soph —Denny Cater—looks ticketed for that green sprint group.

Other top prospects include senior Steve Atwood (high jump), junior Jack Winkleman (low hurdles, sprints) and junior Jeff Shipman.

SHIPMAN, captain of the Scotties' cross-country unit last fall, could be McKnight's answer to that distance relay vacancy.

But the Scotties will definitely miss the likes of miler Schwartz (4:22.1), 880-runner Mettle (1:55.9), 440-runner Deryk Barker (:50.4), pole vaulter Chuck Corbett (12 ft.) and high jumper Paul Karpik (6'2") who helped push W-R up to a third at the '65 Indoor Meet and got the Scots into the top five district finishers last spring.

McKnight sees Arlington, Worthington, Central and East as the district strongboys this spring with the latter pair joining with sophomore-studded South as top contenders for City League laurels.

CYC Tourney Opens This Week

The 13th annual Ohio Regional Council of Catholic Youth basketball tournament will be held here Mar. 19-20.

Games will be played at St. James the Less Parish gymnasium, the Cooke Road Recreation Center and De-Sales and Bishop Hartley High Schools.

There will be both a high school and young adult division tournament. St. Agatha and Immaculate Conception Parishes will represent the Diocese of Columbus in the high school tournament.

Columbus representatives in the young adult division have not yet been selected.

East Area Leader At Indoor Meet

East, Gahanna and Eastmoor proved strongest among area entries at Saturday Indoor Track Meet won by Arlington with 44 points.

The Tigers placed third (31 pts.), the Lions fourth (23 pts.) and the Warriors sixth (17 pts.) in the final "AA" standings.

EAST COPPED three firsts — Sol Espie in the 60-yd. dash (6.5) and in both the 880-yd. relay and mile relay events.

Gahanna's blue ribbon efforts came on a pair of firsts by Mike Bokros (8.9 in high hurdles) and Mike Haninger (2:05.5 in the 880).

Eastmoor also garnered a pair of firsts—in the 600-yd. run (Norwood Thomas, 1:10.1) and low hurdles (Doug Rodibaugh, 8.4). Thomas also took a third in the 440.

East also collected a pair of seconds in the shot put (Grady Bobo) and the 600-yd. run (Skip Hadden).

WILLIAM S. WHITE: Bedrock May Become Bedlam

WHITE

WASHINGTON — The British political campaign, in which Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor party is seeking the equivalent of re-election on Mar. 31, is developing a kind of infighting that is disturbing on this side of the water.

There is cause for concern here just as there would be in London should high-placed members of the Republican opposition in this country begin to attack the great, historic bedrock that is the American-British alliance.

Some prominent members of Britain's Conservative party are accusing Wilson of being too close to "Mother U.S."—Wilson of all people, considering that the Conservatives for half a lifetime have made total comradeship with the United States the very underpinning of their high policy.

But what makes the present situation troubling here is that Yankee-baiting has long been mainly a Labor party indulgence. The Conservatives, except occasionally for a right-wing and outdated Rudyard Kipling kind of splinter, have never gone in for this sort of thing.

Indeed, the old Harold Wilson — the out-of-power Wilson who could afford the option of irresponsibility open to politicians holding no responsibility — was a pretty good Yankee-baiter himself. He was also once a ban-the-bomber, something approaching a neutralist, and, in general, a hip-shooting sort of politico.

But the Wilson in office has been a different man altogether. He has faithfully supported the United States at very critical points — notably the war in Viet Nam — against bitterly antagonistic pressures from his own left wing.

He has, once he reached the high and lonely plateau of national leadership with all its burdens, been a first-rate ally on the whole. And it is bound to be perfectly clear to the Conservatives in England —who are at heart far more in favor of the war of resistance in Viet Nam than is most of Labor and far more aware of its absolute necessity — that they are setting foot here on a road of dangerous irresponsibility.

Should the Conservatives come to power at the end of this month — though they appear most unlikely to do so — their whole party history and basic convictions would compel them to sustain and maybe to broaden the close association with "Mother U.S." for which some are now deriding Wilson. When they damage him in this matter, inevitably, if unwittingly, they damage as well the profoundly Conservative duty to halt Communist aggression in Asia.

If any appreciable number of British Conservatives are going to accept nit-picking irresponsibility as a tolerable campaign method, then the world is indeed turned upside down. — Copyright 1966 by United Feature.

BARRY GOLDWATER: Hubert Should've Stayed Here

GOLDWATER

An old political axiom says that when you award one patronage job you automatically make one ingrate and 1,000 enemies.

The same thing applies to a large extent to our foreign aid program.

And this brings us to Vice-President Hubert Humphrey who has recently been romping through the Far East smiling, cajoling, posing, promising and otherwise performing like a ward heeler running for the office of alderman.

He appeared on television and in newspaper photographs patting children, kissing babies, shedding his coat, laughing with the natives and comporting himself generally as everybody's chum.

But winning friends and influencing people through personal charm alone is not the vice-president's long suit — at least not in the United States, if we can believe reliable public opinion polls. And apparently nobody knows this better than President Johnson. So before the vice-president took off for the Far East, the White House packed his traveling bag with "goodies" to pass out along the way.

As a result, when Humphrey wasn't smiling for the cameras he was playing Santa Claus with the taxpayers' money. In Thailand he reached in his bag and drew out some promises of heavy American financial aid for that country.

On Feb. 15 he travelled through Pakistan strewing $50-million in U.S. economic loan promises. Two days later he got to India and made a ringing announcement of a projected $100-million American loan program in that area.

In some cynical quarters it was hinted that the foreign aid commitments were Humphrey's official hedge against the possibility of mob action, egg-throwing and similar anti-U.S. demonstrations.

But this is quite a high price to pay for the personal poise of an American official who really didn't have to take the trip. It also seems high for the maintenance of U.S. prestige in Asia which didn't have to be risked in this particular way.

All of this assumes that the vice-president was not on a diplomatic mission designed to hasten the end of the Viet Nam war. It is understandable, therefore, that Humphrey's Far Eastern safari has riled a number of persons in the Congress.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee was especially uphappy over the trip. Chairman J. William Fulbright, for example, asked foreign aid boss David E. Bell if there was "any precedent for delegating to the vice-president authority to make commitments." Bell said he would have to check the records, but he insisted that both he and the President had authorized Humphrey to make the aid announcements.

The ambassadorial set is more than a little disturbed at having their historic prerogatives of representing American policy usurped by fast-moving Presidential emissaries from Washington.

As one ambassador put it privately: "It's a lousy way to run a ball game." — Copyright 1966, Los Angeles Times.

The Big Exchange

Long after we've walked through the Valley of the Shadow, the harvest of what a man named M. E. Sensenbrenner is sowing today will be reaped.

The Columbus mayor, along with mayors of other cities, has written a letter to G. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange requesting that the ticker-tape crowd re-locate headquarters in Columbus.

The mayor has made arrangements to make available 17 acres of ground a short distance from the state capitol building and is welcoming the opportunity to work with the Stock Exchange for re-location.

"We are located in the heart of one of America's richest and most diversified industrial and agricultural states," the mayor says.

The mayor told Funston that Columbus is "within a 500-mile radius of 67 percent of the nation's consuming public" and one hour from New York City by air, via the recently-designated international airport at Port Columbus (another of the mayor's visions).

The mayor pointed out that Columbus has two of the world's outstanding privately-financed research institutions in Battelle and the Chemical Abstracts Society.

Total financial assets of banks in the area are over $1.3 billion and 50 branch facilities of Fortune magazine's 500 largest corporations find business profitable in the Columbus metropolitan area.

Is Columbus ready to replace New York in giving the Stock Exchange a new home? The mayor thinks so, and nobody yet has offered him glasses for his foresight.

The Mother Of Invention

Taxpayers of Ohio will take note that Tax Commissioner Gerald Donahue has been reassigned by Governor Rhodes to his old post as First Assistant Attorney General.

Mr. Donahue, Attorney General William Saxbe explained before he left the country on vacation, is vitally needed to try a pending tax case and help build Interstate 71.

Mr. Donahue is a very capable tax lawyer and highway expediter, and there are those who will recall he also has been an invaluable political campaign aide to Saxbe in the past. He will return, the governor said, to his tax post as soon as these other matters are squared away.

The Spectator hopes that Candidate Saxbe's upcoming campaign for re-election will not interfere with Mr. Donahue's tax and highway duties, and that he can return to his desk as tax commissioner soon.

Maybe even right after the elections.

Breakfast Of Champions

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

Generations of mothers have instilled in their daughters a horror of the man who takes a morning drink.

"It's a sign he's an alcoholic," they cluck.

A friend of mine claims there is no better time to drink than in the morning. He says the body is relaxed and receptive; the mind is clear; the organs are priming themselves for another day's work. It's the ideal time, he says.

He claims the man who drinks in the morning is an individual with sense, clarity and good breeding. He says that man is showing selection and judgment.

I asked him about these generations of mothers. He said there has always been some sort of taboo about the morning drink . . . some ritualistic holdover that has robbed the populace of one of the great pleasures of existence. And he thinks it is wrong. He thinks it should be dispelled. He thinks most nonsensical taboos should be erased.

I began to picture some of those little old ladies (who sometimes sip a short glass of sherry to help them with their sleeping) waking up with a hooker of gin in the morning.

And I thought of the many men who overindulged the night before who have claimed a little bit of the "hair of the dog that bit them," was just what the doctor ordered.

I suppose Mrs. Average Housewife would find the drudgery of housecleaning a little bit better when a sunbreak belt of booze.

And Mr. Average Husband could probably get to work easier and with less strain and tension if he got a little laced up for breakfast.

So I guess my friend was right. The morning drink has fallen in disrepute when actually there is not a single thing that can be said against it.

Convinced, I tried it. And it was great. It was so great, I thought if one could do so much then two could do that much more.

Consequently, at 10:30 a.m. I wasn't fit to go to work.

There's some sort of moral there if one had the ability to find it . . .

They Said It

"Every American will be happier, wealthier and wiser when all Americans are well educated, are free to exercise the right to vote, and have reached the point where they use their education and their franchise wisely and responsibly. This will not happen overnight. But the United States must see that it happens as soon as possible." — The Christian Science Monitor.

"Dearest, I Think You Might Be Just A Teensy-Weensy Bit Mistaken"

Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — The housewife discovering that her food bill is inching up week after week can scarcely know how far in advance this continuing rise was heralded. An incident of last August throws light on how inflationary pressures were building up to send bacon over $1 a pound and eggs at about that level a dozen.

In the course of visiting the 12 Federal Reserve banks under his jurisdiction William McChesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, stopped in Atlanta. There he was told by Jack Tarver, chairman of the Atlanta bank, of a recent session with Georgia's Sen. Richard Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and a potent force in Washington.

CHILDS

Hardly a glowing optimist by temperament, Russell warned that the war in Viet Nam would certainly expand in 1966 with the commitment of up to 400,000 American troops. This would require supplemental appropriations in billions of dollars and a defense budget for the next fiscal year perhaps as high as $60 billion.

To a banker it meant a growing squeeze on credit along with strong upward pressure on prices. Martin had already heard from more than half of the 12 Federal Reserve banks urging that the brake of a rise in the discount rate—a higher interest rate—be applied. He became convinced that in view of threatening inflation this was essential. For the next four months a fascinating debate went on with the White House over the wisdom of a move that might slow down not merely the price rise but prosperity as well.

As the weeks passed, the White House and the Treasury argued at least for delay—wait until the new budget is announced. Let's get some coordination, a consensus, so the argument ran. To Martin and his allies on the board this seemed to suggest a hedge on the jealously guarded independence of the Fed.

On Dec. 5 the Fed announced a rise of half of one percent in the discount rate. Loud denunciation on Capitol Hill followed, with Sen. Russell B. Long, majority whip, and Chairman Wright Patman of the House Banking and Currency Committee leading the pack. To say the move made the Administration unhappy would rate high as the understatement of the year.

But from that low point out of hours of discussion between the President and the chairman of the Fed what might be described as a friendly standoff has come about. Although on the basis of rising rates for money in the market and a credit squeeze on small business another jump in the discount rate might be justified, Martin does not intend to initiate it.

Discussing a new board member to replace his ally, C. Canby Balderston, whose term expired, Martin argued for a businessman to give the Fed a better balance as between various elements of the economy. His only objection to the President's choice, Andrew F. Brimmer, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, was that he would be the fourth economist on the board.

Martin had a favorable impression of Brimmer during the three years he was an economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The housewife at the checkout counter has, along with most of us, little knowledge of discount rates and certificates of deposit and 90-day bills. But she knows when the food bill goes steadily up as it has done for five successive months.

Already the Republicans are hitting the high-price theme, which is a good sign they're hearing from the grass roots. Whether the Administration will bite the bullet of higher taxes in an election year is a question. The debate between the White House and the Fed may be suspended but it is by no means concluded— Copyright 1966, United Features.

Letters To The Editor

Is Brown Fearful?

To The Spectator:

William L. White of Mt. Vernon, O., a caustic critic of Governor Rhodes, is getting a lot of mileage from a piece of rank stupidity.

In 1964, Ted W. Brown stubbornly refused to abandon a three-cornered donnybrook for the GOP nod to the U.S. Senate. During the height of the brawl he blistered Taft as a fake conservative while asserting that his entry was patently illegal. Brown was overruled by the Ohio high tribunal and the ensuing contest saw him wage a surprisingly stiff battle. However, Taft won while White easily outpaced Brown.

Today, Secretary of State Brown invalidates White's petition to oppose Rhodes in the Republican primary. It is evident that Rhodes has the edge for he has obligated Ohio to the international money lenders.

Brown's attitude seems strange for if White did write in the addresses of his supporters, why hasn't Brown denounced that common practice before? Is he fearful of another smear job such as was attempted against former Governor and now state Supreme Court Justice C. William O'Neill?

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. Mr. Robert Fan

To The Spectator:

It's about time somebody came to the aid of Bobby McNamara ("Bob And The Barbs," Mar. 9 Spectator) who has been on the firing line too long by so-called citizens of this country.

McNamara is doing as good a job as anyone could in this time of trouble and, as your editorial points out, "he has enough problems with the defense of this country without having to defend himself every few steps along the way."

How can anyone expect results from a man who is consistently being criticized for every move he makes?

The Voice

To The Spectator:

I got a little sick to my stomach reading the syrupy stories on how the Spectator was siding with the teen-agers. I'm not denouncing them, but there are a few rotten apples that are really rotten.

Then, last week (Mar. 9, Spectator), I read your special report on teen-age drinking.

You have confirmed my belief that The Spectator has no gods to answer to . . . that The Spectator will, indeed, cite injustices no matter where or when they occur . . . that The Spectator is, in fact, THE voice of the people in Franklin County.

SPECTATOR'S ALL-STAR WRESTLING SQUAD

East, DeSales, Worthington Capture 7 Of 11 Berths

East, DeSales and Worthington, who finished 1-2-3 at the '66 District wrestling meet, fill seven of 11 first team berths on The Spectator's third annual All-Star Wrestling Team this season.

District champion East landed three first-team members while DeSales and Worthington added two members each to the squad.

UPPER ARLINGTON, West, Whitehall and Franklin Heights rounded out the first 11 with one berth each.

Only repeaters from the '65 first-team were Whitehall's 120-pounder Steve Beery, who has been named to the first team for three years in a row now, DeSales' 165-pounder Mike DeAscentis and Franklin Heights Dick Grambo.

Other repeaters on the first 22 from the '65 squad were East's Jake Holloway, Worthington's Frank Lowery and Arlington's Mike Saunders.

EAST'S WILLIE Jackson, West's John Holley, UA's Terry Barnhill and Worthington's John Chrystal are newcomers to the first-team while East's Ralph Cox and DeSales' Mike Mahoney moved up from the '65 honorable mention category.

Worthington's John Chrystal, the District's lone State champion, was selected honorary captain of the 1966 All-Star squad.

The first 22 contained 15 seniors and seven juniors with the first 11 showing a combined won-loss mark of 238-7.

A total of 30 mat coaches were contacted for nominations to the squad which represents Franklin County and surrounding areas where The Spectator circulates.

THE SQUAD was determined by coaches' nominations and guided by a point system which allowed: ten points for District win, five points for runnerup, three points for third and two points for fourth.

Five additional points were granted for advancement in state competition and one point added for each win (both dual and tourney) gained during the 1965-66 season.

The top 22 wrestlers will receive certificates from The Spectator in recognition of their achievements. The certificates will be mailed to the respective coaches for distribution to the All-Star wrestlers.

SECOND TEAM

Deyo Coach

CHUCK DEYO

Chuck Deyo, coach of East's 1966 District champion wrestling squad, was selected as The Spectator's second annual "Coach of the Year" this week.

Deyo was thus honored after polling the most votes from 30 Central District wrestling coaches who select the District's number one mentor as honorary coach for The Spectator's All-Star wrestling team.

RUNNERUP in the coaches' balloting was veteran West mentor John Butler, who developed a so-so '65 Cowboy squad into a strong District contender this season.

Other coaches garnering votes in the balloting were Worthington's Bob McMahan ('65 "Coach of Year"), Franklin Heights' Bob Twiss, DeSales' Bob Triano, Watterson's Dick Bliss, Groveport's Pete Nix and Jonathan Alder's Jack O'Rourke.

Deyo, who took over at East this season following the departure of Jim Porter, turned out an East squad which won both District and City League Meet titles.

AT STATE MEET:

Tigers, Chrystal Pace Matmen To Best Finish

By JACK WITTENMEIER

The Central District "matured" last weekend at the 1966 State Wrestling Tournament, stealing a good share of thunder from Ohio's perennially tough Northern Section entries.

Maple Heights went home with its fifth state title but the Central District took three of the top 10 rungs for the first time in local mentors' memories.

DISTRICT champ East showed the way, closing third to Heights' 33 points with 24 markers of its own. Worthington placed seventh (15 points) while DeSales closed in a ninth place tie with Toledo Rogers (13).

Eight of the District's 22 qualifiers finished fourth or better as compared with one fourth in '65. The best '65 team effort was Worthington's 15th.

Worthington's John Chrystal secured a state championship at 154 while East's Jack Holloway (127) took a second, DeSales' Mike DeAscentis (165), East's Willie Jackson (heavyweight) and Ralph Cox (103) got consolation (third) wins and Mike Mahoney (DeSales, 138) and Charles Bartee (112, Ohio School for Blind) nabbed fourths.

CHRYSTAL'S championship was only the third in recent years for the Central District. Arlington's Tom Saunders win in 1964 and Whitehall's Gary Joseph did likewise in 1961.

Sporting Chances

COLUMBUS - AREA keglers have moved into a pair of spots in the WIBC's national '65-'66 season tally sheet. Gahanna's Barbara Hern ranks fourth nationally on the high individual three-game list with her 743.

The local Seafood Bay team now holds tenth place in the High Team, three games category with its 3012.

A CUTIE AND THE COMICS
—Spectator Photos By John Auble, Jr.

'Here She Is . . . Ann Corio!'

There is a touch of nostalgia at the Hartman Theater this week. Ann Corio (to the uneducated, she is to burlesque what Ethel Merman is to musical comedy) presents and stars in "This Was Burlesque" — best reviewed Monday night by a middle-aged customer smiling on his his way out saying "ahh . . . memories, memories."

This is the goal of the review, as Ann sees it . . . to re-create the early days of burlesque. The old-fashioned burlesque with baggy-pants comics, lots of laughter and sophisticated bits of "look Ma, I'm dancing" by a gum-chewing chorus girl.

"This Was Burlesque" is an array of girls, girls, girls, collected by Miss Corio to show what burlesque was like before the comics became too broad and the girls stopped being "strippers" and became "exotics." The show is based on Ann Corio's recollections of the days when she was the top attraction throughout the country . . .the days when she was called the darling of college students and diplomats.

The production is a "fun show." Go to laugh and be entertained. Some of the old-timers are risque, but it is basically a fast-paced, clean show.

Top Bananas ("My father's name is Ben and my mother's name is Anna . . . that's why they call me Banana) such as Steve Mills, Dick Bernie and Dexter Maitland throw out one-liners like a rapid-fire machine gun ("I've got a set of Liz Taylor 'his' and 'her' towels . . . one says 'His,' the other says 'Hers' and another says 'Next.' ") Risque? Maybe, but not obscene or lewd.

As Miss Corio put it, "They leave the blue jokes to the class D comics in the class D clubs."

One girl loaded with talent that can't be overlooked is Nicole Jaffe who plays a dumb blonde. She is a comedienne that prospective gals interested in comedy should engage as a teacher. She almost steals the show.

The show is a rare treat for theater-goers in Columbus. The wardrobe and sets are extremely striking. The orchestra has the brassy, reminiscent sound of early burlesque. The audience was extremely enthusiastic and receptive. The dance routines grabbed warm and hearty applause and the comedy produced fountains of laughter.

"This Was Burlesque" is authentic, right down to the candy pitchman who guarantees a prize in every box of 50-cent goodies.

If you're past 35 (you've probably got your ticket already) let the show take you back to the good old days. If you're under 35 . . . well, see it anyway for a new experience you'll never forget.

Max's Has Lynn Merrill

Lovely Lynn Merrill is currently appearing at Max's Steak House. Radiating with charm and personality, this talented singer of song captures your musical moods in a tasteful and discriminating style. Lynn, no new-comer to Columbus audiences, is backed by Tom O'Keefe, maestro of the 88's Together, they are an entertaining, enjoyable duo. For an evening of good food and entertainment is a speciality on the menu at Max's.

Dante's Win 'Battle'

The other Sunday at the Frank J. Lausche Building at the Ohio Exposition Center, there was one of the biggest, most enthusiastic election campaigns ever held in good old Columbus town. The balloting was to select the best, most popular band in the area. It was the Battle of the Bands Contest, conducted by Jerry Rasor of TV 4's Dance-O-Rama, in which two groups, the Dante's and Rebounds were battling for top prize money of $300 and an opportunity to audition for a major recording firm in New York.

These two bands were the winners in several elimination contests held at the regular Sunday Dance-O-Rama dances at Valley Dale. Each group performed for two thirty minutes sets, then the audiences were given a ballot to mark their choice as the best rock and roll band in the city. The Dante's were elected to rule as the top Rock and Roll Band in Central Ohio.

While the Dante's were voted the top rock and roll artists, Jerry Rasor must be acclaimed one of the most popular M C's of rock and roll dances in America. Because of Jerry's personality and the magic of rock and roll, over 6,000 teenagers turned out for the battle of the bands contest. This combination would make any night club owner or theatrical promoter envious. It was the largest gathering of teenagers for any type of entertainment ever held in the city.

Keyboard Magic At Shel

Louise Smith presents keyboard magic on the Hammond Organ at the beautiful Shel Steak House. Appearing nightly for over three months, Louise's soft, romantic music blends in well with the decor and atmosphere of the Shel. Her music definitely appeals to us "older" individuals. With a repertoire of old standards, mixed with some of the better tunes of today, Louise has a distinctive style that is pleasant and pleasing.

Her rendition of "Ebb Tide" is the best ever on an electric organ. In fact, it is so authentic, one can almost feel the spray. Another tune requested frequently is "Spanish Eyes." This one is a Louise Smith special.

If you have out-grown the rock and roll beat, take my advice and drop in the Shel Steak House, 3024 Sullivant-av and hear melodious music with the bright and happy styling of Louise Smith. I could listen all night.

'Musical Souvenirs' At Veterans

On opening night Mar. 24, when the house lights dim, Lowell Riley will step into the spotlight to give the downbeat for "Hi Neighbor" and the 24th annual Vaud-Villities will be under way. Young in heart and high in enthusiasm, the 300-member cast of America's oldest and largest musicale will give its finest performance to date in "Musical Souvenirs," Mar. 24-25-26 at Veterans Memorial. The varied moods and sounds of Cole Porter will be featured as well as Western ballads and songs from Broadway revues and operettas. Many other surprises will show the talents of the Vaud-Villities singers, dancers and comedians. There are over 1,000 years of cumulative experience represented by cast members who have played to well over 82,000 people. Vaud-Villities is the only show designed specifically for the Veterans Memorial stage.

Tickets are available at $3 and $2 at Central Ticket office.

Clarmont Is Gourmet Delight

Dining out is almost always fun and enjoyable, but when you visit the Clarmont Steak House be prepared for a real gourmet experience. Frank Kondos and his staff make certain that your tastes and appetite are deliciously satisfied. Serving the finest in steaks and other delectable foods, the Clarmont has built a reputation as one of the best restaurants in the city. The atmosphere is friendly and sophisticated. Playing nightly at the Clarmont is Vivian at the Hammond organ. Her musical menu is as tasteful and pleasing as the dinner. Dispensing all legal beverages, the Clarmont is a must for that next anniversary, birthday celebration or for just plain good eating.

Jet Ticket Book Offers Savings

The Columbus Baseball Club's annual pre-season Book Ticket Drive opened Tuesday. The books contain 10 tickets and will sell for $10, the same as 1965. This pre-season price gives the buyer a savings of $5 on each book.

Books may be obtained at any luncheon, fraternal or social club, government agencies, industrial plants, most companies, shopping centers or at Jet Stadium.

Dems Form Glee Club

Michael J. Darrian, president of the Franklin County Young Democratic Club, this week announced plans to organize a men's glee club. All young Democrats are invited. A director and pianist are needed. Anyone wishing to participate may contact James D. Emmitt, chairman, 1609 Westwood-av. Next monthly meeting will be held Mar. 17 at Moose Lodge, 36 W. Sycamore-st.

CIRCUS COMING MARCH 31

The 16th annual Shrine Circus will be held in the Fairgrounds Coliseum Mar. 31 through Apr. 9. There are 27 acts, including three separate elephant acts in the spectacular circus.

The first of 20 performances will be closed to the public. Only handicapped and needy children, accompanied by their Shriner hosts, are to be admitted to the matinee on opening day. Thereafter, at 19 shows, the finest stunts of the sawdust arena will be presented to an expected 60,000 paying customers. Show times are 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. daily and 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Saturdays.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or at the Masonic Temple. Prices are the same as they were 16 years ago, $1.25 for general admission, reserve seats, $2.25 and $3 for box seats.

Eibling's Proposal Branded 'Presumptuous'---

cast tax duplicates being "emasculated" to the point it would be financially impossible to provide effective education for the children remaining in the district.

Calvin Leader, superintendent of Jefferson Local, refutes Eibling's contention the outlying districts are "taking away our wealth." He cites OEA statistics on tax valuation per pupil.

Columbus, with $13,585 behind each student, is $563 richer per pupil than Jefferson, the county district which comes closest to the Columbus figure.

Evaluation of the districts which have, according to Eibling, grabbed so much wealth, range down to Hamilton with a per pupil evaluation of $4,842. Other evaluations in the county system include Canal Winchester, $11,529; Madison, $9,810; Mifflin, $6,895; Plain Local, $11,304; Reynoldsburg, $7,625; Scioto - Darby, $9,412; Washington, $12,518.

(Other City school systems within the county generally compare favorably with Columbus. They include Whitehall, $10,874; Bexley, $18,146; Westerville,, $8,912; Worthington, $12,181; Upper Arlington, $16,622 and Grandview Heights, $31,536.)

Leader well recalls when Western Electric was transferred to the City District in 1957.

After a decision of the Ohio Supreme Court in 1964 which was upheld in the lower court that the transfer was illegally made, the $20,000,000 facility reverted to Jefferson Local.

If this property which represents one-third of Jefferson's tax evaluation, were returned to Columbus, the county district would lose $400,000 of its $2,000,000 budget, —and a total of 14 pupils.

"This could only mean," Leader stated, "that our schools' financing would be inadequate, our schools overcrowded, salary schedules would be unattractive to good teachers and a drastic cut in teaching aids and text books would be initiated."

Tom Quick, Franklin County superintendent, contends that each of the nine districts for which he is responsible can be badly hurt if Eibling's suggestions are followed with the exception of Plain Local and Canal Winchester.

Carl Miller of Canal Winchester, while agreeing his district would not be affected today, does not believe a future threat can be discounted. (He bases his fear on Columbus annexation policy.)

The administration of the South-Western School District (pupil evaluation $12,610) reiterated Huff's position that Eibling is, at best, "jumping the gun" on the study now in committee.

Reporting that South-Western has recently been named as one of the 212 "pace-setting" school systems in the United States by the U.S. Office of Education, Paul Noblitt, director of public relations, states the district will fight any policy that will result in "pupil education" suffering.

He emphasized that Eibling's accusation South-Western is transporting children living within 500 feet of a city school is one that can "fit on another foot."

Students formerly attending Franklin Heights, a stone's throw from their homes, are now forced to "walk, not ride," two miles to West High.

Phil Williams, Madison Local superintendent, maintains the evil of "sudden death" annexation for school purposes lies within the fact that such moves do not have an appreciable effect on the Columbus schools, while it can be a prime factor in the effectiveness of the district whose duplicate is reduced.

"Smaller districts have some problems inherent with their size, but we are attempting to meet these through cooperative efforts, as in vocational education," he added.

Another of Eibling's angles refuted by Grizzell is that identical municilap and district boundaries would eliminate "confused tax rates."

Columbus is edging into his district along Henderson-rd and the loss of this area would hardly change the fact that varying tax rates exist in the Village of Dublin and four townships.

Washington serves (Norwich, Washington, Perry, Concord and Jerome), located in three counties (Franklin, Delaware and Union).

He further denies any confusion, arising from these rates, declaring it merely a "simple accounting procedure."

Washington district has 1,400 students spread out over 40 square miles.

"Columbus doesn't want either the duplicates or the students in our outlying area. How are these children going to be educated if our industry is taken from us?" he asked.

Huff (of Hamilton) brought out that in recent years many larger cities are breaking their school districts into several autonomous divisions (San Francisco, Minneapolis, New York, Chicago, fer examples) with studies showing that districts over 30,000 become unwieldly.

"When districts become so large," he stated, "administrators stop thinking about the education of children, becoming bogged down in everything from bus problems to those boundaries."

"Ohio schools are dedicated to training citizens—in the way best for all—not in the way most agreeable to Columbus," Huff added.

He concluded, "In education in this area, the boundaries of the city of Columbus are no more important than the corporation limits of Calcutta."

Annexation—

Harrison Smith, Jr., Columbus annexation attorney, said, "I attended a meeting in the area discussing the possibilities of annexation, but as far as I know, no petition has been drawn, circulated or presented."

At Gahanna Village Council meeting Monday night, one councilman reported that, according to his information, the original petitions had indeed been circulated but that they were not accompanied by the proper map outline of area to be annexed, and had to be withdrawn. He went on to say that the new petitions were to have been delivered Monday night.

The council decided to hold an open public meeting at Lincoln High School next week to discuss the problems of fire protection, sewage and water in Jefferson Township, at which alternatives to outright annexation to Columbus will be discussed.

BRIDGE QUICKIE

By The Spectator's
ROSE NAFZGER

"To watch PUNY deuce CLOBBER big ace, and score! Why, who could ask for anything more!"

When you know this is about to happen, can't you just feel your heart pounding like mad! Mine does! And of course this play can happen very often. Here's the way it comes about: If you have a nice long suit, and it has been led several times, enemy will have no more; you then can capture enemy's big ACE with that little "ole" trump, PUNY deuce!

TO APPEAR

SGT. LARRY WIEHE, a soloist with the U.S. Air Force Band, will perform at Whitehall High School Mar. 17 and 18. The trombonist will appear at a recital rehearsal with the Whitehall Band Thursday afternoon and will star in a recital clinic Friday, 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend both events free of charge. The Whitehall Concert Band, along with Sgt. Wiehe, will pesent a concert Friday, 8 p.m. His appearance in Columbus is being sponsored by the Whitehall Band Boosters and Summers and Son Musle Co. Tickets for the Friday evening performance are 50 cents for students and $1 for adults.

Plan Proposed—

to be economically feasible, more than one community will have to participate. Mayor Haytcher said he plans to meet soon with the mayors of Bexley, Gahanna and Reynoldsburg to discuss the proposal.

The D and D Refuse Co., which will undertake the cost and implementation of the new program, is currently operating the refuse disposal for Gahanna and Whitehall. Garbage pick-up in Whitehall takes five days. Under the new plan, it will be slashed to three.

Why a "centralized collection"? What is it and how does it work? As suburban communities grow, refuse disposal problems grow with them and at an ever increasing rate. To get rid of the collected refuse, one either burns it or buries it. In the case of incineration (which is currently being considered for Columbus) one ends up still burying part of it.

Curt Conley, president of the D and D Refuse Co., 432 E. 18th-av, said predicted incineration will cost "four times" as much as this joint land fill concept. Also, a part of the problem is that collection units are often not large enough when the disposal sites are forced back further and further into outlying areas. The answer as Conley sees it? "A system which combines collection units and transfer units."

In the center of this collection area, a transfer station would be established where refuse is transferred to a gigantic land fill. In refuse collection, "travel time is wasted time," according to Conley.

As cities become larger, refuse travel disposal areas move further and further away. Under actual conditions in a metropolitan area, it was actually determined that when garbage trucks traveled more than a distance of 10 miles to the disposal site, it was more economical to establish a transfer station at this point.

What is a "transfer station"? It is an attractive cement block square building that can be designed in traditional or modern exterior decor. A garbage dump? In a word, yes. Set on minimum ground space and landscaped, it can be built in a residential or industrial area.

It can handle greatly increased volumes of refuse daily. Drive-through routings for trucks and transfer trailers save maneuvering time.

Would the new system cost taxpayers extra dollars? No, if anything, there will be a tax savings. The new concept reduces the costly "travel time" of smaller collection units to and from disposal areas. It eliminates the lost man hours from crews riding to and from disposal areas.

And maintenance costs on the trucks is saved because of the cutback on trips to the land fill. One tractor unit will make one round trip to seven trips required in the current set-up.

Obviously, this new idea in refuse disposal could be the answer for some communities, such as Bexley and Whitehall, that find themselves in close proximity to a large city. They are crying for land fill property.

But, in Reynoldsburg, a city official observed: "We don't have an immediate problem right now but certainly in the future, a plan like this would be warranted." A private firm in Newark handles refuse removal for Reynoldsburg.

However, Reynoldsburg officials said Mayor Twyford will meet with Mayor Hatcher to discuss the proposed community-wide project.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals will be received by the Clerk of the Board of Education of the Reynoldsburg Local School District at his office until 12:00 Noon (EST), April 6, 1966, for the furnishing of all labor, equipment and materials necessary to fully execute the plans and specifications for the construction of Reynoldsburg Senior High School Additions and Remodeling as prepared by Joseph Baker and Associates, Architects, 180 Hudson Avenue, Newark, Ohio, which documents will be on file at the office of the Architect, at the plan rooms of the F. W. Dodge Corporation and Builders Exchange, Columbus, Ohio, and at the office of the Clerk. They are open to public inspection during all reasonable office hours until the time fixed for the closing of bids. At that time the bids will be publicly opened, read and tabulated.

A copy of plans and specifications for individual use may be secured at the office of the Architect upon the deposit of $50 cash. All plans and specifications must be returned to the Architect within seven days after the Bid Date and, if they are in good order, a full refund of the deposit, minus any shipping costs, will be made to all who submit a Bonded Bid. For all others, and for extra sets a refund of $30 will be made. Selected sheets are available at cost of $2 each, not refundable.

Separate proposals will be received for the General, the Electrical, the Plumbing, and the Heating and Ventilating Contracts, although combined bids will be considered. Any contractor submitting a proposal combining bids for more than one contract in one bid shall also enter his bid for each of the contracts in the space provided on the proposal form.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid bond or a certified check payable to the Board of Education in the amount not less than ten percent (10%) of the amount of all items bid upon. Bidders agree that the check or bond shall become the absolute property of the said Board of Education in lieu of damages if the bidder refuses, fails or neglects to enter into a contract and furnish the required one hundred percent (100%) Contract Bond within ten days after notice of acceptance of his proposal. A satisfactory Performance and Payment Bond will be required, guaranteeing the performance of the work and payment of all bills. No bid may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids for at least thirty (30) days. The Owner reserves the right to waive informalities in the bidding. Time of completion shall be a valid consideration in determining lowest and best bid.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Published by the order of the Board of Education.

If you have sent in your $3.50 subscription to the Batman Spectator, then you will be visited this weekend by the caped crusader himself who'll bring you a 45 rpm record.

If you haven't sent in your subscription money, do so immediately so Batman can set-up a time to visit your house. (If you already subscribe, a $3.50 subscription is required which takes effect as soon as your present subscription expires).

See you next week, kids!

The Bat Column

ADA Chapter Schedules First Annual Dinner

The first annual Roosevelt Day Dinner will be held in Columbus on Friday, Mar. 25, at 8 p.m. at the Southern Hotel. Sponsored by the Central Ohio Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) to honor the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, it is hoped to make this a traditional affair like most large cities across the United States.

RAUH

The guest speaker will be Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., Washington, D.C. As a founder and now national vice president of ADA, Rauh is also chaiman of the Democratic Central Committee for the District of Columbia, and chief legal counsel for the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party. He will speak on "Civil Rights and Civil Liberties in the Great Society."

Chairman of the dinner is John Droege of Battelle. David Clayman, attorney, will be master of ceremonies, and the introduction of the speaker will be made by Rankin Gibson, former Supreme Court Justice.

Assisting with the arrangements are Mrs. Ralph Kehr, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Davis, Irwin Barkan, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Silver, Wayne Erlandson, Richard Bing, Mrs. G. Acosta, Martin Seltzer and Mrs. Art Robson.

Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. William Davis, 258-4828. Tickets are $5 per person.

LET'S KNIT
A ONE-NEEDLE SWEATER

By The Spectator's URSULA duBOIS

Knitters are constantly asking for more one-needle sweaters which can be knitted from the neck down. This particular sweater uses large needles and is quite fast to fashion. It is started at the neck and knitted down which eliminates finishing of sideseams. The lacy effect for that extra touch of femininity is achievbe by making a dropped stitch. Illustrations on the patterns show you how to do it.

URSULA

This sweater is excellent as a casual, yet dressy throw-over and suitable for any time of the day. It can be fashioned by using either a smooth or a nubby yarn, and of course it is quite dressy when knitted in a mohair yarn. Instructions are easy to follow, even for the beginner.

Illustrated instructions are written in sizes eight through 22. All sizes are included on one pattern.

To obtain pattern 75, send 50 cents in coin, check, or money order to:

MOM GOT TIRED OF THAT SAME OLD LINE
AND GOT A NEW FLAME
Mom finally came to the end of her rope and got a new flame—a modern flame-heated Gas clothes dryer. Mom doesn't hang around any more, because an easy turn of a dial dries a heaping load of laundry in minutes . . . soft, fluffy, and fresh as sunshine.
And her Gas dryer saves money every time she uses it. Gas dries up to five whopping loads for what one load costs in a flameless dryer. And if her Gas dryer ever needs fixing, our trained servicemen will find the trouble quickly. Most services are free; all service is fast, courteous and dependable.
If you're tired of the same old line, get yourself a new flame—a money-saving Gas clothes dryer. Think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

DEALING IN DOGS—

from dog pounds in about four surrounding counties—many times under letters of agreement from county commissioners. He sells about 90 percent of his animals to OSU for $9 each.

He buys them for $1 a head under a kennel license, instead of the usual $3 fee for a license tag.

The Ohio Humane Federation in Cleveland, however, says that, according to the Ohio Code, Blue's operation is not a kennel, and there is a move under way in this state to abolish farms such as Blue's on tax charges.

"The Ohio Code (Sec. 955.02) defines a kennel owner as 'a person, partnership, company, corporation or professional engaged in the business of breeding dogs for hunting or for sale.' There is no breeding being done at the Blue farm and others like it," says William Green, office manager of the Humane Federation.

The Federation has filed a suit in Champaign County against a dog dealer in Dayton. "If we win there," Green commented, "we'll go into district court of appeals in the Columbus area and demand that county auditors revoke kennel licenses from those who operate kennels under false pretenses."

"Blue is our prime source of dogs," Dr. Stilson says. Ohio State officials have revealed plans to eventually build a $400,000 animal farm building on Don Scott field so that the university can raise its own animals for experimentation.

Right now, dogs purchased from Blue are kept in four-unit cages (which cost some $1200 each) in Wiseman Hall behind University Hospital. About $1.40 is spent each day on each dog for upkeep.

Most of the animals are used for "acute experiments," which means that their life-span is "about 24 hours," Dr. Stilson said.

Prior to purchasing dogs from Blue, the university sends a team of three veterinarians, headed by Hilliard veterinarian Dr. George Kukor, to the Blue farm where they select "only the healthy dogs" for research work.

The dogs are visited twice a week by the vets and live in about 60 kennels built there by the university. The kennels are two feet square with a crushed stone bed 14 feet in diameter around them. There is one dog to a kennel, each on a seven-foot chain.

A stone's throw from the kennels, Blue keeps his other animals chained to barrels converted into dog houses. The chains on these animals are considerably shorter. There is one hired hand employed by Blue to feed and water animals which, at times, have totalled as high as 150.

Sickly animals, of no use to the university, that can't be sold by Blue, are destroyed with a .22-rifle, a practice Dr. Stilson calls "more humane than any gas chamber I've ever seen."

"I realize the Blue farm is not a fancy establishment," Dr. Stilson said. "But we aren't participating in a beautification program. We are in the business of research."

The doctor said he feels Blue is "performing a real service for mankind" and he wishes the people shouting inhumane charges would "get realistic."

He has heard and read the jabs at animal research on dogs which have reached national proportions. "Anybody who puts a higher value on an aminal's life than he does on a human life needs psychiatric attention," he said.

He cited advances in medicine which, he says, "could not have been possible without sacrificing animals." Among these advances, he continued, is the development of a diet for persons who have had up to 70 percent of their intestinal tracts removed in a fight against cancer.

Most of the dogs used in OSU experiments are short-haired coon dogs. "We can't use such animals as collies, for example. They get too depressed after an operation."

Employers Are Asked To Help With Survey

All employers are being asked to cooperate in a manpower survey.

The project, under the supervision of the Manpower Advisory Committee, will serve as the initial step of a plan to select and train applicants who will be qualified to fill job openings.

The advisory committee is composed of representatives of management, educational and training facilities and the state and federal labor market and employment services. The group has formulated a training and procurement program that begins with getting data on labor needs.

On Mar. 22, employers will be mailed a letter outlining the need for cooperation with this survey. About a week later, the confidential report on manpower needs form is to be sent which will ask for current personnel needs on all job categories commonly used by the employer.

All data will be held in strictest confidence and will be used solely to compile the statistical material needed to guide the manpower development program.

The next step for the project will be to evaluate the information. On the basis of the most needed occupations, training programs will be planned and priority given.

The net result will be to provide a supply of trained workers to fill job openings.

Methods of selecting candidates will be set up. Major sources of trainees would be the young, untrained people who are entering the labor market and persons whose training no longer qualifies them for present jobs and who must be retrained. Other sources such as high school dropouts will also be utilized.

It is hoped all employers will cooperate. In the event the form is not returned or is incomplete, a representative of the Ohio State Employment Service will call.

WFD Gets Award

The Whitehall Fire Department was awarded First Honorable Mention in the State of Ohio in the 1966 National Fire Protection Association contest. Fire Chief Arthur T. Reddy said credit for the award goes to Inspector James Soteriades, 4011 E. Main-st. The certificate was given on the basis of extensive fire safety programs conducted during 1965 — fire protection displays, fire drills at schools and businesses, classroom lectures to area youth and community cleanup campaigns.

Throws Party Poke

Herbert J. Pfeifer, 91 Hamilton-rd, a candidate for the 15th State Senatorial district, took a jab at Franklin County Democratic chairman Jerry Ryan, and party itself this week. Pfeifer charged that Ryan is "controlling the primary votes" of Whitehall candidates by refusing to allow an open primary to permit the grass roots voter to make the selection of candidates." Ryan labeled the charge a "matter of misinformation" adding that endorsements are made by the party, "not by Jerry Ryan." Ryan said it's become a necessity to raise the quality of the candidates and this is being done through party screening.

Twelve-year-old Frank Bennett, 774 S. Sixth-st, is a double winner in The Spectator's "Take Your Dad to the Ball Game" subscription contest. The South Side newsboy sold ten paid-in-advance Spectator subscriptions thus earning himself two tickets (one for each five subscriptions) to the June 19 doubleheader between the Reds and the New York Mets at Cincinnati's Crosley Field. Can you think of a better way of "treating" dad on Father's Day? Take him out to the ball game — on us. Five subscriptions entitles any carrier to the trip aboard a chartered bus and a box lunch! The contest closes Sunday, May 15. For more details, call the circulation department at BR. 4-1155.

WHITEHALL MAYOR COMMENTS

Charter Issue Returns

Whitehall voters, for the third time in 10 years, will be asked to decide whether or not they want a charter for the city when they go to the polls on May 3.

The ballots will ask the individual if he wants a charter commission to be formed. If the vote is "yes," he will have the opportunity to vote for 15 nominees to the commission.

Nominees are placed on the ballot by petitions, which must carry at least 48 resident signatures and may represent from one to 15 candidates. Filing deadline for the petitions is Mar. 24.

Informed sources in Whitehall believe previous charters have failed because of three major flaws:

• Efforts of commissioners to come up with a perfect charter,

• Elimination by the proposed charters of certain elective offices and

• An unnecessary increase in the taxing authority of city council.

The issue is, for the time being, a bi-partisan one, in that both Republicans and Democrats would like to have a workable charter. In the past, however, charter issues have not remained bi-partisan.

If the people of Whitehall approve the formation of a charter commission, those elected to serve will have one year in which to finish the job. The Spectator asked Mayor Paul Haytcher this week if the commission would be asked to try to complete the new charter in time for the November election.

"I would like to see them get it out in November," he answered. "Since the November election is classified as an "on-year election," we will only be required to pay printing costs of the ballots, without the usual fee for booth-workers and other expenses.

"Also, it will allow potential candidates for office in the 1967 election to find out the new requirements, if any, of their intended offices."

As to the type of charter he favors the mayor stated, "I would want one which would keep our basic governmental structure, but would improve the handling of certain items of business."

He cited as an example the special meeting of city council, called Monday night in order to meet a deadline for the investment of unassigned city funds. "Matters of this sort would be handled by the charter, and could be approved by council in regular session."

Haytcher said he had studied some 124 charters in use in Ohio, and noted that the municipalities which employ them were "more or less progressive" in nature because of the charters.

"I want our commission to look into these more successful charters when drawing up our own, rather than model it after the ones that have failed here."

In describing the necessity of a charter, the mayor cited the provision for the setting up of such plans of operation in the Ohio Constitution (Article XVIII — Section 8). "The people who framed the constitution realized the disadvantages of demanding that each municipality follow the same plan of government."

ROBERT N. SHAMANSKY
... Takes issue with answers

Primary Candidate Hits Congressman's Stand On Issues

In the Reynoldsburg and Southeast Rural-Urban editions of the Feb. 24 Spectator, incumbent Samuel L. Devine (R) and party-endorsed candidate George W. Twyford (D), of the 12th Congressional District (eastern half of Franklin County), compared views on seven major local, state and national issues. This week, The Spectator has asked Columbus lawyer Robert N. Shamansky who will face Twyford in the Democratic May 3 primary to state his views on the answers given by Congressman Devine. Questions and Devine's answers are printed as they originally appeared.

1. What is your opinion of the President's Viet Nam policy?

DEVINE — "Too many unqualified self-appointed 'experts' have too much to say without factual information. The Constitution places the responsibility with the President. Over 2,000 U.S. servicemen have been killed, over 170 missing, over 10,000 wounded, and Johnson's Defense Secretary, after three previous contrary statements now says 'We have stopped losing.' Preoccupation with creating an image in a dual peace-war concept, tailored to the demands of public opinion; making political rather that military judgments, demonstrates a badly confused if not an absence of foreign policy. MacArthur said 'There is no substitute for victory.'"

SHAMANSKY — "Devine rides off in two directions at once: he deplores losses on the one hand, and on the other hand quotes MarArthur about 'victory,' which could only mean unlimited losses because he has carefully avoided defining our objectives in Viet Nam. (A good military man always defines objectives first.) The President must exhibit the wisdom of Solomon in resisting pressures to abandon S.E. Asia to armed Communist subversion, while avoiding the quagmire of an unlimited ground war in Asia. He has prudently tried to follow the unglamorous but necessary middle course."

2. What do you think of the recent proposal to decrease Federal Funds to schools attended by students whose parents are Federally employed?

DEVINE — "The President continues to push hard on an endless number of 'butter' proposals that are certainly not urgent and pressing during this war emergency. He admits to a continuing deficit. His vast spending policies are causing him to reverse his 'tax-cut image,' and in fact repeal reductions in excise, and yes, increase income taxes shortly. In order to place the responsibility on the public, he talks of cuts in the emotion-packed area of children and education, such as the school-lunch program, impacted school areas under P.L. 815 and 874, land grant colleges, etc. Then, when the public resists, he will go to the tax increase route, by 'demand.'"

SHAMANSKY — "Since Devine has voted against or refused to vote for some 22 aid-to-education bills in the period from 1961 to 1966, (including National Defense Education Act, Equal Opportunity Act and Higher Edu-

PENTA-COUNTY PIONEER IN VOCATIONAL FIELD

By The Spectator's
JANE ROBINSON

Toledo, O.

Many of the Franklin County business and civic leaders who accompanied school officials on a tour of the Penta-County Vocational School near here came as doubting Thomases.

They recognized their school systems are failing in their responsibilities to the student who is not college-bound.

Yet they were not sold on the joint vocational school proposed by the local boards of education of Canal Winchester, Madison, Jefferson, Whitehall and Reynoldsburg as the answer to the problem.

After the Penta-County tour, they were believers, ready to return home "to spread the gospel."

The school at Perrysburg is the product of the cooperative efforts of 17 school districts in five northwestern counties.

Admittedly "a strange animal — a new breed to Ohio and to most of the nation," the school is located in the converted facilities of what was once Rossford Army Depot.

The 1100 students, all either juniors or seniors (next year's projected enrollment is 1,700) are offered training in six fields—those of agriculture, business education, distributive education, home economics, trade and industrial education and occupational work experience.

The tour presented clearly the answers to the two questions most often asked.

"Why can't these programs be offered by the individual schools?"

Petitions Filed Before Meeting

By The Spectator's
JIM BRUNEY

To most of the approximately 200 people who attended the open public meeting of Gahanna Village Council Monday night, the appeal would seem to have been one of "stop the petition."

But stopping the petition Monday night was out of the question.

It had already been filed at the office of the Franklin County Commissioners earlier that same day, bearing the signatures of Jefferson Township landowners seeking annexation to the city of Columbus.

The entire movement, since its beginning a few weeks ago, has been carried out quietly. The total number of signatures and exact boundaries of the area to be annexed were still not available at Spectator press-time.

The land is believed to be bound on the south by Broad-st (State Rt. 16), on the west by Taylor Station-rd and on the north by Morse-rd.

If annexation is approved by county commissioners, it would virtually make an island of the village of Gahanna.

Prominent local attorney Huntington Carlile was moderator for a panel made up of the mayor, council, engineer, master plan rep-

WILLIAM S. WHITE: This Seadog Runs A Taut Ship

WHITE

WASHINGTON — The highly secret Central Intelligence Agency is broadening its communication with Congress, with private American scientists and with American industry.

Almost, indeed, it might be said that CIA is for the first time gingerly entering ordinary American life — or as much of that ordinary life as its unavoidably clandestine basic cast can possibly permit.

This most-sensitive instrumentality of the American government in the cold war has not, of course, dropped and cannot drop its inherent cloak-and-dagger covering from some operations.

Within the limits of bedrock and unalterable security precautions, however, Admiral W. F. Raborn, its director, has reorganized its whole inner structure and approach to make use of outside skills and talents — and information — never before so widely available to CIA.

That Raborn, though a professional admiral, has become the chief of the CIA in order to liquidate some of its old passion for extreme apartness is not without its irony. When he took over "the agency" there was much expressed fear that with a "military mind" at its head it would more and more tend to operate in darker and darker alleys.

The simple truth is that this has not happened.

The intelligence community is a small and at heart a closed community, and the introduction into CIA of a seadog outsider undoubtedly did not sit well at first within the ranks. But the best information available now is that professional morale is high. This at any rate, is the estimate of men not involved in the agency but who have certain supervisory powers over it.

The admiral seems to have found a way of running a taut ship without making it also a martial one — and a ship, moreover, which can take on purely civilian passengers occasionally with no harm to them or to the professional crew.

One other fact is perhaps worth noting: Not once in Raborn's regime has CIA been caught napping in any major outbreak of trouble for us around the world.

Still, nobody is so naive as to suppose that the best possible work will totally free CIA of the instinctive skepticism and sometimes outright hostility of a public which has a healthy suspicion of secret establishments and an immense appetite for melodramatic spy fiction.

One of Raborn's central efforts is to reduce this skepticicism, this hostility, by what in CIA language would be called the optimum possible.—Copyright 1966 by United Features.

BARRY GOLDWATER: His Middle Name Is 'Strange'

GOLDWATER

Robert McNamara's army of press agents and apologists denies that any shortages exist in our defense supplies as a result of the Viet Nam war.

Under the rules of the Pentagon, as ruled high-handedly and absolutely by McNamara, it is never permissible to admit that the great leader has made a mistake. His middle name is Strange, but his press agents insist that it is Infallible.

But there are shortages. They have been inevitable since the first day McNamara took office as secretary of defense because of the nature of his character and the nature of his policies.

His policies center upon twin hubs: disarmament and double-entry bookkeeping. His apparent devotion to one-sided disarmament as a solution to the world's problems has led him to decree that development of new strategic weapon systems will be either halted outright or so slowed down as to be meaningless.

There are two ways to disarm. The noisy way is to destroy existing arms — he couldn't get away with that. The quiet way is just not to build any new ones —he is doing that successfully.

His double-entry bookkeeping raises other problems. To keep his budget pared down and to justify his public relations claims that he is the greatest economizer in history, the secretary has regularly cut into military stockpiles and reserves.

Ample evidence of how badly the secretary has stocked our defense pantry came out in the recent hearings on a special appropriations to finance the war in Viet Nam. Substantial sums were needed to buy altogether conventional arms, the sort that a prudent administrator would have on hand, the sort the military has wanted and needed all along.

Far deeper evidence exists in other hearings of the Congress. Despite McNamara's chorus of denial that he has permitted our stocks to dwindle dangerously, congressional probers have received detailed statements to the contrary.

The situation is one of long standing. As a horrible example, there was an instance last year in which our units in Europe could get only about one-fourth of the repair parts it had requested.

Beyond that, shortages in ammunition, uniforms and other items have been noted. Three solutions have come from McNamara. One is a crash program to make up for past mistakes, with all of the waste of such haste. Another is a juggling of plans so that stockpiles once thought inadequate are suddenly "blueprinted" into adequacy. Another is a simple shift of material from one place to another, to Viet Nam for instance, putting the goods wherever the spotlight may fall most brightly.

So far the secretary of defense seems to have got away without any truly searching probe. That fact may ultimately prove to be the weakest link of all in our chain of defense and in our hopes to deter Communist aggression against us for all time.—Copyright 1966, Los Angeles Times.

Going To The Dogs

The story in last week's Spectator, "Dealing In Dogs," brought a stranger kind of response that most spectial reports bring . . . a response of a confused public.

There are critics on both sides of the fence, of course. Those who believe in research and believe in using dogs for it and those who totally disagree with any kind of experimentation with animals.

But, in this case of Ohio State University using dogs for research (1400 of them a year), readers had trouble in coming up with any distinct criticism. They could see each other's points of views and most were unable to actually pin-point their precise feelings on the subject.

Why? Mainly because heretofore legislators had given little thought to dogs. There are few legal guidelines in existence today that say this is right for dogs or this is wrong.

Now the picture is changing. The Ohio Humane Federation is testing a case of a dog-dealer in Dayton hoping to get a district Court of Appeals decision that will regulate the sale of animals.

The most encouraging news comes from Washington where Ohio Congressman Robert Sweeney has just introduced a bill to regulate the transportation, sale and handling of dogs and cats used for research and experimentation.

This is a start toward Federal regulation. As Congressman Sweeney put it: "For too long now we have looked the other way and ignored this national problem in the name of research."

Sweeney feels it's "about time that the Department of Agriculture regulates the activities of animal buyers and supervises humane treatment of animals."

In short, Capitol Hill is finally going to the dogs. We'd chuckle at that line if the problem were not so serious.

Scissors, Anyone?

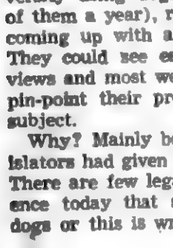
The Spectator notes with some amusement that State Finance Director Richard Krabach is campaigning to get the federal government to keep President Johnson's name off signs heralding construction projects in which federal funds are involved.

Krabach, who is notoriously generous with anything except money, offers in return to keep Governor Rhodes' name off the construction signs.

If Krabach gets his way the signs will simply say "Your tax dollars at work."

Now it probably never occurred to Krabach, but with such signs some unsuspecting taxpayers might get the impression that construction they see going on results from the $1-billion in bonds Rhodes got from the voters.

And has anyone noticed President Johnson cutting any ribbons on Ohio interstate highways, even though the federal government pays 90 percent of the costs?



No matter whose name is on the sign, you can bet who will be cutting the ribbons between now and the next election.

Yaba Daba Do-o-o!

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

With most all of the new television sets having UHF as standard equipment, Columbus and Central Ohio have a chance to enjoy an entirely new kind of TV viewing.

WOSU-TV 34 consistently shows programs in good taste on a wide variety of topics. Cultural, educational and broadening programs are the average, rather than the exception.

BEARDSHEAR

It is a treat of a night to sit in front of the TV and not be harassed by the inanities of commercial offerings. Many programs on the larger networks are, if not ridiculous, downright insulting to the intelligence. Personally, I am fed up with seeing long-haired male guitarists singing "Yey, Yey, Yey!" Perhaps it is of interest to the teen set, but not to me.

Then most situation comedies have all the plot and imagination of ninth-grade humor writings, with the notable exception of Dick Van Dyke whose mystique I have not yet pinpointed.

Westerns are the bane of TV existence. "Bonanza" seems to have captured the flavor of the West without the absurdities of most other programs, mainly because it tends to humanize its characters rather than presenting them as objects of worship.

By and large, Huntley and Brinkley do a creditable job with the news, but most local newscasters are hampered by numerous commercials and limited resources on national issues.

One cannot categorically call commercial TV a "Wasteland," as the severest critics do . . . but then, one cannot claim it is offering the best fare, either.

The answer, of course, is the rise of National Educational Television. Eggheads can now enjoy TV without an accompanying sense of guilt. And the viewer of regular TV has available at the flick of a dial a refreshing change of pace.

And a change of pace is very important. Repetition is deadening. With all due respect to WOSU-TV 34 which I enjoy, I turned off last Friday's opera in favor of Fred Flintstone.

They Said It

"Life is such a scramble today that we haven't the time to stop and appreciate what it means to be an American. Some of us don't even know what it means. Worst of all, some of us don't even care. The future of this nation is being seriously challenged at this moment and it's important that we're aware of the fact that our way of life is worth preserving. It's important to appreciate, at this critical time, the wonderful heritage we have been handed down by people whose patriotism was never hidden"—Wellington (Kan.) News.

"So Far, So Good"

MARQUIS CHILDS:

The Schwartz Affair

WASHINGTON — Because Washington loves political whodunits the real meaning of the Schwartz affair may be obscured by the thousands of words reporting plot and counterplot. In the perspective of American policy on travel to outlawed nations and on the admission of aliens with unwanted ideologies even the shabby method of removing Abba Schwartz as Director of the Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs is important only as a sign of which way the wind is blowing.

CHILDS

Schwartz was put in his post by President John F. Kennedy with the goal of restoring some of the traditional freedom to America's passport and visa policy. Out of the McCarthy era and thanks in large part to the McCarran Act the United States has come to look like a frightened elephant. Applicants for visas to visit the United States were put through an examination calculated to make them appear suspects admitted to the land of the free on grudging sufferance.

With his volatile energy and enthusiasm Schwartz set out to change this. In hundreds, if not thousands of cases where foreign visitors — scientists, artists, political figures — would have been kept out by the McCarran Act Schwartz called on the Attorney General to waive the provisions of the law.

The absurdity of barring anyone who has ever belonged to a Communist or Fascist party is well illustrated in the instance of Graham Greene, one of Britain's most distinguished novelists with a world-wide reputation. For a brief time in his student days Greene was a member of the Communist party. It took an Attorney General's waiver to get him a visa good for two weeks to visit New York during rehearsals of a play made from one of his novels.

In most of his efforts Schwartz was bucking bureaucrats in the State Department linked with forces in Congress bent on keeping the old rigid controls. This is one of those curious unofficial combines that deserves to be thoroughly investigated in the upcoming inquiry into the Schwartz affair.

Deputy Under Secretary of State for Administration William J. Crockett is credited with engineering the plan to abolish the Bureau of Consular Affairs in great secrecy months before it was surfaced, with Schwartz discovering at the last moment he had been reorganized out of office. One of the principal powers is Mrs. Frances Knight, head of the Passport Office, who reigns with seemingly unassailable authority as Secretaries of State come and go.

On Capitol Hill the power of the combine resides in the Internal Security subcommittee of the Senate and the Joint Committee on Immigration and Nationality Policy. Rep. Michael A. Feighan (D. Ohio), a staunch exclusionist in the passport and visa field, is chairman of the joint committee.

The important question for the future is whether this combine is now to determine policy in a field vital to America's standing in the free world. The atmosphere as the emotionalism over the war in Southeast Asia builds up may encourage a return to the old rigidities, thereby reversing all that Schwartz tried to do.

State Department administrators dealing with the moguls of Congress, who hold a penurious and sometimes vengeful hand on the purse strings, are often pushed to the wall. Chief among the moguls is Rep. John J. Rooney of New York. On the Appropriations Committee Rooney pares allowances for foreign service officers and rides herd on American embassies.

Shortly after the pulling and hauling over Schwartz's removal it was announced that American scholars desiring to go to Red China for study would have their passports properly validated. This is a token of little meaning, since China is unlikely to grant the necessary visas. There will be a very close watch on the direction policy now takes.—Copyright 1966 by United Features.

Letters To The Editor

It's The Barry's

To The Spectator:

I'm writing because I won five dollars from my husband and, if you'd like, I'll send you half of it.

He bet me that no paper in this city would ever print a columnist like Barry Goldwater. He told me that Goldwater was too controversial for tired Columbus and I bet him he was wrong.

I won. Thanks and keep up the good work

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

'More I See Of Men . . .'

To The Spectator:

I read with interest the article by John Auble, Jr. ("Dealing In Dogs," Mar. 16 Spectator). I was a little annoyed at Dr. Stilson's remark about the value of a dog's life compared to a human's. Perhaps Dr. Stilson has never lived alone with just a dog for company and has never been protected by dogs as I have.

I quote the statement made by Frederick the Great: "The more I see of men, the better I like my dog."

On Freeway Issue

To The Spectator:

I feel you were unduly harsh in your editorial supporting the new freeway (Mar. 9, Spectator). Must it be assumed that those people who still retain some human values and love of beauty in this day of creeping urbanization, are thinking only of their own best interests?

Looking At Forest

To The Spectator:

Your freeway editorial indicates a superficial examination of the situation. The thousands of dollars spent on planning to date are only peanuts when compared to the cost of the project, or the cost to the public for a wrong choice.

My primary concern is for good city planning, not for 20 years but for many more years. We are looking at the entire forest — not just the trees. We don't feel that the best trees need to be cut down to provide a path into the forest.

Mitzi Joyce Is Back

Entertainers who "come back" after an accident are well-known in show business circles. There's Jane Froman, Gypsy Markoff, Sammy Davis, Jr., to mention a few. In Columbus, appearing nightly at Howard Johnson's West, another entertainer is making a comeback after an accident. Her name is Mitzi Joyce, an accordionist for many years, now singing and playing Hammond Organ and piano.

Mitzi has been featured in several local spots and in such cities as Atlantic City, New York and Pittsburgh. After an accident in 1962 which forced her to give up the accordion, Mitzi made the switch to Hammond Organ and piano. Her many fans agree that she has the right musical touch. She gets many requests for a medley of Glenn Miller tunes, and her vocalizing of "Night Train" along with other old and new favorites will make you a regular fan.

Happy Noel(s) At Lincoln Lodge

There is an unusual, unpredictable, and versatile act currently playing in the cocktail lounge at Lincoln Lodge. The Noels, with Ruben performing on an electric guitar and Nancy keeping a hot tempo on drums. Vocally, they are great together and individually.

Nancy steals the show, not because she is the prettiest, but this gal sings and clowns like a seasoned star. She is a natural entertainer with personality to spare. Ruben is a handsome young man, who besides handling the guitar with ease, is a fine comic. Teamed with his partner, Nancy, they could be another Phil Ford and Mimi Hines.

The Noels offer a fast-paced act with some pretty fancy comedy, mixed with songs from light opera and the latest hit tunes.

Just one word of advice to those who catch their act on weekends. Be prepared to tolerate the big band sound in the back room. Friday and Saturday nights, Lincoln Lodge has dancing for its patrons. However the orchestra music can easily be heard in the cocktail lounge. This is frustrating to customers trying to enjoy the lounge act. Even though the Noels are good, it is hard for them to fight the competition and hold the attention of their audience.

Hans Conreid To Be At Cap Sunday, May 1

Celebrated actor Hans Conreid, who was scheduled to appear at Capital University Friday, Apr. 15, will instead perform Sunday, May 1 at 8:15 p.m.

The reason for the change is due to the continuing run of his play, "Absence of a Cello," which was presented at Ohio State University in February.

While at Capital, Conreid will give a lecture performance.

MAR 1966

Primary Candidate—

cation Act) he has demonstrated an unjustifiable callousness toward better education.

"As against that bleak record, Devine publicly keeps mentioning two 'yes' votes in 1961, one in 1962, and one in 1965. (He had a preliminary 'yes' vote for a weak House bill in 1963 on Vocational Education, but voted against the final, strengthened version.) With the passage of these new, larger aid-to-education bills, it became possible to modify previous programs."

3. Have you any criticism of the Federal Welfare programs? Can you offer any positive alternatives?

DEVINE — "Throwing billions of dollars bearing the federal label will not necessarily bury the problems. Bad, politically-oriented administration is clouding many of these programs. Employment will answer the overwhelming majority of the so-called poverty problems; accordingly I have consistently voted for and supported manpower retraining and vocational education legislation."

SHAMANSKY — "Considering the list of 'Against' votes mentioned above, I can only say that Devine must have believed that no one would check upon his fight against aid-to-education when he answered ' . . . I have consistently voted for and supported manpower retraining and vocational education legislation.' That statement is simply false.

"Devine's predictable votes AGAINST welfare measures (War-on-Poverty, Medicare, virtually all Aid-to-Education, Housing) demonstrate how completely negative he is. He has no alternatives, except to do nothing.

"Devine believes that 'Employment will answer the overwhelming majority of the so-called poverty problems . . . ' (His injection of 'so-called' would indicate he doubts that poverty problems exist. I'd be happy to take him around and show him block after block of poverty problems in Columbus.) The difficulty is that his voting record demonstrates that he is an economic illiterate without the slightest comprehension of how a modern economy operates to provide employment.

"Problems in Franklin County — is in other cities where most of America's people live — will grow and grow as more and more people jam in together. To keep our cities decent places in which to live, we must use our great wealth, intelligence and administrative skill to lick our problems, including welfare."

4. How effective is our current foreign aid program?

DEVINE—"For whom? We pour over $1000,000,000,000 into these international give-away programs, and in return we have our libraries pillaged, embassies burned, flag spat upon and trampled, and are counselled: 'Yankee Go Home' . . . The free world recipients of our aid are rendering pitifully small assistance in the Viet Nam crisis, and many continuing shipping and trading with the enemy. By and large, the program is a failure."

SHAMANSKY — "To appreciate any comment by Mr. Devine in the area of foreign affairs, one must be aware that he is as close to a modern day isolationist as we have. This is shown by his 1959 voting record of opposing President Eisenhower on 67 percent of key foreign policy votes, while the House Republicans averaged only 26 percent in opposing. In 1960 on key votes he opposed President Eisenhower on foreign policy issues 91 percent of the time. Needless to say, he has continued to oppose subsequent presidents on foreign policy issued by large percentages. However, the give-away on his voting record on these issues is that his record exceeds in blind opposition the records of the Ohio Republican Delegation and the Republican Delegation in the House generally.

"In the more than 20 years since World War II, our foreign aid program has been generally effective. It is still effective; it needs to be changed as conditions change; and it is being changed. Although it will be with us for some time to come, it is growing smaller and smaller, and will emphasize economic rather than military programs and will be on a loan rather than grant basis."

5. Where do you stand on the question of flouridation?

DEVINE — "This is a local problem to be determined on a local level, not another area for Federal intervention."

SHAMANSKY — "Mr. Devine bravely refuses to take a stand in answering that question. Can he really be unaware of the weight a Congressman can bring to bear on the conscience of a community on issues of this sort? There is no valid medical reason to oppose fluoridation, and every reason to support it — namely, the health of our children."

6. Are you for or against the repeal of Section 14-B of the Taft-Hartley Law?

DEVINE — "I opposed and voted against repeal of 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Law. The issue involved here is whether the several States may retain the right, freedom of choice, to determine whether their people or legislatures want a compulsory union membership or 'right to work' laws. The people in Ohio made their choice in 1958. Nineteen other States made the opposite choice, but the key issue is that they had the right to make the choice, and exercised it. Repeal of 14(b) would erase the State laws on the subject and deny the freedom of choice."

SHAMANSKY — "Mr. Devine gives a straight forward description of his position favoring retention of 14-B. I oppose retention of 14-B, because of its undeniable effect in helping cheap labor states in the South and elsewhere to steal industry away from Ohio."

7. What are your feelings concerning the reapportionment of the State of Ohio?

DEVINE — "This has already been done and the question is moot unless there is a Constitutional Amendment. By and large, however, I don't look for too much favor on big-city political machine control of either branch of our State Legislative bodies, and I believe you will find that will happen as a result of the recent reapportionment."

SHAMANSKY — "Devine says that the question is moot unless there is a constitutional amendment. He forgets, apparently, that Senator Dirksen, the Republican leader in the Senate, is leading just such a fight. Is Devine going to take no stand on that, too? Or is he going to oppose One-Man, One-Vote as he did during the 1964 session when he voted to bar Federal court jurisdiction on matters dealing with state legislative reapportionment? Devine betrays his nostalgia for the recent bad days when the state legislatures could be controlled by usually Republican political machines representing acreage rather than city and suburban legislators representing people. (These city and suburban legislators just might happen to be Democrats.)

"With respect to the reapportionment of the Ohio Legislature, it is long overdue, even if some people still have some reservations about particular applications of reapportionment."

Petitions—

resentative, planning and zoning committee, law director, board of education and CIC (Community Improvement Corporation).

Albert Robey, president of the board of trustees of the CIC, began the meeting with a description of Gahanna's potential development. He outlined the future of the community in terms of population and area growth, sewage and water facilities, school system, tax rates, fire protection and industrial development sites.

This was followed by a question-and-answer session, in which members of the audience directed questions to the moderator, who called upon those panelists he thought most qualified to answer.

Some hostility toward Gahanna was expressed in questions from the audience early in the session. These diminished once the position of the village in this matter was established, most ably by Gahanna Law Director Ben Clark, who said, "We are not aggressive about annexing parts of the township . . . we were put on the defensive by the action of resident freeholders in the area."

Basic allegiance to the village of Gahanna by most of those present was evidenced by the loud applause following one resident's statement:

"If it comes to a choice between Gahanna and Columbus, I'll annex to Gahanna, but I'm a Jefferson Township resident, intend to stay that way and I think anyone who doesn't is a turncoat."

When confronted after the meeting with the fact that the petition had been filed, one spokesman for the community said, "'That's the trouble with a thing like this—once they get the petition in, there's nothing to do but wait until the county commissioners hearing and hope you have the ammunition to fight it.

"And," he added, "we most certainly intend to fight it."

Wins Contest

A Gahanna girl was winner in the recent northeast Franklin County spelling contest held at Jefferson Intermediate School, Gahanna. School districts participating were Dublin, New Albany, Mifflin and Jefferson Local.

Winner of the contest was Robin Oakley, 12, a sixth-grader at Jefferson Elementary and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Oakley, 221 Jamesrd, Gahanna.

Twenty-one students from the above districts will compete with pupils from other Franklin County schools on Mar. 25 at the State Fairgrounds. Ten winners from that contest will go on to the Central Ohio Finals May 7.

Penta-County—

"Just what kinds of teenagers would be admitted to such a school?"

One look at the breadth of the program and the hundreds of thousands of dollars of equipment left little doubt that any one school could imitate the instruction offered.

For example; the trades and industrial area included a complete school of cosmetology, a job printing shop, an industrial electronics department, a body shop, an auto mechanics school, a dental laboratory, and a machine shop with heavy manufacturing equipment.

As to the question of what kind of students are offered this training, the answer is the same as to "What kind of students are in the conventional high school?"

All kinds—with a great range of ability and motivation.

Statistics indicate that students graduating with craftsman and technician status will earn from $7,000 to $9,000 a year. This is from $3,000 to $4,000 more than the expected earnings of a student who ends his education with a high school diploma without vocational training.

The Penta-County program developed when the fact that 81 percent of Ohio's secondary school students are enrolled in a college preparatory type program leading to a profession in which only seven percent of the population actually works.

When voters of the five Franklin County school districts were asked to support a similar proposal at the November election, the necessary votes could not be mustered.

In May, the taxpayers will again be asked to enter into a partnership with the Federal government (matching funds are available) to offer the type of education that will equip the high school graduate with saleable know-how.

It will cost the taxpayer two mills to provide this education, but this millage provides a dividend.

With the individual schools relieved of the responsibility of educating an estimated 25 percent of the juniors and seniors in the district, the demands for additional local facilities will be pared.

Surprising Warriors Loom As City's Cinder 'Dark Horse'

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Eastmoor's cindermen could turn a few heads came City League Meet time (May 17) and no one would be more surprised than Warrior coach Vince Cahill.

The E-M thins already started tongues wagging by finishing second only to East (among CL competitors) at the recent Indoor track meet.

"THIS GROUP has really surprised me so far this spring," Cahill says. "I expected very little until we got a little more experience.

"We've actually got less talent than we've had in the past and yet we're competing well in some areas where I expected us to be weak," Cahill concluded.

Cahill's pleasant surprise is easy to understand when you check his '65 losses..

INCLUDED were Gary Knaul, Tom Finley and Lennie Willis (1:55.6 in 880)—"the three best distance men we've ever had at Eastmoor."

Also missing is Ron Eiland, the Warriors' top scorer for two seasons who did just about everything—more specifically, hurdled, high and broad jumped.

But eight returning vets—including a pair of winners at the Indoor Meet—provide a strong nucleus for what Cahill tabs "a lot of good sophomores."

LEADING the lettermen are seniors Norwood Thomas and Doug Rodibaugh.

Thomas, who Cahill tabs as one of top quartermilers in the area, placed third in his specialty at the Indoor outing (51.8) after racing to a first in the 600-yd. run (1:10.1). Thomas turned in a 51.3 top 440 last spring.

Rodibaugh took the low hurdle event (:70 yds. in 8.4) at the meet but is best in the highs, according to coach Cahill.

OTHER EASTMOOR vets include seniors Steve Gutridge (shot, discus), Wyman Hawkins (broad, high jumps and sprints), John Mooney (sprints) and Jerry Speakman (shot, discus).

Junior returnees find sprinter Dwight Cartier and shot puter Tom DeMollet (hits around 48'), the latter the fourth place finisher at the Indoor competition.

Junior Pete Prendergast, E-M's top cross-country man last fall, and soph Dave Lewis comprise the Warriors' hope for distance run success.

CAHILL ALSO looks for big things from sophomore Jack Parry (shot, discus, hurdles).

"We got no outstanding sprinter but there are four or five boys who are capable of beating quite a few opponents," Cahill said.

Things do look more promising for that City Meet, however, where E-M finished in the second division last season.

CAHILL ISN'T ready yet to include his Warriors among the favorites, "It looks right now like a toss-up between East and an improved West squad. South is strong but doesn't have the balance to knock off the other two."

OTHER promising Warrior thins this spring include: Ted Coe, Joel Voneida, Tom Evans, Bob Farney, Olaf Refsell, Chris Kolsciuk and Bob Dull (distance events); Annual Collins, Bob Bainter, Jim Hunnicut and Jack Stork (hurdles).

Jim Kelley, Phil Starks, Gary Blumenthal, Danny Black and Steve Trout (sprints); Chris Lambrecht, Bill Wood and Harry Bowshier (weights).

Dave Marburger and Steve Purcell (440); Greg Caldwell and Ray Markwood (high jump), Mike Keim and Chuck Petty (pole vault) and John Crawford (broad jump).

Lion Thins A-OK

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Ed Reary isn't one to guard his optimism about his squad's 1966 track prospects.

But, with three straight Mid-Eight cinder titles under his belt and the prospects for running that string to four bright, it's not too difficult for the Gahanna mentor to look on the sunny side.

WITH 11 letter winners returning, the Lions are pretty much in the driver's seat but Reary wasn't passed over by the graduation scythe.

Gone is do-everything-well standout Bob Glover, Reary's top '65 sprinter and the state's broad jump champ at 23'8".

Also missing are Gahanna's top three pole vaulters—Mike Sullivan, Mike Kelner and Terry Robb (the latter third at the '65 Ohio Classic with a 13'8" effort).

ELIGIBLE but unavailable is the Lions' top miler last year—Bill Miller, sidelined with a leg injury.

But Reary, whose Lions closed in the top five category of the '65 District, isn't hurting.

Top three returnees look like captain and hurdler Mike Bokros, who helped the Lions to a fourth at the recent Indoor Meet at OSU with a winning 8.9 in the 70-yd. highs, and a pair of defending Mid-Eight champs—miler Tim Horn (4:35) and shot puter Nelson Bobb (51 ft.).

REARY IS blessed with an excellent crop of sophomores including veteran 880-men Mike Haninger and Al Strickling (both 2:05 men).

In fact, the Lion mentor envisions an all-soph 880 relay lineup (Bob Bay, Dan Pullen, Tony Leek, Charlie Freeman and Ron Goldhardt).

Adding strength and depth to the distance events are milers Lee Jones and John Huston and half-milers Bill Price, Jim Summerfield, Gary Brandon, Bill Hines and Bill Goerss.

IN THE new two-mile relay event, Reary won't be caught short either. Not with cross-country lettermen

Hartley, W-R Vet-Studded; Hitting Only Question Mark

By BOB WHITMAN

Anyone remembering the Central Catholic League football race will have an idea of how the CCL pennant drive shapes up in baseball this spring. Pre-season favorites are almost non-existent as anyone of the four members could tote home the trophy.

Each of the Catholic mentors . . . Watterson's Ron Shay, Ready's Bud Trapp and DeSales' first year man Bob Triano . . .call the race an interesting one with all four in contention.

HARTLEY'S 28-year coaching veteran (starting his second at the Hawk helm after * at St. Charles) Jack Ryan compared the baseball race to the football struggle. He also added that "with a little luck . . . a little rain late in the game when we are aread,, we will have a chance."

The Hawks (14-11 last season, losing nine of the 11 by one run) chances are pinned on a pair of senior sparklers . . . Dave Rogers ad Scott French, a couple of hard-throwing pitchers who accounted for all 14 Hawk wins last spring and only six defeats.

Besides that pitching duo, Ryan has five other letter winners at valuable positions. John Derrer, a steady second sacker, is returning along with Steve McGrew in the infield and Jerry McNenemy, John Gallick and Joe Gatto are back in the outfield.

Gallick is also fighting with Mike Cunningham for the first base slot.

NEWCOMERS Jesus Mato and Dan Moore are battling each other for the shortstop post.

Also joining the Hartley ranks are four Aquinas letter winners — Nick Cenci, Ron Jaketic, Bongo Jander and Jody Connors.

Missing from last year's team is power-hitter (.465) Steve McLaughlin.

"Hitting is going to be the biggest problem," Ryan said, "we will be good defensively and will have a lot of experience, but that hitting has got to improve.

To round out the Hawk forces, Chuck Drake has the inside track for the catching slot and Mike Cornutte, Joe Whitlatch, Tim Murray and Jaketic are figured on to back up the pitching strong boys.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals will be received by the Clerk of the Board of Education of the Reynoldsburg Local School District at his office until 12:00 Noon (EST), April 6, 1966, for the furnishing of all labor, equipment and materials necessary to fully execute the plans and specifications for the construction of Reynoldsburg Senior High School Additions and Remodeling as prepared by Joseph Baker and Associates, Architects, 180 Hudson Avenue, Newark, Ohio, which documents will be on file at the office of the Architect, at the plan rooms of the F. W. Dodge Corporation and Builders Exchange, Columbus, Ohio, and at the office of the Clerk. They are open to public inspection during all reasonable office hours until the time fixed for the closing of bids. At that time the bids will be publicly opened, read and tabulated.

A copy of plans and specifications for individual use may be secured at the office of the Architect upon the deposit of $40 cash. All plans and specifications must be returned to the Architect within seven days after the Bid Date and, if they are in good order, a full refund of the deposit, minus any shipping costs, will be made to all who submit a Bonded Bid. For all others, and for extra sets a refund of $30 will be made. Selected sheets are available at cost of $2 each, not refundable.

Separate proposals will be received for the General, the Electrical, the Plumbing, and the Heating and Ventilating Contracts, although combined bids will be considered. Any contractor submitting a proposal combining bids for more than one contract in one bid shall also enter his bid for each of the contracts in the space provided on the proposal form.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid bond or a certified check payable to the Board of Education in the amount not less than ten percent (10%) of the amount of all items bid upon. Bidders agree that the check or bond shall become the absolute property of the said Board of Education in lieu of damages if the bidder refuses, fails or neglects to enter into a contract and furnish the required one hundred percent (100%) Contract Bond within ten days after notice of acceptance of his proposal. A satisfactory Performance and Payment Bond will be required, guaranteeing the performance of the work and payment of all bills. No bid may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids for at least thirty (30) days. The Owner reserves the right to waive informalities in the bidding. Time of completion shall be a valid consideration in determining lowest and best bid.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Published by the order of the Board of Education.

Ten Vets, Frosh Quartet Are Ram Sparkplugs In Metro Cinder Debut

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Although Whitehall track mentor Pat McMillen (and most other loop coaches) list Franklin Heights as the team to beat at the Metropolitan League's initial cinder meet (May 18, at Arlington), Pat's Ram runners could pull a dandy of a surprise.

For besides 10 returning lettermen, Whitehall should uncover three or four of the top frosh runners in the area this spring.

LIKE EVERYONE else, McMillen wasn't untouched by graduation last summer with shot put standout Mike Boyer (53'9") and 880 specialist Ed Young (1:58.9) hangin' up the spikes.

But Whitehall has a good start on bettering its '65 mark with seniors Rick Foltz (hurdles, broad jump) and John Bankes (high jump, distance events) showing the way.

That pair is all McMillen will shed from this year's crop since junior vets Steve Beery (pole vault, 12' in '65), Randy Nichols (440, hurdles), Count Fuller (hurdles, 440, broad jump, 22' in '65), Gary Hunter (sprints), Lewis Anderson (hurdles, sprints) and Bill Anderson (distance) all back next season.

AND BACK for two more tries after this season is soph distance specialist Gary Turner.

Another junior letterman —Dave Mowrer—paces a not-so-crippled field squad, bringing back his 47 ft. prowess in the shot department.

Scott Graeler and Jim Cooper add depth to the shot and discus events as does Jim Heaton (discus).

ANOTHER top field prospect will be soph pole vaulter Dave Nichols who'll back up Beery.

McMillen is especially looking forward to the 440 event where Whitehall has four top-notch runners in Randy Nichols, Fuller, Hunter and Lewis Anderson—all capable of hitting the :52 mark.

But the Ram coach is watching, waiting and hoping for some quick seasoning from that quartet of impressive frosh prospects.

THAT FOURSOME includes Gary King, Whitehall's top cross-country runner last fall who McMillen feels should deliver a two-mile finish in 10:25.

Danny Reid, who turned in a 2:15 half-mile last spring as an eighth grader, might also be ticketed for mile duty.

Another top frosh is Mike Gillespie, another top 440 man and high jumper (McMillen looks for a four inch jump from 5'6" achieved last season).

COMPLETING his list of good-looking frosh is Perry Linn, a transfer from Seattle, Wash., who claimed a :54 440 last spring in Junior High competition.

McMillen admits that things look even brighter for the future with upcoming Rams fielding an unbeaten Junior High season last spring.

"And most of those were seventh graders," McMillen concluded.

PASSING FANCY

EAST'S JOHN Fraser (taking spill) fired a perfect pass to teammate Vance Carr (foreground) at Saturday's Regional finals tilt with Lancaster but the Tiger banged into a pair of Gale defenders in the process. Carr was charged with an offensive violation and Lancaster took possession. Gaines eliminated Bengals, 63-51.

JUNIOR RAIDERS WIN CAGE TITLE

Jewish Center Sports Roundup

Harris Construction and Richfield Construction share the first place position in the second round, remaining undefeated.

Richfield Construction defeated Hoffman Container.

Bob Kramer with 12 and Wayne Clayman with 11 were the high scoring men for Richfield Construction. Hoffman Container was led by Todd Silberman and Larry Chambers who scored 15 and 10 points respectively.

Harris Construction won its fourth straight game by defeating Leopold Construction.

Harris was led by Mike Klein and Steve Handler who scored 19 and 12 points respectively. Howard Katz hit for 11 and Jeff Finke for 10 in a losing cause.

Easten Shoes won its first game in the second round from Art Lithograph.

Gurwin Realty suffered its first defeat of this year at the hands of a determined Baker Construction ball club.

Baker's victory was a result of a tremendous team effort highlighted by the spectacular performance of Howard Rosenthal who scored 23 points. The losers were led by Billy Karmia and Tony Gurvis who scored 20 and 12 points respectively.

Gilbert Shoes defeated Reliable Truck. Gilbert Shoes had their high scoring man in Mike Staub who hit for 20, as the losers were carried by Marc Peterman and Jan Feinberg who scored 8 points each.

The battle for the championship is open as Marysville Steel and K Beck Furniture won their games against Berwick Builders and Jewel Builders respectively in 5th Grade Pioneer League action.

Give care, give hope, give to Easter Seals.

Gahanna—

Larry Schwade, Mike Herb and Ted Carey out this spring.

Despite the fact that his biggest losses came in the field department, Reary looks well stocked there also.

Letterman Larry Barth and Doug Young look set at the broad jump (19'6") with vet Fred Browning set for discus duty (145').

VETERAN high jumpers John Marsch and Chuck Bosse (both 6') have returned as has another letterman Mike Sullivan — to the pole vault event.

Reary also has letter winner Ronnie Doran (10.4) back in Glover's old 100 haunt.

Other top cinder prospects include: soph Bruce Baker (hurdles), Mike Browning (discus), Carl Clark (broad jump), Mike Cane and Jim Foder (high jumpers) and Mike Foley, Bob Lawhead and Don McCarthy (pole vault).

REARY SEES a strong Mid-Eight field with Hilliard most likely as Gahanna's top competition.

District-wise, the Lion mentor figures Arlington, Newark and East. Gahanna will get an opportunity to test all three of the former squads Apr. 26 at the Newark Indoor Relays (at Denison Fieldhouse).

Hartley—

nut Ridge's 9-9 season last spring and is going to have to rely on pitching and fielding also because, "we are not going to hit too well."

"We have a young inexperienced team except for the pitchers," Cordle added.

FOUR OF THE eight returnees are hurlers as Gary Van Winkle, Ron Remy, Joe Goldhammer, and Dennis Anderson will handle the mound duties.

Others back are Charley Crook (first base), Jim Kinser (shortstop), Rick Houchen (third baseman) and Jay Hill (outfield).

Cordle figures on some help coming from a pair of sophomores Roger McElory and Phil Sachs and junior Ronnie Fish.

Kinser led the returning lettermen in hitting last year with a .260 mark and Houchen was "always on base with a .230 average and leader in walks."

Lefthander Crook will aid the pitching staff with some relief performances this year as last season he won three of the nine and saved three others.

HAVE YOU HAD YOUR 1,000 MILE CHECKUP?
A woman in New York City recently surprised herself and everybody else. She was curious to know how long it would take her to walk 1,000 miles in the course of her ordinary housewife life. So, she donned a pedometer to measure it for her. She found that she averaged 23 miles a day and completed her 1,000 mile hike in just a little more than 43 days. If you are anything like as busy as she is no wonder you are exhausted at the end of the day And no wonder you need a checkup day at our salon regularly. Honestly now! It doesn't make sense to give more time to the care and beauty of your toaster or your refrigerator than you do to yourself.. does it?

WE'RE WEARING BEAUTY SPOTS AGAIN!
For a really gala occasion we recommend pasting a sequin brilliant just off the eyebrow or on the cheek. For ordinary wear a tiny square or circle of velvet fastened with a touch of Guiche can be interesting.

LIVE WIRE

LIVE WIRE solves problems and cuts red tape. It gets answers, investigates, complains and stands up for your rights. Call LIVE WIRE at BR. 4-1155 from 1 to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Or, write LIVE WIRE, The Spectator, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, O.

BR. 4-1155

Is there still an American Nazi Party in the United States and, if so, where is the headquarters located?—Frank Brinda, 4149 Andrus-av.

As far as LIVE WIRE can tell, Frank, there is. According to this year's Washington, D. C. telephone directory, an American Nazi Party is listed at 928 N. Randolph-st, Arlington, Va.

A neighbor just moved next door. She's from Greece and cannot speak English. Is there any Greek-speaking organizations in Columbus?—Leona Triner, 38 N. Brinker.

There are two, however LIVE WIRE could not determine how active they were. One is the Greek-American Progress Association headed by Mrs. George K. Lias, 4273 Olentangy River-rd. The other is the Greek Orthodox Ladies Philoptochos Society. The president is Mrs. George Crist, 2239 W. Broad-st.

Your LIVE WIRE must be disconnected. Haven't you guys heard that it's Spring? Why show us pictures of freeways and sewer plants in your paper when there are prettier things to photograph now that the lilacs are in bloom? — Scenery Lover, West Jefferson.

Gracious! Spring fever must have hit our photogs. Hope this shot remedies it — it's the prettiest Spring scenery we could find.

We live behind Jerry's Drive Inn (Olentangy River-rd) and we're constantly bothered by tire-squealers there. I realize it's private property, but what can a citizen do to correct something like this? —Harassed, Rainbow Apartments.

A LIVE WIRE call to Dick Sensenbrenner at City Hall put the situation into the hands of the Juvenile Bureau which has been directed to investigate the matter. Patrolmen will watch the area and grab any who squeal out onto a city street. One method you might try is getting together a neighborhood group to approach the management with your problem. Chances are, if it's handled right, he'll cooperate with you.

'Newshounds' Cover Farm At Lazarus

(Editor's Note: You never know where budding journalists are growing. The Spectator was pleased Monday to receive a packet of stories written by third-grade students at Cassingham Elementary School in Bexley and second grade students at North Franklin who recently took a field trip to the animal farm at the F & R Lazarus Co. Their stories, complete with by-lines, appear herewith as Spectator exclusives):

Over 100 animals are in the department store's Sixth Floor Assembly Center through Apr. 2.

She Liked The Burro

By MOLLY GARDNER
Cassingham School

My class and I went to Lazarus. I took my camera and took some pictures. My favorite animal was a burro. He was nice and brown and chubby.

I liked the fox. He was asleep and was a nice brownish red.

The ducks were yellow and there was a turkey. He had colorful feathers. Then we came to the kangaroo. He got up and hopped for us. There were some goats we called Billy goats gruff. There was a baby goat. There were some lambs and their mother.

I liked the monkeys. They were playing, fighting and eating. The rabbits were in a pen with the ducks and chickens. There was a guinea pig with them. I enjoyed this trip. Thank you, Mrs. Tate.

She Had Favorites

By CHERYL LIEBERT
Cassingham School

My class went to the Lazarus baby animal farm.

I think the best animals there were the ducks, bunnies, guinea pigs and chicks.

He's A Falcon Fan

BY MIKE LANE
North Franklin

I am happy that I went to the Baby Animal Farm at Lazarus. I liked the falcon and the monkeys.

Monkey Is 'Swinging'

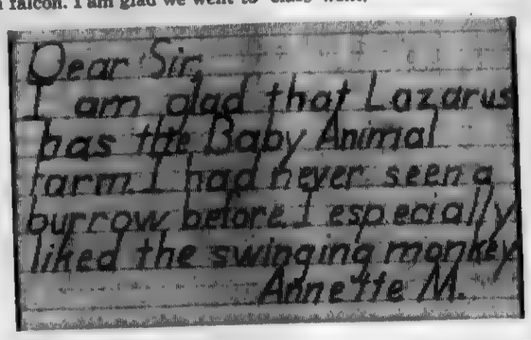
By DAVID NEW
North Franklin

I liked the fox, kangaroo, snowow(?), geese, lambs and the swinging monkey.

I had never seen a snowow and a falcon.

She Sees A Big Turkey

By VICKI
North Franklin



I was glad to see the baby monkey and the fox.

I like to go to Lazarus. I had never seen a big turkey or a falcon. I am glad we went to see the Baby Animal Farm at Lazarus.

He Just Had Fun

By PHILIP PETERS
Cassingham School

Lazarus' baby animal farm was fun. Our Bexley school class went.

Dear Sir,
I am glad that Lazarus has the Baby Animal farm I had never seen a burrow before I especially liked the swinging monkey

Ground Broken For $1 - Million Royal Crown Cola Bottling Plant

By The Spectator's JIM SIMPSON

Ground was broken Tuesday morning for the new $1-million Royal Crown Cola Bottling plant on Stelzer-rd.

Headed by Harold Schottenstein, the family operation consists of Harold, Alvin and Calvin — all actively engaged in the bottling and distribution of Royal Crown, Cinch and other similar soft drinks authorized under the familiar name of Canada Dry.

The new plant, with its parking and loading areas, will occupy 10 acres of the 70 acres now owned by the holding company under the name of Schott Enterprises, Inc.

The architectural plans were made in the offices of Harold Schofield, a Gahanna architect, under the supervision of Paul Mullins.

The engineering layout of the entire property was done by Edward Maddy, an associate of the engineering firm of Evans, Mechwart, Hambleton and Tilton of Gahanna.

Footing excavations were made by Dedger Jones, an independent steel fabricator who has been tentatively awarded the erection of the steel work at the site.

A fill had been previously made under the supervision of Alvin Schottenstein from local materials. Foundation masonry was contracted and built by Clyde Wright, a masonry contractor.

Today there are over 100 employes at the old Royal Crown plant on E. Livingston under the supervision of Elmer Born, Ohio's ablest soft-drink mixologist.

Mrs. Alice Harris is the office manager for the company while Robert Aldredge is the recognized creator of Royal Crown signs.

Finance Man Refutes Banker

John Advent, public relations director for Capital Finance, which operates in 18 states, has taken issue with O. E. Anderson, executive manager of the Ohio Bankers Association, headquartered in Columbus.

Anderson, in an article in The Spectator, said "the attempt by the Ohio General Assembly in 1965 to regulate and control a vicious second mortgage lending racket is backfiring into an even greater problem for Ohioans, thanks to a 'loophole' in the law being used by some representatives of the small loan industry."

Anderson not only bombed the small loan industry, but swung at Attorney General William Saxbe and reproached the 107th General Assembly.,

Basically, Anderson's wrath stems from a new law passed by the last session of the legislature which was intended to curb the operations of sharpshooters in the second mortgage field. This it did. But it went further. It also gave small loan companies additional lending powers. Anderson objects to this.

The law seemingly now permits corporations affiliated with small loan companies to make loans on personal property for periods of up to five years, at total interest and service charges and in amounts well above those permitted under the small loan law itself.

A point by point account of Anderson's charges is: 1. that small loan firms could collect some $4,000 in interest and other charges on a $5,000 loan for five years.

To this, Advent replied "the law specifies $8 add-on interest. Any school kid knows that if you borrow $5,000 at $8 add-on, this comes out to $400. This, multiplied by five years is $2,000, not the inaccurate figure of $4,000. The $2,000 charge is a reasonable rate for $5,000 at this maturity. It is the same rate charged by banks."

The second of Anderson's charges claims the new law could result in "so much high cost over-lending to persons already overburdened with debt as to bring on an unparalleled wave of personal bankruptcies."

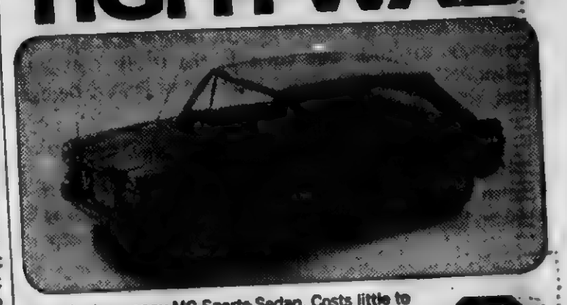
To this, Advent replied "banks are concerned because the new law permits small loan companies to cut into the lucrative consumer loan business. So far, more than 800 second mortgage firms have been issued licenses by the state. These firms have millions of dollars invested in this new lending field.

"This charge of increasing bankruptcy with this law is ridiculous. If anything it will help stave off potential bankruptcy. This law ended a vicious second mortgage lending racket. The reason people patronized the racket was because they could not get help elsewhere. If we are doing any business under this (law), it is because the people we are helping were not encouraged elsewhere. We do not — nor do the banks — knowingly lend money to potential bankrupts. We're in the business of making money by lending money. We seek the best credit risks possible."

Advent concluded with "it may require considerable convincing to persuade the next legislature it made a mistake, especially since:

• Anderson and the Ohio Bankers Association urged passage of the second mortgage bill and even helped write some of the provisions.

• The Attorney General said it was perfectly legal, and



• The Better Business Bureau fought for its passage."

Help Me Deliver Another Knockout Punch!

This is Batman speaking . . .

I was very happy to meet a number of you Columbus citizens last Friday when I personally distributed my record, "The Batman Theme," to those who have helped me fight the "Bleacher."

We tried to get to all the homes, but the Batmobile developed mechanical trouble — probably the work of the "Mechanic Maniac."

I'll be continuing my rounds each day this week so, if you've sent in your coloring entry with a $3.50 subscription to the official Batman Spectator I'll be seeing you soon!

This fourth contest ends at midnight, Mar. 29, so hurry. Help me deliver this knock-out punch.

Mail all entries to: The Batman Spectator, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, O.

And, watch for your name in my official Batman column. Now a word from Robin, the Boy Wonder:

"Holy, jumpin' Spectator, Batman. The Bleacher is weakening and, thanks to the fine crimefighting citizens of Columbus, we'll win in our fight against evil."

Thank you, Boy Wonder.

We want to hear from you. Remember, the 45 rpm goes to you automatically (delivered by me, in person) to those who subscribe. If you're already a faithful Batman Spectator reader, then you must send in a subscription anyway and it will continue for one year after your present subscription expires.

The winner of each week's contest gets a LP album of select Bat tunes.

Zap! Crunch! Biff! Bam!

OFFICIAL BATMAN CRIME-FIGHTING SPECTATOR SUBSCRIPTION

Lynch Claims Administration Is Sabotaging Medicare Plan

Paul J. Lynch, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, indicated this week that Ohio's Republican administration is "deliberately sabotaging" Medicare.

According to Lynch, career social workers have privately admitted they have been told to go slow on pushing medicare among the aid-to-the-aged recipients.

"The state has done so little in this field that it had been characterized as 'a deliberate policy of discouragement' by one welfare official," Lynch tells the Spectator.

Lynch cited a recent front-page story in an afternoon daily newspaper in Columbus which was headlined, "One Million Senior Citizens reject Medicare Program." The candidate says that the headline should have read: "Ohio's Republican State Administration Deliberately Sabotages Medicare."

The lieutenant governor hopeful feels that Ohio is already low in the assistance granted to those who draw aid-for-the-aged support.

"It had been expected that Medicare would be especially helpful to them since they have so little to live on without considering medical expenses," Lynch said.

Lynch says he also feels that the state and local news media have failed to push Medicare. He claims it will result in more and more persons going without basic medical services; more charity cases; more state taxes and local charity drives to pick-up, bills that could've been paid through the hospitalization plan.

"The complete lack of concern evidenced by Ohio's department of Welfare can be characterized as nothing less than criminal," Lynch theorized.

"Medicare is a fact despite the opposition of the radical right. Those newspapers and public officials who continue to oppose it fight their battle on the editorial pages and the political platforms rather than by depriving those in need by sabotaging what is now available as a matter of right and need."

PROCLAIMS POISON PREVENTION WEEK

COLUMBUS MAYOR M. E. Sensenbrenner seans a book on poison control shortly before he affixed his named to a proclamation making Mar. 20-26 Poison Prevention Week. Peterson, president of the Central Ohio Academy of Pharmacy.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Reuter To Address Conference

Featured speaker at the eighth annual Agricultural Marketing Conference at The Ohio State University will be Richard Rueter, assistant secretary of state and director of the Food-for-Peace Program for the Department of State.

The Mar. 29 conference will be highlighted with Reuter's talk on "The Challenge of Food and Population." General theme for the event is "Exploring Ohio's Agricultural Production to a Hungry World," according to Charles Ingraham, Extension specialist in agricultural business management and conference chairman.

COSI Selects New Staffers

Appointment of two new staff members at the Center of Science and Industry, 280 E. Broad-st, has been announced by S. N. Hallock, COSI director. Both men are currently working on the installation of the "Triumph of Man" exhibit the center received from the New York World's Fair and other projects.

At the center, Louis J. Fountas, of 531 Loveman-av, will serve as supervisor exhibit design and production, and Charles O'Connor, of 1858 Bedford-rd, will serve as coordinator exhibit and graphic service.

Named OSPB Assistant Director

Mrs. Joseph M. Harter, 1928 Berkshire-rd, has been appointed to the staff of the Ohio Society for the Prevention of Blindness as assistant director, according to Dan A. Scarberry, president. She will be in charge of coordinating and directing program activities for the society all over the state.

BACK CLUBS

Republican State Chairman John S. Andrews announced that GOP State Headquarters is backing a stepped-up drive to organize teen-age Republican clubs throughout Ohio.

Resort Model Is Feature

Feature attraction of the 1966 Home Show to be held at the State Fairgrounds Mar. 26 to Apr. 1 will be a "vacation" model home.

This is the same house visited by thousands when it was built on the roof of the Abercrombie and Fitch building in New York City.

The home is designed to show the newest ideas in resort home building, decorating and landscaping.

Visitors will be permitted to walk through the model home.

Surrounding the model home will be nearly 300 exhibit spaces where over 175 leading Central Ohio dealers, distributors and manufacturers will display hundreds of new items and services for the home.

John A. Kight, manager of the show since its inception in 1926, credited comments from many of the more than 125,000 visitors at last year's show for bringing the "vacation" home to the 1966 Home Show.

Miss America Writes Book; Available Here

Every parent is familiar with the "mirror-conscious" stage of their young daughter's development — those long hours in front of a mirror, preening, lamenting, practicing and . . . just thinking.

In "That Girl In Your Mirror," a new book just off the press, Miss America 1965, Vonda Kay Van Dyke, peeks over every girl's shoulder and talks with her about the girl in her mirror.

Helpful personality and beauty hints, fascinating "Miss America" sidelights, and real challenge for setting goals in life make "That Girl In Your Mirror" a girl's best friend.

This is just the kind of counsel girls are looking for . . . from just the kind of girl they'll listen to.

The book is now available at Christian Book and Gift Store, 179 S. High-st.
